Valuable Courage.
Mr. Mellon's Fine Purchase.
Canada's Big Shock.
For Not Raising Hogs.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

W. R. HEARST writes, in all his newspapers, that newspapers should support heartily every Roosevelt act that they think beneficial.

In connection with that sound suggestion, ask yourself how you would feel, and what would be the result in this country, if there were men in Washington in that with the courage and initiative to DO SOMETHING about the big drought.

SUPPOSE YOU had a president afraid to move, afraid to relieve the desperate, impoverished farmers by pouring out government money—what might be the result?

Suppose you had a president talking about the divine law of "supply and demand," instead of warning dealers that gougers on food prices will go to jail, as President Roosevelt warns them.

WHILE YOU are glad to have a president with courage to act in drought or other emergency, you worry a little about distributions of public monies as loans on all kinds of houses that need mending and farms with owners that would like to borrow.

With 10,000 politicians scattering the public money, estimating the value of properties and handing out loans, how much of that money will come back?

IT IS GOOD news that Andrew W. Mellon, formerly Secretary of the Treasury, who seems to possess a "comfortable competence," depression or no depression, has bought Raphael's magnificent painting "Alba Madonna" from the Russian government for one million five hundred thousand dollars.

Geese will say: "How terrible to spend so much money for one picture in these times." Wise men will say to the Geese: "You wouldn't get the money anyhow, if he didn't buy the picture. He is to be praised for bringing that magnificent work of art to his own country, where thousands of young artists will see and be inspired by it." Mr. Mellon is generous, lending his finest paintings for public exhibition, and eventually the picture will become public property.

MR. MELLON would render even a greater public service if he could persuade Russia to sell him the 6,000-book library collected by Voltaire, taken from Fernet to Russia by the Empress Catherine the Second when she bought everything in Voltaire's house, even the wooden paneling of the rooms.

That library selected by Voltaire, hundreds of the volumes marked with comment in his fine handwriting on the leaf margins, would be more valuable than any picture or statue with few exceptions.

What would you give for Voltaire's copy of Montesquieu's "Spirit of Laws," with the old man's sarcastic comments written on leaf after leaf?

ONE MILLION five hundred thousand dollars seems a terrific price for one picture. But you could not buy, from the Pope, Michelangelo's frescoes in the Sistine Chapel for fifty times $1,500,000, and the French government would not sell you two of its statues, the Venus De Milo and the "Winged Victory," for five hundred million dollars.

Some things, fortunately, have no "price."

CANADA HAS its first big kidnaping case, an important brewer, John S. Labatt, held by racketeers for $150,000 ransom. This Canadian beginning of what has grown to be one of the important branches of our great racketeering industry in the United States startles Canada.

Canadians say, "undoubtedly the work was done by United States racketeers." They probably are right about that.

BOND MEN pass from hand to hand a copy of an alleged letter written to a Boston bond house, urging "big profits to be made from NOT raising hogs." This parody on our era of plowing under cotton, cutting down wheat just before a drought, drowning farrow sows, full of little pigs, reads, in part, as follows:

"Mr. Blank, of Northampton, has a friend who received a government check for $1,000 this year for not raising hogs. So Blank now proposes to get a farm and go into the business of not raising hogs; says not raising hogs appeals to him very strongly.

"Do you think capital could be provided by the issuance of a non-hog raising gold bond?

"His friend who got the thousand dollars got it for not raising 500 hogs; now we figure we might easily not raise 1,500, or even 2,000 hogs, so you see the possible profits are only limited by the number of hogs we do not raise."

THIS WOULD puzzle Solomon, the wise man, multiplied by ten thousand. Your government has "resumed exporting gold." One million dollars worth went to France yesterday, the first since April, 1933.

Somebody says it is a "gesture" to support the dollar.

Americans who were not allowed to keep gold t' at belonged to them, and had to turn it over to the government for little more than half its present value, would call that a silly gesture.

IT IS understood that the United States Treasury authorities have a billion or two public money with which they may play, according to their judgment, "to uphold our exchange."

Shipping to France gold metal, considered too good for Americans that formerly owned it, will strike the public as distinct "child's play." The intelligent French may well laugh at our antics.

'I'm Tired of Living'

MRS. AGENES THOMAS, 21, IN HOMESTEAD HOSPITAL

PHILATELIST SELLS WIFE FOR $700

Gives Bill of Sale To Rival After Final Payment

HOBOKEN, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Richard Rost, 48-year-old professional stamp collector, his wife, Hildegarde, 30, mother of his six-year-old son, and Paul Herman, 41, Union City engineer, were taken before Recorder Thomas J. McAleer today to face charges to this effect:

That Herman was to pay the sum in installments.

That Mrs. Rost agreed to the sale, and finally,

That she went to live with Herman.

As Chief of Police Edward J. McFeely told the story, Mrs. Rost met Herman last month in a restaurant. Soon the couple found they liked each other. Rost learned this, and the subject of selling his wife suggested itself. The installments were paid regularly, according to McFeely, and last Thursday the sale was completed. "There was even a bill of sale," the chief said.

Recorder McAleer held the three in $5,000 bail each for the grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to violate the morale code. They were unable to supply bail.

Clerk Tells Of Eloping With Deb

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Julian Murry was a little fed up today with all those "heiress marries clerk" stories.

It's true, he said, that he eloped with Ann Whiting, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlen Whiting of Scarborough-on-Hudson, on April 21 last, and that they "sort of forgot" to tell their friends about it. But their parents knew and then—

"My family's a good family. And what if I am working at selling neckties? It was the only job I could get and a fellow has to start at the bottom to reach the top. I get $18 a week but it isn't my only income."

Murry, 26, and his 20-year-old bride are temporarily living in an apartment sub-leased from a friend. Murry came to New York six months ago, partly to see Ann and partly to get a job, he said.

His father-in-law was also a little disturbed by the movie scenario woven around his daughter's marriage. He said:

"To begin with, she isn't an heiress. I own a few shares of stock in a publishing company, but I don't own the company by any means. And Julian isn't just a clerk. He's studying merchandising. Yes, I'm continuing Ann's allowance. It's enough for her to live on with a little left over for dentist's bills and such things. We knew they were engaged and approved of it."

COUNCIL CALL BY MAYOR FLOPS

Only Three Show Up And One Clashes With His Honor

Mayor McNair contrived to maintain his undimmed place in the spotlight today with these performances:

1—When less than a quorum of Council turned up to confirm his appointment of Ward Bonsall as the new City Solicitor, he and Councilman John Kane staged a battle of words.

2—He decided to act as his own attorney in the $50,000 slander suit brought against him by Ida Rickenbrode, dismissed police lieutenant.

3—He decided to take a vacation, however short.

Only three councilmen, a dozen spectators and one argument appeared.

Although he knew that a quorum of Council was absent on vacations, McNair seemed nettled when only three of the city fathers appeared.

So His Honor immediately called

2 NOTORIOUS GANGSTERS SOUGHT

Ransom Gang Phones Victim's Brother at Toronto Hotel

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—A climax was expected in the Labatt abduction case today as the search for the ransom gang shifted across the border to Detroit. Two notorious American gangsters were reported sought.

Meanwhile, mysterious telephone calls to Hugh Labatt at the Royal York Hotel led to reports that a "contact" had been established with the kidnapers of his brother, John S. Labatt, millionaire Canadian brewer, who is being held for $150,000.

Hugh Labatt

No one in authority, however, would admit that a contact had been made and it was significant that Hugh Labatt did not leave his rooms following receipt of the telephone calls.

At 10 a. m. a reporter was informed that Labatt was lying down, and had just fallen asleep. Labatt had spent two sleepless nights maintaining a vigil in the hope the kidnapers would communicate with him. He is reputed to have the $150,000 ransom with him and eager to pay it in exchange for his brother's freedom.

The several mysterious telephone calls which came to Labatt in the dead of the night caused a sudden burst of activity by the police and a flurry of excitement among reporters swarming the fifth floor of the hotel.

EARS STRAINED

When the telephone first rang in Room 529, around 2 a. m., waiting reporters edged near the door of the room and strained their ears. They heard Labatt answer. He was heard to say in effect:

The conversation soon ended.

Canadian police, who have rooms all over the fifth floor, were soon in Labatt's room. Half a dozen officers hastily arose from their beds, strapped on revolvers and apparently prepared themselves for an early morning sortie.

Reports were quickly circulated that the police were going to the Humber Bridge, on the outskirts of Toronto.

Several of the reporters thought they heard through the open transom Labatt saying:

"I must throw it over the east end of the bridge."

ALL VERY MYSTERIOUS

And so when a group of detectives hurriedly left the hotel, the reporters and photographers followed them. It was all very mys-

PINCHOT FLAYS MELLON ART

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 16.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today condemned Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, for his reported purchase of the Alba Madonna from Soviet Russia for $1,500,000. The Governor said:

"This is the same Mr. Mellon who refused not to give but to lend $1,000,000 to keep the unemployed of Pennsylvania from starving. Now he pays half as much again for one picture. That is all anybody needs to know about him."

The $1,000,000 mentioned by the Governor was the amount he suggested Mellon should subscribe to the 1931 "prosperity loan" for jobless aid.

'Gin Marriage' Ends For Film Couple

BALTIMORE, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The marriage of Kenneth Daniel Harlan, moving picture actor, and Phyllis McC. Johnson, actress, was annulled by Judge Rowland K. Adams in Baltimore Circuit Court yesterday.

Harlan, when testifying before a court examiner last month, said that at the time of his marriage here, November 9, 1932, he had been drinking and was not in his "normal frame of mind." He said neither he nor Mrs. Harlan realized the seriousness of the step they were taking.

GIRL WIFE TRIES TO END LIFE

She lifted the little bottle to her lips and drank.

Today the attractive young blonde lay on a hospital bed, defeated in her efforts to end her life because her husband had refused to make up, according to the police.

Mrs. Agnes Thomas, 21, had asked John P. Jones, 25, of 8 Exeter street, Squirrel Hill, to drive her to Connellsville to see her estranged husband, the authorities said.

Back in Pittsburgh she asked to stop at a drug store.

They were within a few blocks of her home in Monongahela street, Hazelwood, when she was quoted as warning:

"I'll make him feel sorry some day."

Then, according to the police, as the auto approached her home, she whisked a bottle of poison from her purse and held it to her lips.

Jones hurried to the nearby West Homestead Police Station, explained the circumstance, said he had little if any gas in his car and asked for aid.

Sergt. Frank Seaman drove her to Homestead Hospital.

Today, recovering on her hospital bed, she explained that she and her husband, married two years and eight months, had split over religion.

Was she sorry?

"No, I'll do it again. I'm tired of living."

But perhaps her desperation will accomplish a reunion. For when her husband, Freeman Thomas, in Connellsville, was told, he promised to leave immediately for the hospital, adding:

"We may have a reconciliation, I don't know. I'm sorry she did it."

Dedd Man Gets 487 Votes in Town

TIFFIN, O., Aug. 16.—A dead man received 487 votes in the primary yesterday. Judge George M. Hoke, candidate for the Democratic nomination for state representative, died July 28, too late for the withdrawal of his name from ballots.

SPEEDING AUTO KILLS 4 GIRLS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Four children were killed last night when an automobile, driven by Floyd Crossley, 38, ran into a crowd of five children as they walked along a highway near here.

The dead are two pairs of sisters, Nancy and Louise Lindsay, aged 3 and 8, and Bernice and Dolores Uber, aged 5 and 6.

A police surgeon who examined Crossley after the accident said he was intoxicated. He is being held on a charge of intoxication and suspicion.

Pirate-Giant Game Postponed by Rain

Rain and wet grounds forced a postponement of the fourth battle of the Pirate-Giant series at Forbes Field this afternoon.

As a result of the postponement, the two teams will close their engagement with a doubleheader tomorrow afternoon, the first game starting at 1:45.

Boys' day will be in force tomorrow, while ladies' day, usually held on Thursday, will be on Saturday when the Pirates open a series with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Jinx Hounds Levine; Hurt By Auto Now

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(INS.)—The jinx which has been hounding Charles A. Levine, former trans-Atlantic air passenger, had him back in the news again today. This time he was the victim in an automobile accident.

He is recovering in Roosevelt Hospital from contusions sustained when he walked into the side of an automobile driven by Miss Pearl Silverman, of Toledo, O.

Stupid Taxation

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and Diplomat and Former United States Ambassador to Italy.

SCIENTIFIC taxation!

Where is it?

The lack of it may be comical in prosperity, or where taxation is light, but stupidity in taxation gets to be a tragic muff of government when depression is on us and taxation to provide for emergency relief—or, worse yet, revolution by purchase—goes up so that 30 or 40 per cent of the people's whole income slops on to the ground of public expense.

Anyone would think that the best experts we can summon at home—or even borrow from abroad—would be assembled to tell us how to escape the political muddling and would be called to sit at the President's elbow to advise him and tell Congress, when it next meets, the neatest, cleanest, cheapest way to get the enormous taxes needed to pay the enormous charges on government loans and pay the piper for the freshets and floods.

The need now is not to supply at the top enough wealth to drain off at a bunghole; today the job is to get enough in at the top to fill a barrel without a bottom.

SUCH a body of experts would probably remind the country of two important facts.

ONE—NO GOVERNMENT IS ANY MAGIC SOURCE OF WEALTH. DOWN TO A PENNY, WHATEVER IT PAYS IT HAS TO GET OUT OF THE HIDE OF THE POPULATION. TWO—NO TAXATION—EXCEPT INHERITANCE TAXES PERHAPS—HAS YET BEEN DEVISED THAT PREVENTS THE PAYER OF TAXES FROM DISTRIBUTING THE LOSS TO THE WHOLE POPULATION. THE TAXED LANDLORD GETS IT OUT OF THE TENANTS' RENT. THE TAXED MANUFACTURER GETS IT OUT OF THE CONSUMERS' EARS.

On top of those two facts, which most of us always forget like simple Simons, there are other facts to be dealt with that are not dealt with sufficiently now.

TAXES OFTEN DEFEAT THEMSELVES.

It is easy to tax industry until there is no industry to tax.

It is easy to tax so heavily that money runs out of the country or hides away.

It is easy to tax in such a complicated manner that collecting the taxes costs more than the taxes yield.

Such are the tendencies of hot-foot governments without the brakes of scientific knowledge.

Here we are today—the millions of us and the national government, whatever the administration of the last forty years—taxing, taxing, taxing—and all slipshod, hit-or-miss, grab-and-muff taxation.

THE HEARST press has little for its pains in recommending a manufacturers' sales tax to Washington, except a sour reluctance.

The reluctance is sour because it cannot explain even why it is reluctant except to say:

"We are afraid."

Afraid of what?

"Well," the answer is, "we who know nothing about it are afraid that the consumer who knows nothing about it wouldn't like it."

It is impossible to get a better answer than that, even though the consumer may realize that income taxes come back on him with still a harder bump, and also that the income taxes throttle industry.

Without arguing now about the lost opportunity of the sales tax, the country may regard the last many years of hit-or-miss, political-prejudice taxation as a scandal of mismanagement in a government which some men now propose shall extend its functions to running everything.

678,500 CENSUS CITY'S FIGURE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The population of Pittsburgh is 678,500, according to the latest official estimate by the Bureau of the Census, announced today.

This is an increase from 669,817 shown in the decennial census for 1930.

Although no estimate was made for the metropolitan district, the percentage of population increase in the suburban districts has been much greater in the past three years, it was declared.

New Kensington, center of the aluminum strike, grew faster than any other Pennsylvania community, increasing from 16,762 in 1930, to 24,200 under the present estimate.

Pennsylvania's population is estimated at 9,826,000 against 9,631,350 in 1930.

Royalty Bags Game On Morgan Estate

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(INS.)—The Duke of York, second son of the King and Queen; J. P. Morgan, American financier; Lord Elphinstone, Lord Hampden, and Lord Eldon today were credited with the largest bag of this year's grouse-shooting season, which opened Monday.

'Terror' Suspect Held in Homestead

James Chapman, 23, of 207 Joseph street, was held by Homestead police today as a suspect in the recent terrorizing of women in the district for the past month, police reported.

He was arrested yesterday at Twelfth avenue and Amity street. Police said he will be held until Helen Sullivan, 23, of West Eleventh and Sarah streets, Homestead, tries to identify him as the man who entered her bedroom.

Attempt to Kidnap Dentist's Child Failed

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(INS.)—Police went into action today to track down a mysterious stranger who attempted to kidnap the 13-months-old son of Dr. Harry Lorange from the dentist's office.

Millie Arvington, Negro maid, was alone in the house with the child when the man called and said he had been sent for the infant.

The subterfuge was discovered when the maid communicated with the child's father.

Scots Rush to Rescue Dishes as Quake Hits

DINGWALL, Scotland, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—A 10-second earthquake shook Dingwall early this morning.

Bedsteads and other furniture trembled, plaster cracked and fell and woodwork began to creak, arousing the startled residents. There was no serious damage.

The inhabitants of Inverness and Pitlochry likewise were alarmed when furniture and crockery started shaking badly.

The Exchange Telegraph agency correspondent reported:

"All thrifty people—that is to say, practically the entire population of the districts affected—dashed out of bed to save their china and glass, thinking that at least it was being stolen by a careless burglar who might smash something."

Lindbergh Again Away On Son's 2d Birthday

Maybe Jon had a party, but if he did, very likely his most important guest and perhaps his only one was his faithful nurse, Betty Gow.

He had to celebrate without the assistance of his parents, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who left the island several days ago.

A parentless birthday, however, is not a novel experience for Lindbergh's second son. A year ago, when he celebrated his first, his distinguished mother and father were in distant lands on their extensive aerial survey expedition.

MELLON BANK SWINGS SUPPORT TO HOUSING PROGRAM

U. S. TO LAUNCH CAMPAIGN IN 70 TOWNS

3 Leading Financial Groups Here Apply For Insurance

With the largest banking groups in the Pittsburgh district already prepared to furnish the money the President's billion dollar home modernization campaign will swing into 70 Western Pennsylvania communities, District Administrator Edward B. Lee announced today.

The Mellon National Bank is the newest financial backer of the program and is preparing to apply for the government's insurance protecting small loans for property repair.

The Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, with seven branch banks, and the First National Bank have applied for the insurance.

Administrator Lee told the Sun-Telegraph today he is considering asking the co-operation of the service clubs in 70 Western Pennsylvania towns to organize housing committees to advance the program.

1,131 Banks Contract To Make Home Loans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The Federal Housing Administration announced today that 1,131 banks, with total resources of over eight billion dollars, had signed contracts to make loans for property improvements and repairs.

The banks have agreed to make loans of from $100 to $2,000 in the first stage of the government's campaign for home modernization and new building. The government isures against loss up to 20 per cent.

The administration said the population of cities served by the institutions amounted to over 87,000,000. New York led the states with a total of 211. In New York City 22 banks has signed contracts.

The list by states follows:

Alabama 18, Arkansas 12, California 67, Connecticut 32, Colorado 7, Delaware 6, District of Columbia 18, Florida 12, Georgia 24, Illinois 50, Indiana 37, Iowa 23, Kansas 13, Kentucky 19, Louisiana 12, Maine 7, Maryland 5, Massachusetts 30, Michigan 18, Minnesota 35, Mississippi 12, Missouri 30, Montana 4, Nebraska 5, Nevada 1, New Hampshire 5, New Jersey 95, New Mexico 4, North Carolina 34, North Dakota 1, Ohio 73, Oklahoma 7, Oregon 8, Pennsylvania 78, Rhode Island 5, South Carolina 3, South Dakota 1, Tennessee 11, Texas 18, Utah 2, Vermont 15, Virginia 22, Washington 11, West Virginia 14, Wisconsin 36, Wyoming 5.

Arizona and Idaho were unlisted by the administration.

LOAN SABOTAGE CHARGED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—John V. Doughten, who says his recent resignation as chief counsel for the Philadelphia district of the Home Owners Loan Corporation was requested, and that no reason was advanced for it, asserts that the Pennsylvania branch is bound by "red tape and stupid restrictions."

Doughten severely criticized Stanley V. Horner, who became state manager of the HOLC after Jacob H. Mays resigned some time ago. Doughten lauded Mays and Ewing Laporte, the present manager, but declared "Congress should probe into the activities of Mr. Horner, the setting up of red tape and all other phases of the business." He added:

"In my opinion, this part of the national administration's recovery program, like many others, is being deliberately sabotaged."

ADMITS FRAUD, CLEARS BRIDE

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Frank Giraud's career led to the police lineup today, the end of what police described as 18 years of systematic defrauding of Catholic institutions.

With Giraud, who is 42, was his 19-year-old bride, Marie Flanagan Giraud, who married him after a brief courtship in her home town of Paducah, Ky., in the belief he was a graduate physician of McGill University.

The suave, expensively outfitted bridegroom was arrested on a charge of forgery at St. Catherine's Hospital in Brooklyn as result of warnings sent to Catholic institutions from the Catholic Hospitals' Association at St. Louis.

Capt. Edward Dillon said Giraud admitted the charge in the lineup this morning and added, "You certainly muffed a few," when the police officer read his record of 17 arrests since 1916. Giraud absolved his young wife of complicity.

RAINFALL NEAR RECORD HERE

Just a few more rains and there will be some sort of a record for precipitation here during August, the Weather Bureau announced today.

With the clouds working overtime, the total rainfall for the first 15 days stood yesterday at 5.36 inches against a normal fall of 1.62 incnes for the period.

Thus August, 1934, has a running start to outdo the record August of 1888, when the rainfall totaled 7.26.

Wind attaining a velocity of 90 miles an hour added to the confusion of the elements during the night in the Allegheny Valley. Freeport, Pa., reported the worst storm within the memory of the oldest residents.

More than 200 trees were blown down. The property damage exceeded $10,000.

theft of more than $250,000 worth of jewels from the cabins of trans-Atlantic steamship passengers.

Among the prominent victims, it was said, was Polly Moran, celebrated screen comedienne.

Rubin was arrested in the Grand Central Station as he was about to entrain for Canada, police said. He had been sought for five months.

It is alleged that in one instance Rubin returned to a liner to retrieve $15,000 worth of jewels hidden in a lighting fixture.

MATRON SHIELD IN PEN BREAK

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Four of five long term convicts who escaped this morning from the state penitentiary were recaptured less than three hours later by state and county police.

Overpowering a lone guard at the rear entrance of the women's quarters, the convicts forced the guard to unlock an outside door. Then, carrying Mrs. Virginia Spencer, a matron, across the yard as a shield, they scaled two fences, commandeered an automobile and raced out of the city.

The convicts abandoned the automobile only a few miles from the state prison farm where they had been fired on less than an hour after the daring break.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Miss Dorothy Jarman, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Sanderford H. Jarman, of Washington, and Lieut. Harvey Jablonsky, star Army athlete, were married yesterday.

Lieut. Jablonsky, whose home was in Clayton, Mo., captained the 1933 Army football team, on which he played guard, and was an outstanding performer on the track squad.

Oh! What Lies Miners Tell of Gold Days

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The exalted prevaricators of the international sourdough reunion met today in extraordinary session—and that's no lie.

Right off the bat, Jack Roberts, Los Angeles, told the annual convention that somebody was a liar when they said Alaskan miners fed dye to invisible iceworms so they could be seen. He said:

"We did not use dye. We placed 40-rod whisky on the ice in dishpans; the worms would drink it and fall over with a thud. Every time we heard a thud, we would grope in that direction and catch an iceworm.

"The only trouble was that when those worms were placed on the hook while full of whisky they would just as soon catch anything that came along instead of sticking to fish. I had an iceworm once that caught a polar bear."

There was a roar from the "clan" men who took the long hike up the Chilkoot trail and fought the elements in Alaska and the Yukon for gold.

HUEY ASSAILED FOR LOUISIANA 'HITLERISM'

State Heading Toward Reign of Bloodshed, Legislator Warns

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—A warning that Louisiana is headed for "Hitlerism" and "bloodshed" rang through the state today as Senator Huey P. Long continued his campaign to overthrow Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's rule in New Orleans.

Twenty-eight bills drafted by the Louisiana "Kingfish" and charged with dynamite for investigation and crippling of the present city government of New Orleans, sped toward final action in the Long-controlled Legislature, meeting here in special session.

Representative Rupert Peyton, an anti-Long leader, sounded the warning last night on the floor of the House.

He declared:

"We are going to have killings and bloodshed in this state as a result of this Legislature's action, so we might as well legalize it. We are headed for Hitlerism."

He spoke on his mock amendment to an administration election control bill. The amendment would empower election officers "to shoot and kill any person known or suspected of having cast his or her ballot against the present state administration or against the desires of Senator Huey P. (Kingfish) Long." The amendment was promptly done away with.

While the House was receiving favorable omnibus report on the 28 bills of Long and Gov. O. K. Allen, pistols were drawn by National Guard troops in New Orleans where the guardsmen at Jackson barracks, mobilization grounds outside of the city, were blocking civil deputies from seizing Adjt. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming and one of his captains.

MOTHER LANDS WITH GIFT FOR PRESIDENT

Brings Tweed for Suit; Enjoyed Her Visit With Royalty

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—With a piece of tweed for "her boy, Franklin," Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President, returned today from a two-months' trip to Europe.

As the liner Ile de France came up the bay she said, of the tweed:

"I want him to make it up into a suit. I bought it in Scotland and it's a bargain. It cost just 5 pounds, but it's splendid tweed."

She also brought her son first-hand news that "England and France are strong for him." She chuckled:

"That's why they made such a fuss over me."

NEWSPAPERS 'NICE'

Did she know she had been hailed as "the greatest hit in Paris since Lindbergh" and "the most effective goodwill ambassador this country has sent to Great Britain?" She exclaimed:

"My, my! Did the papers say that? It takes the newspapers to say nice things."

PALACE VISIT PLEASANT

Asked about her chat with Queen Mary over the teacups at Buckingham Palace, she said:

"Oh, we didn't talk about anything special. The King, of course, asked about Franklin. My son met him years ago.

"It was nice at the palace because we three were alone—much nicer than if I'd had to go with a crowd."

A photographer informed her he had recently made pictures of President Roosevelt with two of his sons, Franklin and John. She asked anxiously:

"How did Franklin and Johnny behave? You know, they consider having their father president a definite handicap.

Rhinoceros Bones Found in Saxony

HALLE, Saxony.—(INS.)—Bones of rhinoceros that roamed these plains and regions during the second ice age have been discovered here in a clay-pit. In the jawbones of the prehistoric animal were teeth 18 centimeters long. On the great teeth, the crown was five centimeters long and four centimeters wide.

Weather Conditions

Pressure is low over most of the map this morning, with the principal centers over Ohio, 29.86 inches at Columbus, Kan., 29.94 at Wichita, and 29.88 at Edmonton and Prince Albert. It is raining this morning over the Ohio Valley and Missouri and eastward to the coast. The rainfall for the last 24 hours was generous over a large area from the central plains eastward and heavy at a number of places. The heaviest amount reported is 2.16 inches at Fort Wayne. Pressure continues high over the Atlantic coast and there is a ridge of high pressure extending from the Pacific eastward to Iowa. The highest reported is 30.22 inches, at Yellowstone. It is somewhat cooler than yesterday morning throughout the rain belt, but there is no material change in temperature indicated for the next several days. High temperatures occurred again yesterday in most of Kansas and Missouri, over Oklahoma and Northern Texas. The highest reported is 106 degrees, at Wichita.

River Conditions

The rivers are falling. There was some rain over the entire basin, but not sufficient to affect the rivers. Stage at Franklin is 1-10th foot below zero. Lock No. 7, 10.5; Pittsburgh, 10.6; Dam No. 4, 11.0; No. 6, 9.3; No. 10, 9.9, and No. 12, 10.9. The dams are up.

Mary French, Rockefeller Married

MISS MARY FRENCH

Vermont Ceremony Links Famous Families

WOODSTOCK, Vt., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Two of America's most distinguished families were united yesterday when Miss Mary French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John French, of Greenwich, Conn., and New York, became the bride of Laurance Spelman Rockefeller, of New York, son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., builder of Radio City and grandson of the founder of the Standard Oil empire.

The ceremony was followed by a large reception at "The Hills," ancestral home of the old Vermont family, Billings, from which the bride is descended on her mother's side. At the wedding and reception were many persons prominent in social and other affairs, among them virtually the whole Rockefeller clan, headed by Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

DIONNE BABIES GUARDED

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—A narrow winding road that leads through the bushlands to the little homestead of Oliva Dionne soon may be known as the "Dionne Highway," or "Quintuplet Drive" in honor of the five little sisters who have amazed the medical world.

W. H. Alderson, Red Cross executive and one of the legal guardians of the babies, said today such a suggestion would be submitted to Peter Heenan, minister of northern development. He thought Heenan would be agreeable to such a name for the road over which Dr. A. R. Dafoe travels daily to visit his tiny patients.

A few hours after the daring kidnaping of John Labatt, of London, Alderson ordered the little Dionne home, housing the quintuplets, illuminated with gas lights. Lanterns were hung from the four corners of the home and all night the special guard patrolled a beaten path around the building.

'Stormy Weather' Tough on Tooters

BALTIMORE, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—"Stormy Weather" is a dangerous melody, accept the word of Assistant State's Attorney William C. Baxter for it.

Baxter told the court the song had caused two Negro killings here within six months—one because a musician would not play the air and a second because another musician would not stop playing it.

Brother Mum as Police Make Mystery Dash To Toronto Bridge

tersons and the police would not talk, nor reveal where they were headed.

The police went to the Humber Bridge. They looked around, apparently saw nothing of consequence and returned. So did the press.

Hugh Labatt, however, had not left his room. It was stated that the police had informed him he must not do so—that it was inadvisable.

Shortly after 3 a. m. another telephone call came. Labatt answered. He was heard to say, according to reporters with exceedingly sharp ears:

"Will I be able to see my brother?"

RINGS THIRD TIME

Detectives who entered the room upon the second ringing of the phone were heard talking to Labatt after he had hung up the receiver.

The telephone rang again some time later but nothing of consequence was learned concerning this call, and the hours went by and no really terrible piece of news developed.

Over at London, Ont., the home of the missing brewer, his family maintained an agonizing vigil hoping for favorable news of some kind. Hugh Labatt had come from London to Toronto at the suggestion of the kidnapers who indicated they would get in touch with him here.

John Labatt, a semi-invalid, was abducted two days ago as he was traveling by motor between Sarnia, Ont., and London. A note was found inside Labatt's abandoned automobile demanding $150,000. The note was understood to have threatened death if the ransom money was not paid.

Grave fears were entertained for the life of Labatt as the hours passed and a definite arrangement with the kidnapers had not been brought about.

Labatt Kidnap Hunt Centers in Detroit revelation that a suspect was being sought in Detroit.

The suspect, whose identification was not made known by police, was implicated when fingerprints taken from the abandoned Labatt car were compared with prints of known criminals on file in the Detroit rogues' gallery. The prints were brought here by five Canadian provincial officers.

The officers conferred with Fred W. Frahm and shortly after the similarity in prints was discovered, set out with three picked teams of Detroit detectives on a secret mission.

Although police deny it, it was learned that Harry Fleischer, the Purple gangster implicated in the Lindbergh kidnaping, and Joe Massie, down-river rum-runner, also are sought.

Fleischer and Massie are known to have been in Detroit recently, but police were not certain they were here as late as three days ago, the day the millionaire brewer visited Detroit on business.

Fingerprints of the suspect were taken from the steering wheel of the Labatt car after it was found parked near a hospital in London Monday. Only one set was found, indicating he was alone in the car after Labatt was abducted.

Menjou Planning To Wed Next Week

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Friends of Veree Teasdale, actress, and Adolph Menjou, actor, said today the couple would marry in Old Mexico August 24. Neither of the players would comment. Miss Teasdale recently completed buying her trousseau. Friends said the couple plan a honeymoon in the Canadian Rockies.

Free Speech Backfires And Reds Can't Take It

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Union Square, rostrum of the Red, took a sock on the chin from its own oratory last night, and there was much ado.

The Reds are wont to mount the Union Square soapbox and hurl violent verbs. Free speech is the cornerstone from which they love to leap at the throats of the capitalistic this and the capitalistic that.

Last night during a lull when none of the 500 Communists gathered at the square seemed to have any immediate remarks to make concerning the government, Mr. Eugene Daniell took the platform. Mr. Daniell once tossed a smoke bomb into the Stock Exchange as an indication of his contempt for that institution, and the Reds assumed he was about to loose some good old-fashioned opprobrium in the direction of something capitalistic.

Daniells fooled them. He shouted:

"I'm out to destroy Communism. Down with the Reds!"

This was free speech with a backfire. The Reds, always ready to rip the hide from privilege and plutocracy, rose in wrath. They yanked a plank from the platform, and Daniell, still denouncing Communists, went down.

Someone called the police. The Reds dispersed.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Boat Stranded on Rocks

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—A motorboat in which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was riding on remote Chazy Lake Tuesday drifted on rocks and was freed only after a chauffeur had fallen into the water, according to the Plattsburg Press.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her friend, Miss Nancy Cook, have been guests at the camp of Reinald Werrenrath, baritone.

The newspaper said a party of five went out in a motorboat, but ran out of gas. The boat drifted upon a rock ledge and was stuck fast.

Fishing nearby, Dr. John Stone, of Albany, and Dr. R. Lamb, of Harmon, saw the party's plight, rowed ashore for gas, and returned, bringing Charles Gihon, chauffeur.

Gihon tied a rope around his waist, and while the doctors rowed, tried to pull the motorboat off the rocks, the newspaper said. The boat suddenly came clear, its motor running, and Gihon was pulled overboard. The boat was quickly stopped and Gihon was lifted aboard.

VOLIVA GIVES HIS FOES ONLY MONTH MORE TO LIVE

ETHEL BARRYMORE

Plans Stage Return This Autumn in 'Laura Garnett'

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Aug. 15 —(AP.)—Ethel Barrymore, celebrating her 55th birthday by dining with her divorced husband and their son, said last night that she will return to the stage this fall in "Laura Garnett."

The veteran actress surely looked 40.

It was a coincidence that the distinguished actress dined with her ex-husband, Russell Griswold Colt, at her suburban home. He dines with her at "Taylor's Point," where she has lived for 22 years, every Wednesday. Her daughter, Ethel, was absent—playing at a summer theater at Madison, Conn. The only other guest besides her son, was Georgie Drew, a cousin.

Said the veteran of some of the nation's best plays:

"It's unusual for anybody to pay attention to my birthday. Usually, they just celebrate the birthdays of my children and mine go by unnoticed."

Did her former husband, Colt, remember it was her birthday? She said:

"He never remembers my birthday. But he always has dinner with me on Wednesday night."

The New York Post quoted Miss Barrymore as saying in an interview during the day that if Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, motion picture producers, had heeded her advice they would not have been forced to pay damages to Princess Youssoupoff, cousin of the last czar of Russia and wife of the man who claims to have killed Rasputin.

DOUG, PEEVISH, BALKS QUIZ ON LADY ASHLEY

But Fairbanks Grins At Talk of Return To Mary Pickford

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Douglas Fairbanks believes that a man's private life is his own business, and said so yesterday as he returned to America after a year's absence.

Older thinner but debonair as always, the affable Doug merely grinned and shook his head repeatedly at all questions as to a possible reconciliation with Mary Pickford. His only reply was:

"Wait and see."

Queried as to the state of his affections for Lady Sylvia Ashley, defendant in a divorce suit which names him co-respondent, Doug grew peevish and snapped:

"Ask me something else!"

However, the match-making Joseph Schenck, Hollywood producer, who returned with Fairbanks, muttered mysterious things about how nice it would be if Doug and Mary could co-star in a new picture, and said wistfully:

"It would be a great thing for pictures. Co-starring the two of them would be a boom for clean pictures."

Mr. Fairbanks

DENIES REUNION

Fairbanks seemed to think it would be nice, too, but refused to commit himself further.

Asked if he would return to England this fall to defend the divorce suit against Lady Ashley, Doug replied:

"I will not return to England in the fall."

Fairbanks left by plane for Denver today, where he will attend the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. John Fairbanks.

'Won't Balk at Divorce, Life Grand,' Says Mary

That is the attitude of Mary Pickford, as reflected in an interview in the Jewish Day, Jean Jaffe, feature writer, talked with Miss Pickford about her separation from Douglas Fairbanks a few days ago and quotes her as follows:

"I don't indulge in self-pity, the most pitiful sight of all is a self-made martyr.

"But I will not balk at divorce. There is no excuse for not playing the game fairly.

"Life can be a sad affair, but for me it has been grand. I'm deeply religious, and I believe things are put in our way so that we may become stronger. We must not build up false gods because we are punished later.

"We never give up anything voluntarily. But life, I have found, is a very good scheme, and heaven is not a location but a state of mind.

She spoke sadly of modern girls, saying:

"I feel sorry that a girl of 18 today has not the sweet and wholesome face we used to have. We knew as much, but we didn't discuss it. I was not quite 17 when I married Owen Moore. He was my first boy friend. I never went even to a soda fountain without my mother before that."

FAITHFUL TOLD TO WELCOME 'MESSENGER'

All But Loyal Ones In Zion Doomed, He Proclaims

ZION, Ill., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Wilbur Glenn Voliva has told his faithful that the Lord will come to Zion on or about September 13.

On the day of the Feast of Trumpets the loyalists of the religious colony here will gather in Shiloh Tabernacle to await the coming of the Lord.

As for the unfaithful—well, Voliva consigned them to destruction, some of them specifically to hell.

He proclaimed in a fiery address to a thousand followers at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting:

"Things are winding up in Zion.

"At the close of every age God has called a messenger. In Zion there will be a little circle, and God will destroy the rest. We are in the end."

So at 6 a. m. on the day of the Feast of the Trumpets, Voliva has summoned the faithful to gather in the tabernacle to await the coming of the Lord. That advent, too, he said, would be the signal for the destruction of his enemies, Voliva predicted:

"The whole Gentile system will go to smash. Moses called the people to come, and the rest were killed off. I believe it will come this year."

Things temporal began to wind up for Voliva in Zion months ago when receivership robbed him of control of the Zion institutions and industries.

Once worth millions, the cooperative industries that were the backbone of Voliva and his church went the way of other victims of economic depression and a federal court receiver supplanted the Voliva management.

Strange Sea Monster Sighted by Dr. Beebe In 3,028 Ft. Descent

Scores of Tiny Lights On Creature Gleam Like Necklace

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 16. —(AP.)—A huge deep-sea fish, possibly unknown to man, was one of the curious sights observed by Dr. William Beebe, who is record-breaking bathysphere descent toward the bottom of the ocean.

Buried in the two-ton steel ball, Beebe and his associate, Otis Barton, were lowered to a depth of 1,558 feet, more than half a mile under the surface. The descent exceeded their record of last September by 519 feet and surpassed the earlier mark of half a mile by 158 feet.

A large gray "shadow" at 1,750 feet was the first appearance of the unknown fish. The object seemed to be illuminated by scores of tiny lights, glowing like a diamond necklace, Dr Beebe said. He estimated its length as 20 feet. Phosphorescent parasites are believed to have given off the lights.

Dr Beebe described the monster as the largest he ever had seen in a deep sea dive. Barton attempted to photograph it, but his results were uncertain, as underwater creatures flee before a searchlight is turned on through the bathysphere.

Although no more deep dives will be taken this year, Dr. Beebe said he would attempt his study other specimens of the strange fish in shallower depths.

Beebe and Barton were stopped only from above from going deeper in their dives. Capt. Jasmon Sylvester, master of the barque from which a cable was let out, lowering the huge ball, gave an order that no more be payed, although 47 feet remained on the drum.

The explorers were sealed in the bathysphere for 3 hours 40 minutes. Only five minutes of this time was spent at the lowest point. Here there was a pressure of 19 tons on each window of the bathysphere.

Edward J. Kenna, 33, of 2117 Penn avenue, nephew of Edward M. Kenna, Republican politician active during the administration of the late Joseph G. Armstrong, faced reckless driving charges in Traffic Court today as result of a collision in West Carson street, in which five Negroes were injured.

Kenna's automobile collided with a machine driven by Marshall Taylor, 39, Negro, of Leetsdale. Taylor, his wife, Ida, 26; Sarah Johnson, 33; Lilly avenue, Braddock; Mrs. W. Clanagan, 33, of 103 Penn avenue, Braddock, and William Taylor, 37, of 339 Little street, Sewickley, suffered minor injuries. Marshall Taylor also was arrested.

HOPKINS DENIES 'SOCIALISM'

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—An impression abroad that the Roosevelt administration is "socialistic" is entirely false, Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, said in a luncheon address today to members of the Anglo-American Press Club. He asserted:

"The administration is making an honest and a sincere effort to bolster up capitalism."

Interviewed later, Hopkins said the United States must work out its own system of unemployment relief and not resort to doles, as Europe has, declaring:

"America's unemployment crisis must be solved by giving work to the unemployed, not by a dole. There is enough work in the United States for the unemployed for the next 25 years."

SEEKS PAPAL PERMIT TO WED

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Maureen O'Sullivan, motion picture actress now visiting her parents in Killiney, Ireland, plans to seek a papal dispensation to permit her to marry John Farrow, whose first marriage terminated in divorce, it was learned today.

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN

Interviewed over the telephone, Miss O'Sullivan said:

"We are going to seek a dispensation. I do not know exactly when, probably not before my return to Hollywood, in three or four weks. I do not know exactly what dispensation is required, but we will try to obtain whatever one is necessary."

RAMBOVA WEDS HER DON AGAIN

By SEYMOUR BERKSON
Universal Service.

PARIS, Aug. 16—The island romance of Natacha Rambova, former wife of the late Rudolph Valentino, and a Spanish nobleman,

NATACHA RAMBOVA

Don Alvaro de Urzaiz, has just been sealed with a quiet church wedding at Palma, Majlorca, it was revealed by Paris friends today.

The ceremony on the romantic island, now so popular with Americans, followed a secret civil marriage in Paris some time ago.

Natacha has been the reigning queen of Mallorca. She has made a fortune in Mallorca real estate, buying up villas and renting them to visiting Americans.

She met the dark, handsome Don, who is a member of the oldest basque families in San Sebastian, while he was visiting Paris.

$250,000 LIEN NO JOKE, JEEVES

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—P. G. Wodehouse can wring a laugh out of almost any situation. But, here's a situation the famed English humorist would have a difficult time converting into a chuckle.

Indeed, there wasn't even the trace of a smile on the faces of agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau when they walked into the United States District Court here and lodged an income tax lien of $250,703.59 against Wodehouse. The writer's wife, Ethel, was also named.

The lien was filed here by the New York office of the Internal Revenue Bureau in the belief that the noted British author and his wife accumulated assets in this region during their stay in the United States from 1925 to 1929. It was charged that during their sojourn here the Wodehouses paid no income taxes, although Wodehouse earned $2,000 a week in a Hollywood motion picture studio for a year.

EVA CHARGES THIRD DEGREE

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Declaring that Mrs. Eva Coo, blonde roadhouse proprietor, "was tortured for two days and a night," by being kept awake before signing a purported confession of murder of Harry Wright, her handyman, defense counsel served notice today that it would fight "to the last ditch" any effort to introduce that confession of her trial now under way.

Without a court order, said James Byard, Jr., chief of defense counsel, Wright's body was exhumed six days after his death under the wheels of an automobile and taken to "the haunted house on the Crumhorn Mountain" which the state has pictured as the murder spot. There, he said, Mrs. Coo, without the knowledge of her counsel, and in the dark of night, was forced by county law officers to look on while their version of the killing was re-enacted. She was forced, he said, to lift the dead man's body out of the road, and to shake hands with the corpse.

Weather Men Meet, See Fair Christmas

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Next Christmas Eve will be cloudy, but the skies will clear very nicely for Christmas Day and December 26.

Henry J. Tippenhauer expounded his theory of long-range forecasting yesterday as 200 assembled weathermen finished a good laugh at the expense of United States Forecaster James H. Scarr, of New York. He predicted fair weather for yesterday. It rained.

Planes Seek 3 Lost On Lake Michigan

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(Universal)—Navy training cruisers and planes were searching today for Everett Hyman, 22, John Siesel, 19, and Bertram A. Miller, Jr., missing aboard the sloop Anita since a week ago when they left Frankfort, Mich., for Milwaukee.

A two days' search along the coast lines of Wisconsin and Michigan failed to find a trace of the sloop.

Hiss at Judge Puts Herman In Cooler

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—"Come on, speak up," commanded the bailiff when Herman Stauffacher was brought before Judge A. A. Scott to plead to a petty theft charge.

The defendant bared his teeth and hissed; the judge's face reddened. The court said:

"So you won't talk, eh?"

From his pocket the defendant drew a paper bag. He gasped:

"Nuts, your honor—peanuts. One stuck in my throat just as you called my case—my voice went . . ."

Stauffacher swallowed the peanut, but Judge Scott refused to swallow his alibi and "shelled out" a 30-day sentence.

Five Feared Adrift In Fishing Boat

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 16. —(INS.)—Fears were expressed today for the safety of four men and a woman believed adrift in a small boat in Long Island Sound.

The group, Sergt. Edward Cassidy, Bridgeport policeman; Stephen Baye, Alex McCauley, Carl Rowe and Rowe's mother-in-law, started from Bridgeport on a fishing expedition yesterday.

PIE FOR PIE—AND IT'S APPLE

And 12-year-old Walter Amman, Jr., of 204 Locust street, Mt. Oliver, who intends to give "Pie" his pie, hopes that it will help the Pirates win.

Walter got the tip that "Pie" likes apple pie last Friday when he attended the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati game. An usher gave him permission to hop over the rail before the game started and Walter made use of his opportunity to make the personal acquaintance of many of his baseball heroes on the field and in the players' dugouts.

From them all he obtained their autographs, some of them written on their pictures, of which Walter has a collection.

Yes, Walter wants to be a baseball player when he grows up, preferably a center fielder. He plays left field and substitute catcher now for the Buzzard Juniors, a Mt. Oliver boys' outfit.

His mother is going to bake "Pie's" pie.

Pearl Worth $1,000 Found in Fox River

ST. CHARLES, Ill., Aug. 15 (AP.)—Prospects of Harold Olson, 16, going to art school were dim until he found a clam in the Fox River. Inside was a pearl which has been appraised at $1,000. Harold is ready to go to art school.

BYRD STROLLS AT 61 BELOW

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, second-in-command of the Byrd expedition, who led the tractor expedition which reached the advance base, reported by radio that he is still uncertain as to when the trip back will start.

Admiral Byrd ordered E. J. Demas, tractor driver, to take his bunk, but the driver refused. The admiral still is occupying the single bunk in the advance base.

Dr. Poulter, Demas and Amory H. White, radio operators, are sleeping in their sleeping bags, their heads around stoves and their feet under tables and chairs.

Dr. Poulter reported that the shack is about as crowded as a telephone booth when only one man is in it, making it exceedingly "close quarters for four."

DRIVE ON TO AID BLIND GIRL, 7

OMAHA, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—State and private funds are being sought to enable Helen Seifert, 7, deaf, mute and blind, daughter of a day laborer, to "emerge from her mental darkness."

Handicapped as a result of spinal meningitis at the age of 1, Helen presents a puzzling problem to Nebraska educators.

The only institution in the country attempting to solve the problem of deaf-mute-blind persons is the Perkins Institution at Watertown, Mass., where Helen Keller was educated. In response to inquiries of Mrs. Viola B. Shepherd, County Superintendent of Schools at Bridgeport, the institution has offered to take Helen for one year at a cost of $600 tuition, and in addition to give a Nebraska teacher training in deaf-blind instruction on a free scholarship, the teacher to return to Nebraska as Helen's instructor after this year.

CHURCH TO GO UNDER HAMMER

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 16.—The Church of the United Brethren in Christ at Trafford, is up for sheriff's sale.

The church, also known as the Henderson Memorial United Brethren Church, is listed for sale to satisfy a mortgage of $43,000 and a second levy involves a $2,500 judgment in favor of M. D. Salyards, of Trafford. The mortgage is held by Henry Busse, of Trafford.

Sheriff William H. Humes declared he would sell the property unless some assurance of settlement was forthcoming this week.

QUIT FLAUNTING IMPERIAL FLAG, NAZIS TOLD

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Confidential orders were issued today to all members of the Nazi party to cease displaying the old imperial black, white and red flag of Germany.

A threat of expulsion for failure to comply with the orders was included, foreshadowing another set to the banner which the late President Paul von Hindenburg always was a monarchist at heart, served and valiantly defended.

The order is regarded as a fresh indication Nazis are determined not to rest until Germany, inwardly and outwardly, is 100 per cent under the swastika.

Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller's abrupt assumption of dictatorial church powers last week and reports of contemplated changes in diplomatic posts were recent developments in this direction.

Political observers conceded that the appearance yesterday of a "political will" of von Hindenburg, coming just before Germany will vote Sunday on Hitler's taking over of the president's powers, was most timely. It described Hitlerism as a "decisive stride" toward national unity.

BRITAIN DUNS DUCE FOR TAX

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A British income tax collector is after Premier Mussolini of Italy to make him "split" with His Majesty's government royalties he received on the production of one of his plays in London, which incidentally was a flop, it was revealed today by the London Express.

The play, "One Hundred Days," was produced three years ago. The canny Il Duce demanded an advance of $5,000 and got it. Now His Majesty's government wants $1,250 of it and has been writing him dunning letters for the sum.

Il Duce's agents maintain the producers should pay the tax.

U. S. Boys' Nazi Flag Draws Mob in Paris

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Two young American college students hung a Nazi swastika flag out of a Paris hotel window "just to see what would happen." They soon found out.

An angry throng of Parisians, shouting threats, gathered under the window in practically no time and was dispersed only after police ordered the German emblem withdrawn.

Von Papen Meets Austrian President

U. S. UNPREPARED IN AIR, FOKKER SAYS

Universal Service Special Cable

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 16.—The performance of the latest type of American bombing planes "has clearly shown the obsolescence of the bulk of American pursuit planes," Anthony Fokker, noted Dutch airplane designer declared today.

Fokker, who built the larger part of Germany's military planes during the World War and now spends much of his time in the United States, added:

"The character of the next war will largely be dominated by the efficiency of the airplane. There will be no supremacy, except in the air.

"But the progress of aircraft design is such that machines become rapidly outdated. Very soon, the existing aircraft of the powers—France, Italy, Russia, England and the rest—will be obsolete through the development of types of bombing machines of modern design which can and will be built within the next year or two."

ANTHONY FOKKER

Fokker then cited the new American bombing planes as the type of military aircraft that can render whole fleets obsolete. The American plane, he added, "has also revealed the lack of adequate defense against a large fleet of modern bombers." Fokker continued:

"The deciding factor in air supremacy will be the possession of a sufficient number of private factories, constantly turning out a larger number of airplanes of increasingly improved design."

Austria Gets Leave To Keep Volunteers

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The French government's consent to Austria's request for a year's extension of its 8,000-man volunteer corps will be forwarded to Vienna shortly, the Foreign Office said today.

ITALIAN TROOPS QUIT AUSTRIAN BORDER

ROME, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Italy today ordered the withdrawal of the 40,000 troops she concentrated on the Austrian border at the time of the Austrian Nazi putsch late last month.

Several regiments started south from the frontier this morning immediately after receipt of the order. They were bound for their regular camps, 25 to 50 miles away.

Only the normal border garrisons will be retained near the frontier.

The withdrawal order was cited in official quarters as proof that Italy believes the situation in Austria has been cleared up.

Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, vice chancellor of Austria, conferred with Premier Mussolini two days ago. He went from Rome to Venice yesterday and is expected to return to Vienna shortly.

The order withdrawing the troops was believed to have resulted from the conference between the Austrian vice chancellor and Il Duce, for von Starhemberg gave a full report of the Austrian internal situation to the Italian leader.

Premier Mussolini ordered a double wave of Italian soldiers to move up to the Austro-Italian border July 26, the day after Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was assassinated in Vienna.

The resulting movement of armed men was close to record-breaking, for 48,000 soldiers were encamped on the border within 24 hours. A second wave, equally large, was moved up in reserve three days later.

Italy's action was announced as a token of her determination that Austrian independence would be preserved.

U.S. AGENT WINS ONE-MAN WAR WITH NAZIS

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The one-man war of Albert Lapawski, of Chicago, who does not like to get slapped, ended today when the police notified the United States consulate that the Chicagoan's Nazi storm troop adversary had been arrested, jailed, and was scheduled for speedy punishment.

It all began Monday night when Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, staged a pre-election rally. A storm trooper slapped Lapawski for failing to salute a flag.

Lapawski, who is a special agent of the Census Bureau of the United States Department of Commerce, wasn't injured himself but a whole battalion of brown shirts almost were, for Lapawski smashed his way single-handed into the thick of them in an effort to get at his assailant, who had jumped back into the marching ranks.

He got his man, all right, and officers of the Nazi detachment dragged the slapper out into the open, where they identified him. Lapawski filed a police complaint.

With the Chicagoan at the time was Walter Jones, a lecturer of Columbia University, who, however, was not involved in the fracas.

Weird Rites Held For African Dancer

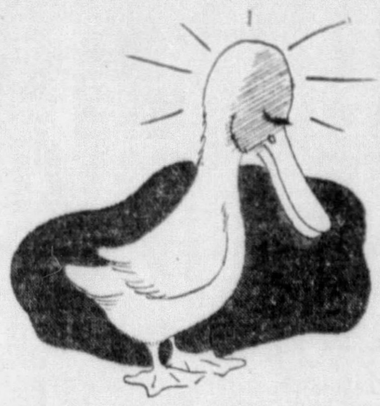
IS OUR FACE RED ABOUT OUR FEATHERS?



Indeed yes—because we ran a pillow advertisement last Wednesday, which, to say the least, was no "feather in our cap"

In this advertisement for a 4.98 Nu-Air-A* Lullaby Pillow, special at 2.94, we stated that these pillows were filled with white feathers and goose down, because we just always thought of feathers in terms of white.

Imagine our embarrassment, when one of the pillows was opened and gray feathers poured out. Gray feathers, of course, go through just the same, careful, sterilizing process as white—and gray feathers are just as soft as white—but they are less expensive because they are more abundant.

Naturally, the presence of gray feathers in a pillow rather than white, does not affect the pillow's comfort or wearability properties one whit. Moreover, the value which we quoted, 4.98, was correct for gray feather filled pillows (5.49 is the value on white).

Customers who bought the gray feather filled pillows, and are dissatisfied, may have their money back upon return of the pillows.

But remember, we're still giving you a great, fat pillow (one of the finest on the market) at a genuine saving of 2.04. We sold hundreds of them last time—and we expect to sell hundreds more.

"THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE"

COMBINE large quantities of copper, iron, lead; add some carbon, nickel, aluminum, wool, cotton, silk; then a little silver and a trace of gold—

Combine these and a hundred other ingredients by the use of initiative, research, invention, experience.

That is the prescription for the construction of America's Bell telephone plant—the switchboards, vacuum tubes, wires, telephones, cables, coils, relays, jacks, plugs, batteries and a thousand and one other ingenious, intricate mechanisms.

But that is not telephone service.

Without the human touch the telephone system is an orderly but inanimate mass of complex equipment.

The quality of America's telephone service is the highest in the world because of the skill, the training, the efficiency, the courtesy, the initiative and the experience of the people who operate the high quality equipment.

THERE is something more in Bell service. It is the desire to serve—the spirit of service—on the part of the men and women of the Bell organization.

This desire has grown with the service. It is evident in the tone of voice, the general attitude of the telephone worker. It is seen in the action of the operator who sticks to her post in the face of danger, in the matter of fact manner of the repairman who faces the elements that "the service may go on". It has become a tradition in the telephone industry.

America leads in telephone service. This leadership will continue while initiative remains a dominant American characteristic. We continue to urge, in the American manner, a broader use of the service.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Associated with the Bell System — participating in and benefiting from the telephone research, telephone development and nation-wide telephone experience which have given America the world leadership in telephone service.

2 DEAD AS TOLL OF AUTOS

Thomas Grubbs, 40, of Allison Park, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile on the Butler Plank road near the Allison Park postoffice.

Grubbs was crossing the highway when struck by an automobile driven, deputy coroners reported, by Albert Stemmler, of Wilmington, Del. Stemmler, who is visiting a brother, Oscar Stemmler, of 1716 Franklin street, North Side, was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office today.

Mrs. Louie Snyder, 68, of 4311 Schenley Farms terrace, died last night in St. Francis Hospital following an operation for injuries suffered in an automobile accident last October, according to the Coroner's report. She was admitted to the hospital Saturday.

Two persons were injured when a truck and a street car collided in West Eighth avenue, West Homestead, yesterday. A box from the back of the truck struck Mrs. Ann Bouchan, of 413 West Eighth avenue, as she was walking. She was treated at Homestead Hospital. The truck driver, William J. Page, 31, of 140 Washington street, suffered a slight shoulder injury.

Auto, Air Mishaps Mar Assumption Day

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(INS)—In addition to a heavy toll of automobile accidents during yesterday's holiday, the Feast of the Assumption, four airplane crashes in France and Belgium costing four lives and seriously injuring five persons were reported in today's Paris press.

Joann Perrot, a Paris stunt performer, was one of those killed when her parachute caught on the wing of the plane from which she jumped at Le Chatre near here.

Chatters on in 'Talking Sickness'

Shouts, Mumbles, Laughs and Sobs For 11 Days

MT. OLIVET O., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Through the dawn and into the still night of a small farming community a man for talking without end.

He is Donald Campbell, a 23-year-old truck driver for a Columbus (O.) firm, suffering from "talking sickness."

Never strong he is weakening under the nervous strain of a fever which—now in the eleventh day—has caused him to shout, mumble, laugh and sob.

He lies in a bed at the home of his father, Blair Campbell, in the village of Edom, two miles west of here, with his wife watching over him much of the time and their small daughter wondering at the strange words of her father.

Diagnosed as a form of encephalitis, his illness is akin to "sleeping sickness," but the effect is the opposite. Except for a few hours under the influence of a sedative, he has had no sleep.

Campbell does not talk of his ailment. He recognizes acquaintances, and although he thus shows the actual signs of mental derangement, his talk is incoherent much of the time.

Ice packs cool his brain. His physician, Dr. C. E. Jackson, says a crisis may come later in the week, or possibly not for two weeks.

AIR PHANTOM SOUGHT IN VAIN

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Aviators and rural dwellers today had abandoned the hunt for the mysterious "something" that fell out of the clouds during Tuesday night's storm.

Scores of people said they saw the object floating slowly toward earth amid rain and lightning and most of them expressed belief it was an aviator making a forced descent in a parachute.

Airmen scanned the mountain ranges and forests of the upper Allegheny range over an area of 15 square miles, but could find no evidence of an airplane crash. Residents in the vicinity of Bradford, a village about eight miles from Bradford, hunted through brush and woodland but also found nothing.

Some expressed the belief the object may have been wreckage carried into the air by the terrific wind that swept the area. Although one woman who trained field glasses on it reported she distinctly saw the figure of a man suspended from a parachute.

U. S. Business Groans Under Weight Imposed By Staggering NRA Tax

By PHILIP PEARL
Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Protests are beginning to pour into NRA headquarters from businessmen who say they are being compelled to pay for the enforcement of codes which are ruining their industries.

This is another development which the NRA "planners" failed to foresee when they decided to saddle American business with a 200 million dollar annual tax for the support of the code authorities.

Resentment is particularly rife among the "little fellows" in industry. Many of them have found their codes have fostered monopolies helpful to the large companies, but detrimental to the smaller ones. And now they discover they are being assessed to insure their own compliance with such codes.

It was this situation that prompted Joseph N. Webber, New York candy maker and member of the wholesale confectioners code, to exclaim at a public hearing only three days ago:

"In the land of the Soviets there is a cheka. Here it is the research and planning division of NRA. They may differ in names, one may be red and the other black, but as to character and nature they are one and the same."

Protesting against the $500,000 budget proposed for the support of the code authority, Webber declared:

"I don't believe there is one man in this room who is satisfied with the code and would willingly contribute one dime to enforce it."

Other businessmen have come to the realization that the NRA tax is placing them in the position of helping manufacturers of a competitive product.

This is due to the arbitrary grouping of business under the 500 approved codes. Apparently NRA officials have given little consideration to this problem as they have undertaken a campaign to consolidate the codes and reduce the total to 200, thus aggravating the situation.

Such an attitude is typical of NRA policy heretofore. It is an attitude which has discounted in advance each complaint and each outcry of injustice as a selfish and malicious attempt to obstruct recovery plans. In this intolerance of criticism lies the most serious menace to the recovery program.

NEW 'TRAGEDY' LINK FOUND

International News Service.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 16.—A woman who police believe was an eyewitness to the anti-climax of the "American tragedy" slaying of Freda McKechnie—Bobby Edwards' supposed second trip to the scene of the crime—is to be called to bolster the commonwealth's case against the 21-year-old mine surveyor, it was learned today.

The woman is Mrs. Kathleen Portington, of Plymouth, who saw an automobile that looked like Edwards' car drive onto the beach at Harvey's Lake about 4 a. m. on July 31, stop a moment and then race away. She is believed to be the only person who may have seen either Bobby or Freda at Harvey's Lake on the fatal night.

Police believe it was Edwards returning to the beach to get rid of Freda's clothes in the small hours of the morning after he blungeoned his neighborhood sweetheart, an expectant mother, to clear the path for his newer love for Margaret Crain, a music teacher.

BUTLER HOME REPORT DUE

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Isabel F. Pelly, state welfare department investigator, was due in Harrisburg today with a report on her study of alleged mismanagement at the Butler County Home.

Before leaving Butler last night at the completion of her two-day investigation, ordered by Mrs. Alice I. Liveright, head of the state welfare department, Miss Pelly's only comment was:

"There is nothing I can say until I make my report to Mrs. Liveright."

During her investigation, Miss Pelly discussed mismanagement and mistreatment charges with the home's 140 inmates. District Attorney Edgar H. Negley, who has threatened a grand jury probe of the institution's affairs, and Fred C. Herold, suspended superintendent.

3 in Auto Killed When Hit by Bus

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Three persons were killed and two injured when a Milwaukee-bound Greyhound bus rammed into an automobile in suburban Niles Center early today.

The dead, all passengers of the automobile, were Donald Snow and Elmer Norvicki, both of Chicago, and an unidentified girl.

RAIL PENSION LEVY MADE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Railroad Retirement Board today ordered all Class I railroads to immediately pay to the United States Treasurer one-tenth of 1 per cent of their payrolls for July to start the fund for the railroad pension law. The assessment amounts to $120,000. Payments are to be made by August 25.

This order was foreseen yesterday when attorneys for the board in combating an effort of the railroads to obtain an injunction against operation of the act until its constitutionality could be determined, stated that the board had prepared this order and another calling for the names of all employes who would reach the age of 70 by February 1, 1935.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Mr. Mallon.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—If you do not understand what the government has been doing to silver you need not feel that you are thick headed. The government itself has had great trouble finding out what it was doing.

It took three Treasury announcements over a period of a week to get it straightened out. Now, however, it is thoroughly explained, and it can be fairly said that the announcement means no more than it did in the first place.

The trouble seems to have started in the inside when one Treasury under-official got the idea it would not be wise to disclose that President Roosevelt had authorized a mild inflation. My idea is silver two months ago. He thought it might create a bad impression to let out that fact at this late date. So the insiders say, he kite-proofed it from the original nationalization announcement.

At first was no detailed official explanation of how the Treasury was handling its silver, rumors started to flow immediately. Most of them were wrong.

When these rumors began to affect the government bond market action was taken swiftly. Mr. Roosevelt's cut silver order was given out. Later, an exchange of correspondence between Mr. Morgenthau and Mr. Roosevelt was made public. All the silver cards were then presumably placed face up on the table.

That showed that the only information any Mr. Roosevelt has seen on silver was in the June 14 order. It concerned only old silver held in the Treasury then and not the new silver acquired since. He authorized the issuance of currencies at $1.29 an ounce against that silver, and valued the reserve at $1.29 an ounce, whereas he had paid much less for it.

The inflation thus involved is exactly $33,180,000, which is merely a silver shred among the total. It means nothing.

From the face-up cards you can ascertain, however, that Mr. Roosevelt has not done the same thing with the newly acquired silver. He is issuing money against that only to the extent of the purchase price, and not on the basis of the inflated price of $1.29 an ounce.

Everyone within a mile of the inside believes the President will some day use the newly-acquired silver in the same way he did the old silver. But do not be misled into picturing inflation is coming from that.

The truth is the amount of silver is so small it just cannot affect the credit of the Treasury or appreciably affect the amount of money in circulation. The maximum amount of inflation Mr. Roosevelt could get that way from silver stocks seized and the purchase of the domestic output during the first year is around $220,000,000.

He can use this silver device for real inflation only if he goes into the world market and buys all the silver in sight.

Some who know silver cannot see enough of that metal in the world to permit a major inflation even then. There are estimates that no more than 100,000,000 ounces are available for purchase by us now in India and China.

PLAYBOY HELD IN DEATH OF 'BUTTERFLY'

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16.—For the strange death of Mrs. Lyda Ellert, 24, beautiful "blonde butterfly" divorcee, Phil Richard De Gaston, musician, bon vivant and dabbler in medical science, today was charged with murder.

A coroner's jury found that Mrs. Ellert had died as the result of an illegal operation and recommended that De Gaston be held for trial.

"If they hang me, I'll shoot you."

That is what De Gaston told Mrs. Ellert's friend, Louise Eldredge, the judge testified before the jury. She said Dr. Gaston had agreed to perform the operation on Mrs. Ellert for $50.

Miss Eldredge said that she accompanied Mrs. Ellert to De Gaston's apartment.

George Ellert, contractor, salesman, ex-husband of the "butterfly," gazed stonily at De Gaston during the inquest.

De Gaston did not testify. To police he had denied all knowledge of Mrs. Ellert's death. He was held in lieu of $10,000 bond. His attorney intimated he might seek another post-mortem on Mrs. Ellert's body.

District Attorney's investigators continued their search for men Mrs. Ellert's former husband said had been friendly with her and had given her luxuries he could not afford.

BRITISH PRINCE IN GERMANY

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Prince George of England, on the continent for a holiday, arrived here by airplane from Le Bourget Field this afternoon. The Prince left England Wednesday and remained over night at Paris.

The Prince's plane, an Imperial Airways machine, stopped at Munich only long enough to refuel, and the royal visitor was off again—presumably for some destination in Austria or Jugo-Slavia.

Prince George declined to discuss his journey, but officials of the airdrome later indicated he had started either for Laibach, Jugo-Slavia, or Klagenfurth, Austria, to express sympathy to Alfonso and Victoria, former rulers of Spain, whose son, Don Gonzalo, was mortally injured in an automobile accident and buried near Poertschach-on-Woerther See, Austria.

FIREMEN ELECT NEW OFFICERS

MT. PLEASANT, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Thomas W. King, of East McKeesport, is the new president of the Western Pennsylvania Firemen's Association, whose annual convention reaches its highlight today with a parade of the 800 delegates and their equipment.

King was elected yesterday, together with Joseph Coldsmith, of Mt. Pleasant, as vice president, and William Sharrah, of Braddock, secretary.

JOHNSTOWN, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Delegates to the annual convention of the Central Pennsylvania Firemen's Association at Patton have chosen Harry W. Price, of Lewistown, as their new President.

Other officers elected at last night's session include P. B. Dillman, of Dubois, first vice president.

Son Awarded Tenth Of Ochsner Fortune

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—A court order giving 20 per cent of a fortune estimated to be worth more than $10,000,000 to John Henry Ochsner, the 8-year-old son of the late Washington Henry Ochsner, geologist, was signed yesterday by Superior Judge Lincoln S. Church.

The action confirmed a property agreement made out of court by the three wives and former wives of the posthumous millionaire, who died without benefit of the riches in his Kettleman Hills oil property.

2 Glassport Men Get Terms for Robbery

Two Glassport men were sentenced to workhouse terms for robbery in Criminal Court today. Frank Raszewski, 28, of 537 Indiana avenue, was sentenced to from three to 10 years and Carmack McNellis, of Eighth and Monongahela avenues, received from one to five years. They confessed that on July 29 they held up Joseph Faix, of Glassport, at the point of a revolver, beat him badly and robbed him of $42.

Child Alighting From Trolley Hit

As Rita Ferran, 13, of 155 West Carson street, alighted from a street car at the Wabash Bridge in West Carson street late last night, she was struck by an automobile driven by William A. Goodwin, 43, of St. Joseph's Home for Boys, Protectory street, police said. Rita suffered a broken leg and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Former King Of Fashion 'Broke'

M. PAUL POIRET

Paul Poiret Depends On Charity, Lives In Paris Penthouse

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Still living in his penthouse apartment, but dependent for food and clothing upon charity and a 10-cent daily unemployment dole, Paul Poiret is dreaming of a comeback in the dressmaking realm he once ruled.

The former king of Paris dressmakers said today as he told of his misfortunes:

"I spend most of my time with scissors and cloth. I cut out dresses. Sometime someone will buy one and I will start on the road back to success. I haven't given up."

Out of work for 18 months, he does not know how much longer he will be able to keep the penthouse apartment, sole remaining sign of his former great wealth. The man who 10 years ago was numbered among the most wealthy in France, explained:

"There is a little charity restaurant not far from where I live and friends have been kind about giving me clothes."

Once Poiret's entertainment in his chateaux and his three yachts attracted the aristocracy of the world.

The 1929 crash started his financial downfall, and houses, boats, automobiles and other possessions went one at a time, to meet obligations and pay necessary expenses.

"I stand in line with thousands of other penniless persons waiting to have my card punched and get a few sous."

South Side Woman Victim of Poisoning

OHIO, WEST VA. VOTE HAILED BY G. O. P.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Senator Hastings, chairman of the Republican senatorial - congressional committee, lifted a tentative finger into the political primary winds today and reported that "the Ohio and West Virginia returns must mean something." He said:

"In recent political tests the New Deal has not been faring so well, in fact it has taken a couple of hard knocks.

"Only yesterday Vic Donahey, Independent candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Ohio, wiped off the boards that able congressman, Charles West, who was entered in the race by the Roosevelt administration as an outstanding exponent of the New Deal.

"Not many years ago, when the West Virginia Democracy went to the polls, it had its choice between Clem Shaver, one-time chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and an unknown youngster, Rush Holt. Chairman Farley personally entered Shaver in the West Virginia race, and Holt beat him 2 to 1 in the face of the fact that Holt, if elected, would be too young under the Constitution, to take a seat in the Senate.

"The Ohio and West Virginia returns mean something, for in both states the New Deal's hand-picked candidates were snowed under approximately 2 to 1."

Hasting asserted the administration was trying to build a "Roosevelt party" in place of the Democratic party.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Ohio's political wounds were treated with the ointment of kind words and pledges here as Democrats and Republicans looked over the results of yesterday's primary and prepared for a bitter fight over the "New Deal" in November.

The veteran United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, outspoken critic of the Roosevelt administration, who won the Republican nomination for senator by more than 200,000 votes, received promises of help for the fall campaign from all opposing primary factions.

A. Vic Donahey, former Governor, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination with a lackadaisical campaign in which he spent less than $500, was offered the assistance of national Democratic leaders in his fight against Fess.

Postmaster General James A. Farley and Ohio's junior Senator, Robert J. Bulkley, were among the first to pledge their support to Donahey. Senator Bulkley campaigned vigorously for Congressman Charles West's nomination for the Senate seat. Gov. George White, defeated senatorial aspirant, also promised to help Donahey.

Tick, Tock! Wife Screams and Thief Flees

But the physician's wife heard the ticks of the clock fading away and screamed.

Missing Bradford Man Found Drowned

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 16.—A three-day hunt for John Devlin, 64, Bradford politician and oil man, had ended today. His body was found in Canadohta Lake late yesterday by S. T. Cowan, of Pittsburgh.

Member of a fishing party, Devlin is believed to have become ill while alone in camp and to have stumbled into the lake and drowned. Deputy Coroner O. H. Danner indicated no inquest would be held. Devlin was a former County Commissioner of McKean County.

N. Y. ASSEMBLY LAUDS HEARST

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—By unanimous vote, the Assembly concurred with the Senate in adoption of a resolution praising William Randolph Hearst for his forceful presentation, in his newspapers, of the fundamental truths and traditions of our government.

The resolution, sponsored by Senator John J. McNaboe, New York Democrat, went through both houses yesterday without a dissenting vote.

The resolution praised Mr. Hearst for the manner in which he has vividly pointed out through editorials and news columns the grave danger of accepting immediate advantage from some governmental policy without considering that in gaining such advantage, we are sacrificing some great principle of liberty and thus tearing down in a day that which it has taken centuries to build."

The resolution also referred to Mr. Hearst as "a great American" who has been "loyally and faithfully" endeavoring to preach the doctrine of true Americanism.

Blown From Truck By Brisk Wind, Dies

SOMERSET, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Toppled from a truck by a brisk wind yesterday, Harry McClaren, 22, member of the Rockwood CCC camp, landed on a large rock and was fatally injured.

The youth, whose home is in Harrisburg, received a fractured skull and died in a Somerset hospital last night.

LEGION OPENS CAMPAIGN ON CRIME

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 16.—Delegates to the state convention of the American Legion were startled today by a resolution which asked them to vote on three sweeping proposals.

1—Abolish the offices of coroner, of the peace and aldermen, and substitute an appointed prosecutor for the elected district attorney.

2—Establish a state police commission, which would control all police agencies in the state, urge the Legislature to set up a commission to study crime prevention.

3—Change the jury system so that one of 12 jurors are sufficient to return a guilty verdict.

The recommendations were contained in a report of the committee on law and order and drafted by Pennsylvania's superintendent of state police, Maj. Lynn O. Adams, chairman of the legion's law and order committee. The resolution suggests to the Legislature that the commission for the study of law enforcement comprise nine members as follows:

A Supreme Court judge, the Attorney General, a Common Pleas judge, the president of the State Chamber of Commerce, the superintendent of state police, an outstanding representative of a woman's organization, a warden of a penitentiary or the superintendent of a reform school and a warden of a county prison.

The duty of the commission, if is recommended, would be to study the question of law enforcement and "prepare a plan of legislation to the end that the conditions of disrespect for law that exist at the present time may be corrected."

In suggesting the abolition of alderman and justices of the peace, the committee's report recommends that there should be established in their stead a "sufficient number of magistrates who should be learned in law." These magistrates, the report suggests, should be salaried and their courts should be courts of record with authority to hear and dispose of minor misdemeanor cases.

The report recommends the appointment of prosecuting attorneys by a department of justice instead of the present system of electing district attorneys. In all cases except capital crime where the death penalty is imposed, the report recommends that a majority of nine of the 12 jurors should be sufficient to convict and that where the death penalty is invoked the verdict should be unanimous.

The committee recommends a change in the system of paroles and pardons to the end that a uniformity of administration and treatment "in keeping with justice and humanity" be maintained through a department of correction. The report states that the average age of the penal population of Pennsylvania is 25.

POSE AS POLICE; KILL VICTIM

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—A quintet of gunmen pulled Frank Toner, 38, from an automobile early today and shot him to death.

The assassins, pretending to be members of a police squad, drew alongside the Toner car and ordered the victim, a friend and two girl companions to get out. Then five bullets were fired into Toner's body.

Police said they believed the slaying was linked with the gun killing of Jerry Pilot, former alcohol peddler, Monday.

Fatal Farm Shooting Mystifies Officials

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 16.—George Wilgus, 48, of Dunbar, Pa., near Connellsville, was shot to death this morning on a farm at Kingan Hill, eight miles east of Dunbar. An investigation disclosed that farmers in the Kingan Hill district have been bothered greatly by corn thieves. It was tentatively believed that Wilgus, killed by a shotgun charge, might have been mistaken by a farmer in this district for one of the corn pilferers.

Steals Relief Orders, Goes to Workhouse

Allen Johnson, Negro, 18, of 1720 Arcena street, was sentenced to from six months to two years in the workhouse by Judge James H. Gray in Criminal Court today for larceny. Johnson admitted he stole two food orders issued by the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board from a mail box at a residence on Wiley avenue, but told Judge Gray his mother was sick, his sister had died recently and he took the food for his mother.

Student League Plans Activities at Pitt

Leaders in the Pittsburgh branch of the National Student League announced today that they would carry on a more militant program at the University of Pittsburgh than ever before due to the recent dismissal of Dr. Ralph Turner.

Herbert Robbins, member of the Harvard University Student League, will address the local organization at a meeting at the Workers' Center, Phillips and Murray avenues, tomorrow night.

Held for Murder In Poor Home Death

Charles Gordon, 34, watchman at the Improvement of the Poor Home, 1101 Webster avenue, was held to the grand jury on a charge of murder at a Coroner's inquest today into the slaying of Stephen Takis, 45, a resident of the home.

Takis died from a fractured skull following a scuffle with Gordon 10 days ago.

Father Bauer Celebrates Jubilee

FATHER BAUER TODAY

The Rev. Joseph F. Bauer, 72, today began his fifty-first year as a priest.

He celebrated his golden jubilee yesterday at St. Joseph's Church, Bloomfield, where he has been pastor for 33 years.

Father Bauer was born in 1861 in Trevorton, Pa. He was reared in St. Philomena's parish here, and afterwards entered the Redemptorist College at Ilchester, Mo. He was ordained from St. Vincent's Theological Seminary and his first assignment was as assistant pastor at St. Joseph's. Leaving later, he returned 33 years ago as pastor.

The priest estimated the number of children he has baptized as around 3,000. He said he does not keep a record of the marriages and baptisms he has performed.

HEARING DENIED TRUNK KILLER

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, doctor trunk murderess, has been denied a pardon hearing by the state board of pardons and paroles. The plea of her father, the Rev. H. J. McKinnell, was refused yesterday because, it was stated, evidence to warrant a retrial of the case was insufficient.

Mrs. Judd is an inmate of an institution for the insane.

BOGUS COP SHOT AS HIJACKER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Spurred by a speeding order to an experienced detective and shot in the ankle as he tried to escape, Leo Terri, 21-year-old hosiery suspect, was being held for the arrival of police from Pennsylvania.

Sought for four months by Pennsylvania detectives, Terri is accused of taking part in two silk truck hijackings in both of these robberies, police said, he wore a policeman's uniform.

Bids Sought Here For Soviet Mill

Officials of the United Engineering and Foundry Company of Pittsburgh said today that the Soviet government had asked bids for a 72-inch hot and cold continuous sheet strip mill. It is estimated that the mill would represent an expenditure of $15,000,000. It would be used to roll aluminum and hot steel.

A commission from the Soviet government now is in the United States inspecting hot strip mills built by the Pittsburgh company.

Pick Site for New Wilkinsburg P. O.

Wilkinsburg's new postoffice building, to be built with a $390,000 Public Works Administration appropriation, will be erected on a plot now used as a parking lot on Penn avenue, between Rae and West streets, the P. W. Dodge Corporation, building contractors, announced. The ground is 80 by 134 feet.

The purchase price, the announcement said, is $58,000. The remainder of the appropriation will be used in erection of the building.

Take Motion Pictures Of Health Farm Work

Something new is being introduced this summer at the farm of a motion picture camera, which each takes pictures of all activities at the Health Farm of the Volunteers of America, near Wilkinsburg. A projecting machine and screen will be set up tonight to enable the children to see themselves doing the stunts they performed for the camera. In the fall pictures will be held in the Volunteer Building on East Ohio street. Schools, too, and all the summer pictures will be shown.

American Workers Party Plans Meet

The new American Workers' party will hold an open meeting in the Y. W. C. A. in Oakmont street, tomorrow. The purposes and the program of the party will be explained by E. E. McKinney, chairman.

WIFE DIVORCES CYRUS EATON, FINANCIER

AKRON, O., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—On the grounds of "ment l cruelty" Mrs. Cyrus S. Eaton, wife of the Cleveland financier, yesterday was granted a divorce here in Common Pleas Court.

Neither of the Eatons was present when Judge Arthur W. Doyle granted the decree. The financier was reported to be vacationing at Deep Cove, Nova Scotia, and his wife was said to be in London, England.

Depositions presented on behalf of Mrs. Eaton asserted she and her husband had not lived as man and wife for seven or eight years and that Eaton frequently absented himself at Deep Cove, refusing to take Mrs. Eaton along although their children sometimes accompanied him. No answer was offered on behalf of Eaton.

Judge Doyle ruled that the couple's seven children, all except one of whom are over 16 years of age, may choose for themselves the parent with whom they wish to live.

An elaborate property settlement was attached to the decree. It provides that Mrs. Eaton shall receive the use of "Arrow Cottage" and 61 acres of land surrounding it, at Northfield, near here, until such time as Eaton pays her $35,000 to purchase another home. The financier retains his larger residence not far from the cottage.

Eaton's wealth was depleted by several million dollars as the result of the depression and his sensational but costly legal fight a few years ago when he led the opposition to the attempted merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

COURT UPHOLDS MUSIC'S POWER

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The healing properties of music were proclaimed in Superior Court here today in a decision by Judge Thomas F. Graham awarding $10,000 worth of musical instruments to Mrs. Louis Strohauer, Fresno music teacher.

The instruments were willed to Mrs. Strohauer by the late Mrs. Frances Collins, who stipulated that the instruments were to be used by the Fresno teacher "in experimenting in healing through music and color."

Arthur Latnow, San Rafael banker named as executor in the will, filed a protest, contending the heirs could sue the executor on the ground the bequest was not valid. He insisted the purpose was impossible of fulfillment.

Judge Graham held the bequest valid.

'Day Campers' Plan Exhibition Tuesday

The Y. M. & W. H. A. "day campers" will hold an all-day exhibition at the "Y" Tuesday. Activities will be supervised by Art Schatz, physical director, and the "Y" camp committee. The program will include a play on Flagstaff Hill, Schenley Park, a health movie, a minstrel show, a dance exhibition and a swimming meet.

Lightning Fires New P. O. Building

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Fire caused by lightning broke out today in a room on the top floor of the new Postoffice Department building, but was put out quickly by firemen after turning off all power in the huge structure.

BIGAMIST WINS PAROLE BY PLEA

Fred Sawyer, known as "Tom Sawyer" 25, a carnival employe of Charlotte, N. C., pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy before Judge Joseph A. Richardson today and was placed on probation for one year.

Sawyer admitted that he had married twice, but said that he had been told by a lawyer that his first marriage was null and void because wife No. 1 was already married.

The charge against Sawyer was brought by Mrs. Helen Hofer, of 16 Geranium street, North Side, mother of Virginia Mae Parker, 22, wife No. 2 of Sawyer.

Glassport Outing Delayed by Rain

Rain caused the Glassport Community Association picnic scheduled for today at Olympia Park, to be postponed until Tuesday, according to L. H. Jarauch, chairman of the program. The baby show, popularity contest and sports program, to be judged by Pittsburgh and McKeesport newspaper representatives, will be held then.

Assemble Exhibits For Ebensburg Fair

Exhibits for the Ebensburg fair are rapidly being assembled by Cambria County merchants as fair week, September 3, approaches. The agricultural displays at the fair are expected to be of unusual interest this year, according to Granger President Ira Bloom.

ARTISTS WANT UNION NOW

BALTIMORE, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Baltimore artists are tired of the old Roman theory that hunger is the teacher of the arts.

Three squares a day, a bit of home cheer to jingle and something better than a garret, in their opinion, would produce much better art.

To this end, a mass meeting of artists has been called tonight for formation of the Artists' Union of Baltimore to see if something can't be done to produce more regular eating for those who wield the palette and brush.

Pop Bottles Injure Homestead Woman

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Findley, of Lincoln palace Home, Homestead, was recovering today from injuries she received when a case of pop bottles tumbled down a truck as it collided with a street car at Seventh and Eighth avenues yesterday, according to Homestead Hospital officials. Pop bottles broke and streams of pop washed down the street.

W. VA. RAIL FIRM UNDER FIRE AT STEEL PARLEY

Charges that the West Virginia ...l Company of Huntington, W. ... had refused to bargain collectively with employes who were members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers were placed before the National Steel Labor Relations Board sitting in the Federal building here today.

The charges were voiced by Attorney Charlton Ogburn, representing the Amalgamated.

Ogburn contended that approximately 80 per cent of the company's employes were members of the Amalgamated.

He also charged that the company was fostering a company union and branded the Huntington Steel Workers' Association as such.

Ogburn petitioned the Steel Labor Board to conduct an election at the plant with the use of secret ballots.

Attorney John H. Meek, representing the company, declared that the company had not denied the right of collective bargaining to employes, but added:

"We do not intend to enter into contractural relations with the Amalgamated unless we are forced to do so."

Meanwhile, Chairman Walter P. Geary, chairman of the Steel Board, announced that he expected some decision on the complaint of representatives of the Amalgamated against the Standard Tin Plate Company, of Canonsburg, Pa.

CALL ELECTION TO END STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The labor relations board today ordered a workers' election in the Minneapolis truckers' strike.

Dan P. A. Donoghue, of the board's staff, is leaving here to co-operate with the Rev. Father Francis J. Haas, who has been in Minneapolis several weeks attempting to arrange a settlement.

Father Haas told the board this morning. Garrison said, that no further progress toward settlement of the prolonged strike could be made without an election.

Employers have requested it, Garrison said, and the board was informed that the union had no objection.

Textile Workers Hit NRA, Map Strike

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The United Textile Workers of America, flaying administration of the National Industrial Recovery Act in speech and resolution, will consider a general strike in the industry unless collective bargaining is assured.

Should such a strike call involve all branches of the industry, including rayon and silk, 750,000 workers would be affected.

Police Judge Dies From Client's Shot

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Shot eight days ago in an altercation with a disgruntled client, Police Judge Howard L. Bacon, 51, is dead today.

Dominick Heffron, 63, will be charged with slaying Judge Bacon, police said. They alleged Heffron fired at the judge after seeking the return of papers in a divorce suit.

MRS. CATHERINE MASON, BEATTY STREET, AT THE NEW SEARS, ROEBUCK STORE TODAY

ADD NEW STORE ON NORTH SIDE

A new Sears, Roebuck & Co. store, located at Ohio and Sandusky streets, North Side, was to open today under the management of J. D. Mordock, veteran employe of the organization.

Increased retail business required the establishment of a new branch, according to an official of the company, who said the store is intended for the convenience of shoppers of the North Side, Downtown and South Hills districts.

A complete line of standard Sears merchandise will be offered at the new sales center, which has been equipped with modern decorations, new fixtures, and a new lighting system.

Among the major lines carried in the new store are plumbing and heating equipment, hardware, kitchen ware, home furnishings, electrical appliances, automotive equipment, sports equipment, men's furnishings, shoes, rugs and paints.

Among the first customers as the store opened was Mrs. Catherine Mason, of 319 North Beatty street, East End, who purchased a bicycle for a young relative.

U. S. MEDIATOR HERE IN STRIKE

Fred Keightly, United States Labor Department conciliator, was due in Pittsburgh today for a conference with Aluminum Company of America officials in an effort to settle the aluminum industry strike.

Keightly heard the union side of the controversy yesterday in Washington, where he conferred with Boris Shishkin, American Federation of Labor economist, working with the National Council of Aluminum Workers.

Labor Board Asked For Gulf Showdown

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The National Labor Board has been asked to force the Gulf Refining Company to meet striking employes' demands.

After unsuccessful conferences with Gulf officials at Pittsburgh, John Falvey, president of the Oil Workers' Union, returned with the word that the firm agreed to take back 100 men within two days, but would take no more "except when and as it needs them." This offer was refused.

Workers on Strike, Salmon Go Uncanned

ASTORIA, Ore., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Thousands of salmon swam unheeded up the Columbia River today with approximately 4,000 fishermen and cannery workers on a strike in a wage controversy.

Gov. Julius Meier told packers the State Conciliation Board would attempt a settlement, but packers are said to have replied it would be useless, since only eight fishing days remain in the summer season.

Union Bus Drivers Strike in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(INS.)—Union bus drivers employed by the Chicago Motor Coach Company went on strike today as the climax of a four months' fight for recognition of the American Federation of Labor affiliate.

Extent of the strike could not at once be determined. Company officials, maintaining that only 67 drivers were union members, announced regular schedules would be maintained. The union claimed 400 members.

TROLLEYS FEAR VICIOUS CIRCLE

O. David Zimring, counsel for the street car men's union, today was to continue questioning Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, at the hearing of an arbitration board, which is trying to settle wage and working condition difficulties between the company and its 1,800 conductors and motormen. Fitzgerald, who took the stand late yesterday, will be the last of the company's witnesses to be questioned.

Testifying yesterday the vice president declared that in his opinion more jobs would be saved by adhering to the present wage scale than by insisting upon higher wages and shorter working days.

Higher unit costs would result from raising the wage scale at this time, Fitzgerald said, which would mean reduction in service to the public. A loss in patronage, which probably would follow this, would mean a drop in revenues, and this in turn would result in a "vicious circle" of downward trends that would be detrimental to both car operators and the riding public. He concluded:

"Our major problem now is the reduction of unit costs, which would be impossible were we to be compelled to meet the demands made by the union."

PUBLIC WORKS TO AID STEEL

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Lagging heavy industries will be given a sharp boost within the next few months.

Public Works Administration officials said today a shift in the character of projects being pushed with government funds is expected to benefit especially such industries as steel, metals, construction and heavy fabricated materials of various kinds.

After purely federal projects, such as highway construction, rivers and harbors work, soil erosion and some building provided the aimes of the public works program for months, the trend of non-federal projects is rising rapidly.

The all-time peak of the public works program is expected in September, with more than 2,100,000 persons employed directly or indirectly.

Song Gags Banned On Air

By AIRCASTER

From today no radio is going to be a better institution.

Songs, on the Columbia network at least, will be merely songs. Child sure the dickens have been most excuses for the use of lowcasts about lilies.

They have been sacrificed to the vanity of announcers, band leaders, comedians, writers and comedians who never seemed able to resist the childish whim for twisting the titles into jokes of a sort.

The public, happily, now may sit quietly by its radio without any fear that any minute an orgy of wheezes and gags will break out to ruin the evening.

Song writers may sleep at nights without worrying about the way their material is being tossed around by the would-be smarties.

The ukase which has just been issued is, of course, a slap blow to the ambitions of the wantons, not to mention their pride. But, on the other hand, it is a definite step forward in the progress of polite broadcasting.

No announcer, hatcheter, comedian, nor anybody else, say the executives, is to be permitted to announce a song in any other way than naming its title, except when it is the songs premiere, or when the song involves an interesting story.

Then the extra wordage is to be brief and simple. Comedy treatments of song titles tends to cheapen the musical offering, say the WABC bosses, and they're right.

I remember contemplating homicide the night I heard an announcer say that the band would have to start early because it was going to play "A Thousand Goodnights."

The crisis regarding gagged song titles was precipitated by a musician, who, at odd moments, indulges in comedy.

He made his big mistake with the ditty, "I Saw Stars." In his script he wrote up a piece about his wife making biscuits.

He would ask her who helped her to lift them and she would throw them, and he would say "I saw stars."

That would be the band's cue. Of course, wifey's biscuits are older comedy material than stolen umbrellas and mothers-in-law, but the musician forgot.

An exec read the script and thumbed it out.

Then he called a conference and all the announcers, bandsmen and fellow comics, who had been indulging in the song title gag sport, went topling when the ukase was issued.

Jerome Kern, famous composer and fashioner of such tunes as "Old Man River," and scores of numerous operettas, has signed up to write original half-hour scores for radio, just as I predicted he would a couple of months ago.

The patron who sponsored Phillips Lord in "The Country Doctor" is launching a series of half-hour music shows, over the WJZ web the latter part of next month.

Kern is writing them now, and has a dozen completed.

A FROCK TO BANISH THE AWKWARD AGE

Pattern 1978

Sun-Telegraph Fit Pattern

This is a frock for what used to be called the "awkward age"—the years between 8 and 16. Styles like this have made it one of the most attractive feminine ages.

The model is as young as youth, but designed with the skill of a woman's dress. Look at the front of that bodice with its nicked vest lines emphasized by cleverly placed buttons!

See the way the panel idea is prolonged in the seams of the skirt!

Don't you like the sleeves?—they can be short or long. And please, don't overlook the back view, with that nice pointed yoke.

Pattern 1978 is available in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 takes 3¼ yards 36-inch fabric and ⅜ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

And while you are writing, why not include an order for a fascinating book, crammed from cover to cover with stunning illustrations and captivating descriptions of new fashions, fabrics and other things that make a woman chic . . . THE SUMMER ISSUE OF THE PATTERN BOOK. PRICE 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Police Put to Bed 90 Truck Drivers

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Delaware's law requiring truck drivers to sleep at least eight hours in each 24 was invoked by state police against 90 men last night and yesterday. The drivers took their enforced eight-hour rests at police stations.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Diphtheria Death Is Tragic

Dr. Copeland

It is impossible to guard against a disease when a source of possession is not known. But to immunize to a preventable disease is to need magic.

Diphtheria can be escaped. Statistics show that the great decline in the death rate of diphtheria is due to the protective immunization, obtained by the injection of diphtheria "toxin antitoxin."

Recently a preparation called "toxoid" has been used instead of toxin anti-toxin. Since this new remedy has been brought into use even greater protection has been offered to children. When toxin anti-toxin was first used complete protection against diphtheria was realized in 70 per cent of cases. The remainder received only partial protection. It is much better than that now.

In spite of this marked improvement, there is still a small percentage of persons who do not enjoy complete immunization. It is probable this is due to some special reaction of the body. This accounts for the occasional occurrence of diphtheria in communities where energetic measures have been taken for the eradication of the disease.

For this reason, it is advisable that every child be subjected to a Schick test. This should be done six months after receiving the inoculations against diphtheria. This test enables the physician to determine whether or not the child will contract diphtheria if exposed to the germs of the disease. If the Schick test is positive the child should have the injections repeated.

Bear in mind that the injections are safe, with practically no pain, and, above all, are highly effective in preventing diphtheria. It is a protection that is available to everyone.

I would advise all parents to have their children immunized against the disease. Diptheria is prevalent at all times and adequate protection is imperative if the disease is to be prevented. It is especially common among children between the ages of 2 and 7 years. For this reason it is preferable that injections be given during the first and second years. Children who have not been immunized should have this done before entering school.

If your child has been immunized within the past year, I would advise that you consult with your physician about a Schnick test. If, after this has been made, the child shows immunity or protection against the disease, there is no need for alarm or anxiety. You can be assured that if exposed to the germ of diptheria he will not contract the disease.

Answers to Health Queries

Mother. Q.—My little girl of 2 seems to have lost her appetite. She is a good weight for her age, bright and energetic. Do you thing the trouble may to be due to her teeth?

A.—Yes, teething would have a great bearing on this condition. For full particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

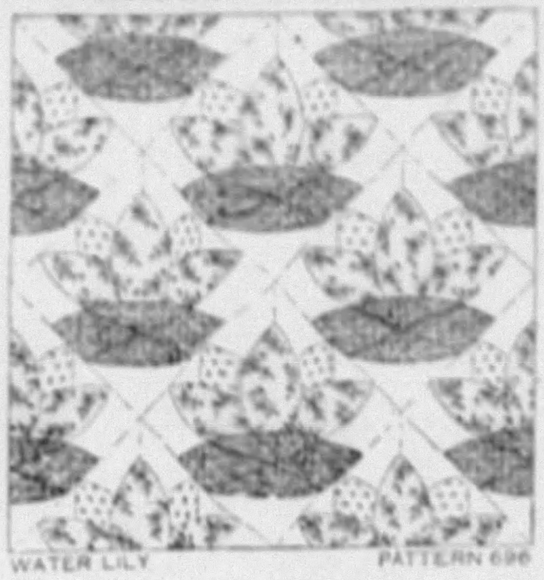
NEEDLECRAFT DESIGNS



WATER LILY — PATTERN 696

We all admire the water lilly, lovely in form and color, floating gracefully on a pond. Here it is in a quilt. Water Lily, and it is just as beautiful and permits equally lovely colorings. It is the type of quilt that gets attentionm wherever shown. The flower may be done in two shades of one material or in scraps of material as preferred.

Pattern 696 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

STATE TO PROBE VENANGO RELIEF

OIL CITY, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—With a special investigator en route to Oil City to investigate charges of alleged discriminations in Venango County relief activities, county relief officials returned denials of politics in their administration.

After the Venango County Workers' League filed protests with Miss H. Buckle, state relief head, Elizabeth V. Schrader, of Harrisburg, was assigned to the investigation.

Police Seize Still In East End Home

East End police today reported raiding the home of Orazio Lovano in South Fairmount avenue and finding two stills, one in operation. Moonshine and mash were confiscated, they said. In East End Police Court, Lano was held for court on a charge of violating the liquor laws.

Elk Grabs Ball And Delays Golf Game

OIL CITY, Oct. Aug. 16.—(AP.)—A fourteen pound golf ball was dropped today when a big Elk walked out of the woods, pawed up a ball off the green and dropped it 50 feet away.

John H. Craven, Pebble Beach, was permitted to bring his ball back to the green for a rule book said.

AVINOFF HOME FROM GENEVA

The isolating influence of the campaign has not hindered the international exchange of the views and opinions of people, according to Dr. Andrew Avinoff, director of Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh today after a six week stay in Geneva, Switzerland.

While in Geneva, Dr. Avinoff served as chairman of a League of Nations committee formed to further the agreement among the great museums of the world. The group is a unit of the League's International Institute for Intellectual Co-operation.

Speaking of the valuable relations existing among scientists throughout the world, Dr. Avinoff said:

"Science will survive any number of dictators. It is the antecedent of internationalism. Institutions everywhere are anxious to extend the benefits of their ideas and services."

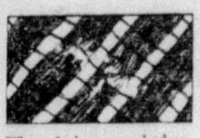
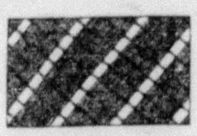
QUICKER and EASIER washing this new way



SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERIES PROVE LONG SOAKING UNNECESSARY WHEN PROPER SOAP IS USED



When clothes are soaked too long (even in plain water) fabrics weaken. The fabric gives away at points of wear. Holes like these develop.

With Silver Dust, you only need to soak clothes 20 minutes. Clothes wash quicker. Fabrics last longer. Colors stay brighter.

With Silver Dust, 20-minute soaking★ is enough

Ladies, this is startling news! Science has just discovered that if clothes are soaked for long periods, even in pure, plain water, that fabrics soon weaken and clothes wear out.

Therefore, you should use a soap that washes gently, yet so quickly that clothes do not need to be soaked longer than twenty minutes.

In Silver Dust, you have just such a soap. It does the work quickly and thoroughly, yet so gently that it is always kind to your daintiest fabrics and your hands. And Silver Dust actually makes colors brighter than new. Anything that is washable, you can safely trust to Silver Dust.

★ So recent are these discoveries about soaking that we have not yet had the opportunity to change the directions on our package which suggest over-night soaking. However, our tests have proved that with Silver Dust, 20-minute soaking is enough.

100,000 SIGN CANAL PLEA TO ROOSEVELT

Armed with more than 100,000 signatures, advocates of the proposed Lake Erie-Ohio River canal will motor to Washington in September to present the bales of petitions to President Roosevelt.

They will ask the President to speed action, since Army engineers have approved building along the Beaver-Mahoning route.

H. B. Warwick, representing the Beaver - Mahoning - Shenango River Improvement Association, in Pittsburgh yesterday, said the recent "Canal Day" had proved extremely successful. Boy Scouts and members of the foremen's organizations in the industrial plants had obtained more than double the number of petition signers expected.

The drive was sponsored by the canal committee of the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce, headed by J. C. Argetsinger, general counsel of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and was carried out by a citizens' committee of 40 leading men from the seven-county area participating, headed by G. F. Hammond, Youngstown attorney.

Warwick was in Beaver Falls later in the day, where he estimated that 10,000 signatures will have been obtained, together with endorsements from borough councils along the river. Lawrence County already has reported 11,053 and Mercer County probably will report an equal number today, he said.

Warwick pointed out that heretofore communities have contributed funds to finance surveys but that the present problem is political rather than an engineering one, since engineers have reported favorably on the route.

Youngstown interests are not asking for the entire 102-mile route. They are chiefly interested in the 35-mile stretch, as the first step in bringing the entire project to completion.

Among those active in the Beaver Valley area are Col. J. P. Reed, Rochester, president of the Beaver Waterways Improvement Association; D. C. Locke, Monaca; W. P. Rice, Laughlin, general manager of the Crescent Portland Cement Company; H. Lee Gorman, Charles Christafek, Ambridge, and Scout Commissioner E. J. Weigand, of Beaver.

Lightning Kills 2 In Tent at Seashore

SEA ISLE CITY, N. J., Aug. 16.—(INS.)—Severe electric storms which struck Southern New Jersey late yesterday left in their wake today two dead, several injured and extensive property damage.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Somers, both 24, of Philadelphia, were killed when lightning ripped through a tent at Whale Beach. Another bolt struck a Boy Scout camp at Alloway, near Salem, knocking two scouts unconscious.

NIGHT SHIFTS RUSH FAIRGROUNDS WORK

Park Must Be Ready For Spanish War Vets Tuesday

Only three working days away, a field meet of the United Spanish War Veterans at the fairgrounds is set for Tuesday. And only a week later, the schedule calls for the start of the second annual County Fair.

But County Commissioners promised that the park will be ready, and if you don't believe it, listen to Commissioner Charles C. McGovern:

So workmen dot the South Park landscape thickly today. And neither storm nor shades of night still their picks and shovels. At the fairgrounds floodlights brighten the scene at night and the work goes on.

MOST OF WORK DONE

Officials say that the biggest part of each job is done. The race track has been graded and needs only more surfacing and fencing. Catfish Run boulevard is near completion, with most of the asphalt surface down and only a mile or two of guard rail fence unfinished. And where drains are needed, workmen labor hardest.

Fairgrounds improvements near completion, too. A grandstand, designed to seat 40,000, needs only a few planks to make it ready for the crowds expected to view the Veterans Field Day Tuesday. Other additions are the brick-veneering of several fair buildings, and the construction of almost a mile of "hitching" sheds to shelter the stock exhibited at the Fair.

Landscape artists have planted evergreens and shrubs in profusion, and their verdant beauty hides much of the torn earth.

At park entrances and other strategic points, stand decorative field guns, while concrete flower pots on stone pillars add a formal touch to bridges and the Joyce Kilmer Memorial circle.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Permanent improvements include a straightened, broadened and smooth surfaced Catfish Run boulevard, which the Commissioners believe will relieve much of the traffic congestion that marred last year's fair.

A federal transient camp, housing 400 homeless men, has been moved temporarily from the fair buildings into an encampment over the hill. Commissioner McGovern laid out the tent city himself.

The fair, which starts August 28, will continue through Labor Day. Closing day for entries in the farm crops, vegetables, fruit, poultry, fur animals, apiary products, home economics, flowers and special displays departments is Tuesday.

Livestock entries close Saturday, August 25. There will also be a horse show, dog show and athletic carnival. The county fair office, Courthouse, supplies complete information and entry blanks.

HINT NEWTROTH FOR PRINCESS

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Princess Juliana, of the Netherlands, has been endowed with another prospective husband by rumor mongers who up to now have been entirely unsuccessful.

The latest of the numerous princes with whom she has been linked in rumor is Prince Charles, of Sweden, nephew of King Gustav.

The Stockholm correspondent of the London Daily Mail says that nothwithstanding official denials, the rumor persists that this engagement will be announced on August 31, the birthday of Queen Wilhelmina.

The Mail's correspondent at The Hague, while not confirming the rumor, says circles close to the Netherlands court regard it as very probable.

Charles is the third royal Swede to whom Juliana has been rumored engaged. In 1930 the reports linked her name with Prince Sigvard, and last June with Prince Bertil.

At least [illegible] betrothals of the Princess [illegible]na have been mistakenly reported.

AIRPORT ROW HEARING HELD

The controversy between the County Commissioners and the operators of airlines over the alleged excessive rates charged for use of the municipal airport will be taken up again in the near future, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern stated following a conference yesterday. The conference was attended by the Commissioners, members of the Chamber of Commerce aeronautics committee, and representatives of the air lines.

Al Williams, speed flier, and a member of the Chamber's committee, told the Commissioners they should offer every inducement to bring aviation lines into the city instead of charging high rates which would hinder local aviation progress.

Attending the meeting were Frank Harper, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Harmar D. Denny, Jr., chairman of the Chamber's committee; Fred Crawford, secretary of the Pennsylvania Air Lines; Al Williams, J. H. Coulter, Central Air Lines official; W. M. McKee, of the McWeesport Chamber of Commerce, and Leslie P. Arnold, of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.

2 Fall to Death Climbing Mountain

NORTHPORK, Col., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Forest rangers today sought to recover the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Bittenbecker, young Northport climbing [illegible] couple, who fell to their deaths on a glacier from near the top of a peak in the mountain region of the Eagle River near here.

The bodies of the couple, who had been missing for more than a week, were discovered yesterday on the glacier-covered side of Mt. [illegible] Banner.

FATHER ON WAY TO JOIN 'LOST' ANN DVORAK

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16—(AP)— Ann Dvorak's long lost dad is on his way back to her.

After "getting acquainted" through daily letters for six months he left Philadelphia today for a Hollywood reunion with the movie star daughter he hasn't seen for 14 years.

Himself a cripple since he ran away from home at 16, Samuel McKim was found by daughter Ann last February after a nationwide search. She insisted he fly to Hollywood then. He said:

"But I thought I'd wait a bit to give us a chance to get acquainted by letter. We've corresponded every day — long, chatty letters. Now I can go to her and not feel strange at the thought that this lovely young woman is my little kid.

"I don't know what the future holds. I'm going to let that take care of itself. Right now the only thing I can think of is seeing Ann. After that perhaps I'll prove that I'm still a good trouper."

Ann was separated from her father when her mother, the former Ann Lehr, divorced him in Philadelphia in 1920. The mother and daughter went to California shortly after the divorce, and Mrs. McKim later remarried.

M'CREA PLANS HUNT BY AIR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16.—A hunting and fishing expedition to make the ordinary sportsman green with envy is planned by Joel McCrea and Henry Stephenson, as soon as the last scene of their picture is finished.

The pair will make an air safari into Mexico in a specially chartered cabin ship, with an experienced pilot and mechanic. They'll carry only the necessary clothing, provisions and firearms and will make long hops to cover the best of the hunting and fishing spots in the southern republic. Big game is the object, as Joel is in search of trophies for his ranch home in the San Fernando Valley.

The only persons to know the schedule of the flying sportsmen will be their families. Joel will be free agent in motion pictures as soon as he finishes "The Richest Girl in the World" at R-K-O.

And his vacation can't wait because he'll be a papa in the early fall.

Moyer to Talk On Sewage Plans

Health Director Ray P. Moyer will address the Henry George Club at noon tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce and discuss the city's plan for a sewage disposal plant. Charles A. Poth, water assessor, will preside.

Mrs. Pinchot To Address Magyars

MRS. GIFFORD PINCHOT

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, will speak on "Civic Betterment" at the Magyar Day outing in Kennywood Park, August 25. The outing will be sponsored by the United Magyar Civic Association, of which Joseph Fabel will be general chairman.

The object of the association is to educate members in civic, social, economic and political history of the United States.

LINK UTILITIES, CITY LAW AIDES

HARRISBURG, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A charge that solicitors of Pennsylvania's third class cities are public utility agents greeted the cities' representatives today at opening of their annual convention. A letter signed by Eddie McCloskey, Mayor of Johnstown, said:

"Not all, but most city solicitors are directly or indirectly compensated by utilities for drawing up some document or searching titles to 'no man's land.'

"Most Mayors and Councilmen are honest and should not allow themselves to be contaminated by mixing with solicitors or Judases."

Legislation to facilitate municipal ownership of utilities will be discussed at the convention.

"It's so old-fashioned to suffer-"

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets for painful periods. I used to suffer severe pains in my back and had to stay in bed most of the day. Your Tablets were recommended by a friend. Since taking them I am greatly relieved of the pains." — Mrs. Caroline Newman, Route #1, Barboursville, West Virginia.

The modern woman can't be bothered with cramps. Periodic pain is not going to interfere with her normal activities if she can help it. And she can.

But even when she feels at her worst, she hesitates to try narcotics or habit-forming drugs or those pain killers which may work too rapidly. She knows that Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets contain no narcotics. They relieve her discomfort without bringing on headaches, dizziness or other unpleasant after-effects. If she takes them in time she can usually escape the pain altogether because this medicine treats the cause of the trouble.

"It's so old fashioned to suffer," says the modern woman. Silly, too, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets cost only 50 cents.

At all Drug Stores.

CLASHES WITH KANE

Whereupon Councilman John Kane, who doesn't like to remember that he helped to elect the Mayor, remarked testily:

"I'm going away Saturday. You can call all the meetings you want to."

McNair threatened:

"I'll do it. I'll call one every 48 hours."

Kane:

"Make it every 24 hours. I don't care."

Council President Robert Garland and Councilman William J. Boost were the only others to appear.

At Garland's suggestion, McNair wrote into the notice of the second special meeting the specific reasons for the call:

1—To vote on the appointment of Bonsall, who would succeed Cornelius D. Scully, who was fired.

2—To consider the Mayor's ordinance to reduce bus fares of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company from 25 to 15 cents.

WILL BE OWN COUNSEL

The bus ordinance already has been drawn up by Bonsall, who was named an assistant solicitor 10 days ago. The 15-cent fare applies to rides only inside the city.

Before going over to council chambers His Honor had announced that he would be his own counsel in the suit brought by Mrs. Rickenbrode, who was discharged after she had staged a cleanup drive of movie mashers. That is, the Mayor said of the suit:

"If it ever comes up!"

Mrs. Rickenbrode claims the Mayor uttered remarks to the effect that she "framed" a man she arrested in a downtown theater July 6 and that these alleged disparaging remarks "deprive her of her good name, credit and reputation and bring her into disrepute as an officer of the law."

PLANS VACATION

Mrs. Rickenbrode's suit probably will not occupy the Mayor's thoughts next week, for he announced that on August 25 and 26 he is taking a short vacation—going to Chicago and St. Louis to address the Henry George clubs.

There were unconfirmed rumors about City Hall today that His Honor would go on record before these audiences as being in favor of the single tax.

He is also in favor, it is accepted, of naming Theodore L. Moritz an assistant city solicitor. Probably this would mean Moritz's resignation as the Mayor's secretary, a resignation which would please other friends of the Mayor.

BONSALL TO PUSH FIGHT FOR METER TAX

Levy Regarded by Mayor and Law Aide As 'Fool Business'

By MILTON V. BURGESS

The city will appeal the adverse meter tax decision to the higher courts, according to an announcement by Attorney Ward Bonsall, special assistant city solicitor in charge of public utility litigation and first choice of Mayor McNair for city solicitor.

The decision to do so was made by the Mayor, Bonsall said. He added:

"As a matter of policy, both the Mayor and myself think it (the meter tax) is a fool business, but that will not prevent us from pressing it to a conclusion in the courts."

Bonsall also announced he is in accord with the policy of campaigning for lower utility rates.

The meter tax decision in Common Pleas Court had held that the proposed $2 levy on meters owned by utilities is a personal property tax and would subject utility properties to double taxation.

$650,000 AT STAKE

The meter tax, sponsored by Councilman John J. Kane, represents a possible revenue to the city of approximately $650,000.

The Mayor always has opposed it, declaring it is a personal property tax and that a heavier tax on land is a more desirable way to raise money.

Whether Attorney Bonsall is confirmed for the post of city solicitor or not, he already holds an important position in the law department, and he leaves no doubt that he will follow the Mayor's ideas to the limit the law will allow. He said:

"If I am confirmed as city solicitor, the interpretation of the law will be up to me. The policy will be up to the Mayor and Council."

Bonsall is an ardent single taxer. His eyes gleam with the same sort of light that fills the Mayor's when he talks about speculators holding land out of use.

He was a member of the Henry George Club in the days before that organization became a rendezvous for political climbers.

Bonsall knows very little about public utility litigation, and says so frankly.

He is a large man, slow of speech, not excitable, and succeeds in conveying the idea of dogged determination.

THINKS RATES HIGH

He has formed some ideas about the way to go about getting reductions in utility rates, which he thinks are too high. He said:

"Utility rates have not been reduced in this depression as other things have been reduced."

Taxicab fares in Pittsburgh have particularly attracted his attention. He said:

"I am familiar with the city of Washington, where there is a 20 cent cab rate in the first zone. You can use a cab there without going broke."

The city is at present an observer in the case of the Zone Cab Company of Cleveland, which has petitioned the Public Service Commission to enter this territory with a low priced cab service.

The city has taken no action to aid the new company in gaining an entrance.

Attorney Bonsall believes the city should also have done some observing at the hearing before arbitrators where wages and working conditions of employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company have been under discussion.

Much information might be gleaned from the testimony, he thinks.

The legal career of Assistant Solicitor Bonsall has not been of the flashy type. He was admitted to the Allegheny County Bar in 1904 after being graduated from Harvard Law School.

He practiced in Pittsburgh in a quiet way until 1919 when he went to Washington to do legal work for the American Red Cross.

Three years later he accepted a position as special attorney in the offices of the director of prohibition, Bureau of Internal Revenue. He drew up licensing forms and regulations which lasted as long as the prohibition law.

He worked four years in that office and returned to Pittsburgh in 1926 and resumed general practice. For a time much of his work was done in Federal Court and was connected with liquor law violations.

In politics, he was a progressive. He never ran for political office.

He took part in a recent successful effort for the repeal of the suspicious persons ordinance, which he had fought unto 1917 when he attacked it in Superior Court.

When the Mayor decided he needed a lawyer to floor his first and foremost antagonist, Charles A. Finley, chairman of the Traction Conference Board, he selected his old single tax associate, Bonsall.

Bonsall argued long on the Finley case and although the injunction was granted, the court took under advisement the point of jurisdiction raised by the Mayor's counsel, and there were some marks of a moral victory about the affair. Also Bonsall had largely used the Mayor's own arguments.

From that time, Bonsall's stock shot up rapidly.

There was talk for a while of a silk-stocking candidate, but that has died down. There is every indication that Attorney Bonsall will be the new city solicitor.

OFFICIALS BACK STATE TICKET

Nine elected county officials were on record today as pledging support of the Republican state ticket in the November election, but how they will go about giving it is not so clear. The nine met yesterday with County Chairman William H. Coleman, and the only contention arose over the candidacy of Representative Joseph G. Steedle for re-election to the Legislature from the Twelfth District.

County Commissioner William D. Mansfield flatly said he would not support Steedle, who has an appeal pending from a two-year sentence to a federal penitentiary for alleged fraud in the November election of 1932. The attitude of Mansfield is representative of the majority of the Republican regulars, who wish Steedle would get off the ticket, but can't compel him to do so.

While there was a unanimity for the state ticket, there was no enthusiasm among some of those present for all candidates, nor did all pledge themselves to work with Coleman.

At least one of those present, though not speaking for quotation, has said he would prefer to be associated with the independent committee being formed by Attorney William B. McFall, and another has said he might not be active in the membership of either the McFall or Coleman committee.

County Commissioners C. C. McClowry and C. M. Bair were pointedly absent. District Attorney Andrew T. Park is on vacation, but is known to be in the regular camp.

Educational problems

The question of higher education has always presented problems to parents and children. What college to attend, what course to take, how to provide the means: these are the most insistent. In solving them, you must be guided by the recognized fact that our modern world demands trained, competent youth . . . able to take its place with a minimum of adjustment. Practical training is the keynote of the day, and parental sacrifice to provide it is doubly justified.

Always in stride with the times, Carnegie Institute of Technology offers educational facilities that are continually broadened to meet the practical demands of the scientific, artistic and industrial worlds.

GOODWILL TOUR SPURS TRADE

By MAX HENRICI
Staff Correspondent.

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 16.—The goodwill tourists of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce made a bold bid for the trade of a territory that lies much closer to Buffalo than Pittsburgh.

Asserting that Pittsburgh is well able to serve the remotest parts of all Western Pennsylvania, they are visiting towns in the northern tier of counties to establish friendly relations.

Bradford met the tourists with a brass band, and at a dinner last night showed cordial interest in the tourists' mission. Stops on today's schedule included Warren, Cory, Meadville and Mercer.

Mayor W. N. McNair, who accompanied the tourists as far as Punxsutawney yesterday, promised to rejoin the caravan this afternoon. On his departure yesterday he forgot his overcoat. He was informed in a jocose telegram that if he did not show up today the coat would be exposed for sale at public auction.

But the Mayor anticipates no ill luck. He picked up a four-leaf clover yesterday, and shortly afterwards a five-leaf one. He gave them to his secretary, Theodore Moritz, and Welfare Director Southard Hay, saying he had no need of talismans.

JUDGE SETTLES FAMILY FINANCE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Benjamin Horwitz, 74, insisted his two sons, Morris and Aaron, should support him. The sons said their father had between $10,000 and $25,000 in his own right.

So Judge Theodore Rosen ordered the father to make a will, bequeathing to the sons the fortune he denied having. That done, he ordered the sons to support their father.

OCCUPATION TAX URGED IN STATE

HARRISBURG, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Immediate calling of a special session of the Legislature to enact an occupation tax to feed Pennsylvania's needy until the first of the year, was advanced today as a solution to the troublesome relief problem.

The same official silence which has puzzled the capital all summer and which has resulted in a merry-go-round of rumors greeted reports of the tax plan.

But the pendulum of gossip swung toward the special session again with word that a Legislative bloc close to Speaker Grover C. Talbot would sponsor the occupation levy as a way out of the crisis.

Whether the plan meets with the approval of the administration could not be ascertained. Gov. Pinchot, cheerful after a rest at his Milford estate, returned to his desk yesterday, saying he still is trying to avoid the special session.

BEAT HER UP AFTER PARTY, BLONDE SAYS

Sun-Telegraph News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.—A gay Hollywood party ended today with the arrest of J. Clark Dean, 34, wealthy broker, on charges made by Florence Horsley, 20, a beautiful blonde motion picture actress.

After fitting from night club to night club for several hours Dean persuaded her to visit his apartment on the subterfuge that he wanted to change his clothes, Miss Horsley told the officers. She added:

"A few minutes after we entered his apartment he started to make love to me. When I resisted, he struck and beat me."

Her cries attracted other tenants of the apartment house and telephoned police. The officers said they found Dean in bed feigning sleep.

The actress, who has played extra roles in films, weighs 102 pounds. Dean weighs 240 pounds, is more than six feet tall.

Dean denied Miss Horsley's accusations.

Manager Retires At Northwestern

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 18.—(AP)—William Dyche, 73, business manager of Northwestern University and after whom Dyche Stadium was named, has retired.

Dyche has been a trustee of the school since 1894. He will be succeeded as business manager by Harry L. Wells, general manager of a firm of surgical equipment manufacturers.

CHEMIST BACK IN IRONS AS SLAYER

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Arville Wilson, young Cleveland steel chemist, was brought back in irons to the United States aboard the liner Pan America today to answer to the charge of murdering pretty Irene De Bolt in the desert near Van Horn, Texas, nine months ago.

Young Wilson was brought from Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, where he was taken from the Canadian National liner Lady Nelson by police on May 5.

Under the name of Robert Jones, he had sailed as a steward but was identified later as Wilson, at identification he admitted to be correct today.

He will be taken to El Paso, Texas, tonight for trial on charges of murdering the 20-year-old Cleveland matron.

He is in the custody of Sheriff A. A. Anderson of Van Horn and District Attorney Roy D. Jackson, of El Paso, who took him in custody at Trinidad.

Wilson was wearing dark glasses and a neat brown suit. He smoke reservedly in answer to questions, but wore a cheerful smile. He said:

"I guess I'm in a spot, but there's one thing I'd like to say. If you have any explanation of how I could have profited by what happened I wish you would call me up at El Paso."

Asked if he knew Mrs. De Bolt, he said:

"Oh, yes, I knew her."

BARRY DEATH ACCIDENT, TWO PROBERS DECLARE

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Five cents apiece here an advance for eight minutes elevators themselves along with their propagandizing as Fifi Lee Almost immediately Eric takes breaks out to a headline rush. His association with the Rockefellers, his industries and foreign accomplishments make him the highest salaried publicity man in the world.

He is reputedly a millionaire, lives in a mansion in East Sixty-fifth street and his daughter has been presented to court. His executive offices in Broad street are more like the editorial rooms of a large publishing plant with writers, subeditors and staff of trained writers.

Soft spoken, with a southern accent, for was born in Cedartown, Ga., a id his actual newspaper work has been limited to a few years. He was first to see the possibilities of a top-hat and other window dressin' which caused a ete agent to be known as a "public relations counsel." Ahem!

When occasion demands he makes a flowery speech or writes a book. But chiefly he is an adviser and confidant of capitalistic classes. Every now and then his status as a propagandist seems in eclipse, but sooner or later he serenely bobs up again. They call him "Clinging Ivy."

New York's celebrated goose restaurant, dimitt Gansemeyer's, has gone the way of so many old-time eating places the past few years. A "For Rent" hangs in the window of the deserted room it occupied on West 13th street. It was opened in 1852 and specialized in the identical goose menu of its opening until the closing. Its patrons were conspicuous for their avoirdupois.

Save for one occasion, Victor Herbert never failed to lead the orchestra at the premiere of his operettas or musical shows. The one exception was "The Lady of the Slipper," which he wrote for C. B. Dillingham. The rehearsals continued almost to curtain time. The long strain caused a dust-up between Dillingham and Herbert and the latter laid down his baton and walked out. But they made up next day.

They were talking at the Biltmore of a character along Larceny Lane who had isolated himself from decent fellows by continued double crossing and was welcome nowhere. "Don't worry," chucked in Paul Whiteman, "that guy will never be homeless as long as there are rat holes."

George Givot, who scrambles his English on the stage and in the movies under the billing of the Greek Ambassador, cannot read a word of Greek. He picked up the patois at a corner shoe

Thingumbobs: Rae Dooley still takes dancing lessons . . . Marshall Neilan is considered Hollywood's most expert improviser on the piano . . . Louis Bromfield sports a colored handkerchief with evening clothes . . . Europe regards W. R. Hearst as one of America's most thorough sight-seers . . . Marie Dressler, with her last $800, was going to Paris to open a pension when Irvin Cobb persuaded her to have one more try at Hollywood . . . John Ringling is looked upon by art dealers as the town's shrewdest bargain driver . . . Vice President Garner's favorite dish is jerked goat meat with frijoles . . . Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt has never bobbed her hair . . . Clair Adams Hampton is studying for grand opera.

The stories go that Col. Lindbergh, so rarely seen in Manhattan by day, frequently motors about town after the population has settled down to its first leg of sleep. He drives, well goggled, in a roadster from the Morrow Englewood estate where he lives, down Riverside drive and across quiet cross streets but never invades the brightly lit sections such as Broadway. Frequently he takes a turn in Central Park, too. Sometimes Mrs. Lindberg accompanies but more often is alone. Now and then he has been recognized by late wayfarers. At least they say so.

Broadway banter: A blonde friend of Wilson Mizner once appeared at Churchill's to dance with Lew Brice. Next evening she appeared on the same dance floor with Monte Brice. As she swirled past Mizner's table, he chirped: "Brice disease, eh?"

COL. PEYTON, U. S. A., 8TH CORPS CHIEF OF STAFF, ARRIVING BY AIR FOR CONVENTION

TUNNEL LEADS POLICE TO STILL

East End police raided a 75-gallon still after discovering it through an underground passage early today and arrested one man.

The raid was at 142 South St. Clair street, police said. Frank Shannon, 26, arrested, denied any connection with the still. Also seized were 20 barrels of mash, moonshine whisky and sugar.

Police said the still was discovered after following a tunnel from a garage to the house.

Numbers Suspect Gets Hearing Tonight

Arrested as a "pickup" man in the numbers lottery, Mariano Alessi, 721 Fifth avenue, Coraopolis, will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan in Sewickley tonight.

Report of Baker Board Hailed By Fliers

A more highly developed air service for the army is seen by Col. E. G. Peyton, who was in Conneaut Lake Park today to attend the convention of the 80th Division Association, of which he is national commander.

Col. Peyton arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., where he is chief of staff of the Eighth Corps Area.

Asked about his view of the future of army aviation, he said:

"We're all enthusiastic over the report of the Baker board, which I think expresses the ideas of the men in the service. It's up to Congress now to follow through."

Have swifter, better planes made other branches of the Army obsolete?

"No, important as the air arm is, it must operate in conjunction with other branches of the service."

The Old Maestro— And We Mean Old!

GREENFIELD, N. H., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Hiram Bailey and his snappy orchestra have summer visitors here guessing.

As strangers listen outside the dance hall to the lively strains from within their mental picture of the musicians is anything but accurate.

Hiram is 84. Others in the band are Fred Warren, 78; Will Bryant, 80, and John Draper, a 70-year-old youngster just coming along.

TRAP SUSPECT IN AUTO THEFT

Bert Brown, 19, of 1610 West North avenue, was held in Central Police Station today in connection with the alleged theft of an automobile, and his companion, who escaped after a chase in Duquesne way last night, was being sought by police.

Brown was brought down from the girders of an overhead railroad trestle at Eighth street and Duquesne way, where he had hidden, police said. The chase began when Brown and his companion attempted to enter a stolen automobile parked on the Allegheny wharf.

Frank Richert, of 2908 East street, owner of the car, and his employe, Louis Delien, of 105 Jacksonia street, found the car on the Allegheny wharf eight hours after it had been stolen from Fourth avenue and Market street.

WALL IN PARK COLLAPSES

A 35-foot section of a retaining wall in Frick Park was in ruins today because the Civil Works Administration laborers who built it failed to reinforce loose stones in the structure with a concrete binder, it was said.

Heavy storms of the past few days caused the collapse of part of the wall which was constructed on a hillside paralleling Nine Mile Run.

Nathan Schein, city engineer in charge of park activities, said the concrete binder was omitted because the wall was intended to be temporary. Erection of a solid wall would have resulted in needless expense, he said, as it would have to be razed to make way for a permanent one.

FOOD DEALERS NAME OFFICERS

George Schaefer, of Cincinnati, today had been named president of the National Food Distributors' Association to succeed E. W. Rosenheim, of Chicago.

Other officers named were H. H. Blauvelt, of Brooklyn; Lew Eger, of Sandusky, O., and Harry L. Carpel, of Washington, D. C., vice presidents; E. J. Martin, Chicago, secretary and A. A. Kirchhoff, of New York, treasurer.

The next convention will be held in Detroit.

LOTTERY AGENT LINKING COX PAROLED

500,000 Tickets Seized By Raiders Shown In Court

Edward J. McMackin, alias Eugene McMackin, 45, of 348 Forty-second street, who testified in court today that he had been working for Father James B. Cox during the past two years selling auto raffle tickets, was placed on parole for two years by Judge Joseph A. Richardson.

Exhibited in court were 500,000 lottery tickets, including Father Cox auto raffle tickets, sweepstakes race and baseball pool tickets, which police testified they had seized July 31 in a raid on McMackin's home.

McMackin admitted that he had sold the race and baseball lottery tickets also.

Testifying for the prosecution, Policeman M. H. Corcoran, one of the raiders, identified the seized tickets and also some printing apparatus and plates confiscated in the raid.

After the arrest, Corcoran said that he had heard that McMackin had threatened "to get his job," or have him moved.

McMackin interrupted the testimony to say:

Several character witnesses took the stand to testify in McMackin's behalf.

Judge Richardson then asked McMackin if he would stay out of the lottery racket if he were given a chance.

Upon McMackin's assurance that he would do so, the judge placed him on parole.

Father Cox today admitted that McMackin had been aiding him in his bread line work but declared he did not know that McMackin had been selling race and baseball lottery tickets on the side.

Bee Stings Driver, Automobile Crashes

The sting of a bee caused Jack Jablo, 22, of 1433 Jancey street, to partially wreck his automobile as he drove near Leechburg yesterday, where he is employed as a druggist.

When stung, Jablo lost control of his car and drove into an embankment. He was taken to the Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum, suffering minor injuries.

MISS SELMA LAWTHER . . . THE MAYOR GAVE HER A "JOB"

'Tackles' His Honor In Drug Store and He Makes Deal

Selma Lawther has a job on her hands.

An unemployed stenographer, Selma tackled Mayor McNair in a downtown drugstore and asked just like that, for a job.

Selma said she'd just reached the voting age and she would be impressed by any officeholder who put her to work.

So the Mayor said sure, he'd be glad to give Selma a job—a good job, too—if she could see that the pieces the papers printed about him were more favorable.

So Selma said she would; didn't say how.

Selma lives at 507 Lloyd street, East End.

2 RIDING RAILS HELD IN KNIFING

Two men were held by West Homestead police today and six Negroes, three of them reported to have been shot, were being sought in connection with the slashing of one of the prisoners last night.

John Sullivan, 25, said by police to have been released from a penitentiary at Dallas, Tex., where he served a four-year term for automobile thefts, was slashed on the neck and ear with a razor by one of the Negroes in a fight which began after they alighted from a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train in West Homestead. Sullivan and a companion, Wilber Newson, 21, of Jacksonville, Fla., told Police Chief David Lindberg they were attacked when they jumped off the train.

After slashing Sullivan, the Negroes fled.

ELITE DIXIE DEB FILM CHORINE

Daughter of Ira Yale Sage II, whose father built the Southern Railroad, grand-niece of Russell Sage, the financier, and a great-great-grand-niece of Eli Yale, founder of Yale University, the tall, brunet beauty came here for a try at the movies because of a financial stringency. She explained:

"I need the money. I made my social debut last winter in Atlanta and then cast about for something to do. I worked under an assumed name in the 'Scandals' in New York, then decided to try for a place on the screen."

Texas Longhorns Roam Plains and Whatnots of Jersey

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Texas longhorn cattle are roaming all over New Jersey these days. They are wilder than Scotch thistles.

There ain't any rain in the West so Jersey said, "send them on."

Now Jersey is hearing the thunder of 10,000 steers, and the Newark drugstore cowboys are singing "My Home on the Rolling Plain."

Why not take those cows right up to Radio City and let them hear "Go Along, Little Doggie" direct from producer to consumer?

Jersey City department stores are running out of string because the floorwalkers are making it into lariats.

SHOT REMOVING GUN FROM CAR, THEY SAY

A Coroner's deputy and city detectives today agreed the fatal shooting of John W. Barry, former detective and police inspector, was accidental.

After an investigation Deputy Coroner James E. Carroll said he was of the opinion that Barry had accidentally shot himself while unloading a 32-20 rifle from an automobile in his garage. An autopsy performed by Dr. T. S. Helfield on orders of Coroner William J. McGregor disclosed shock and hemorrhage due to a gunshot wound in the head as the cause of death. The bullet had passed through his head, which revealed powder burns.

A fresh scar on the side of the head was taken as an indication that the rifle had "jumped" as it was discharged.

Clyde S. Ederburn, former captain of detectives who returned with Barry yesterday morning from a fishing trip, said today:

"John got an earache Saturday, went to a doctor in Warren, I believe, and the doctor suggested he come in and see his doctor. Otherwise he would have stayed another week . . . It certainly was an accident, it couldn't have been otherwise."

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. Saturday at St. Paul's Cathedral.

FOUND BY WIFE

The body was found yesterday by his wife, Frances Kline Barry. His only sister, Miss Catherine Barry, is in Hawaii.

Frank Crowley, acting sergeant of the homicide squad, made the detectives' report of accidental death. Crowley's report said:

"While taking a rifle from his automobile in the garage in the rear of 105 Halket street, the gun was accidentally discharged, the bullet going through John Barry's head and killing him."

Crowley and Barry were sworn in as members of the police force on the same day—June 1, 1910—and had been friends since.

From that day Barry, known as an "honest cop," was never on the "books." His record was clean.

Barry, handsome and shy, honest and courteous, was one of the best-liked officers in recent police history.

Edward J. Brophy, former superintendent of police, who resided with the Barrys since his youth, was shocked. Theirs was one of the rarest of friendships. Mutual friends said that until Barry married seven years ago they had made their wills so that each was the beneficiary of the other. As the detective team of Brophy and Barry they had become known nationally among police.

Brophy gave his version of the tragedy. He said:

"John had come home from the fishing trip and had taken his clothes out of the car. Later he went back into the garage. I was in the house when I heard Mrs. Barry calling me.

"At first I thought John was sick, had a hemorrhage. Then I noticed the gun lying there. It appears to me now, that I'm calmer, that he probably was taking the rifle out of the car, before going to town.

"The bullet went through his head and lodged in the garage door. It may have fallen or caught and discharged. It's terrible. He hadn't a worry in the world."

TRAGIC CASE

It was to Brophy, called as one of the great detectives in this country, his most tragic case.

Some friends suspected, at first, that Barry had met foul play. But police found that access to the garage was impossible, the outer doors being locked, except through the door from the garden. A visitor would have been noticed. The gun was one of Barry's hunting rifles. It had only one shell in it and the bullet was found lodged in the garage door. The gates were locked, as a police dog Barry owned didn't like strangers.

Crowley took the spent slug, while Deputy Coroner James E. Carroll had the rifle.

Crowley said:

"I am certain it was accidental death."

Gang Toils to Level Off Vacant Lot Near Mercy Hospital

The gang around Mercy Hospital is hunting a steam shovel today to help level off the vacant lot at the corner of Vickroy and Magee streets.

The ground is to be used as a playground which the boys are building themselves, after failing to get one from the city. They are working under the direction of one of their friends, William Lohman, of 1109 Ivanhoe street.

Even the smaller fellows are wielding picks and shovels in an effort to finish it by next week.

And after the playground is complete the boys promise to let the girls of the neighborhood use it, too.

Police Have Busy Day Amusing 'Lost' Child

Golden-haired Mary Koshinsky, 4, was back in her home today, and McKeesport's policemen had lost that worried look.

Her name and address were as much a mystery to Mary as they were to Officer Whalen, so he turned his charge over to Desk Sergt. Fred Krieling.

For eight hours the sergeant and a number of officers bought ice cream cones, made faces, told stories and dashed to the windows to keep Mary from falling out.

When the news of the child's whereabouts finally reached the Koshinsky home, at 903 Ridge street, McKeesport, her father, Mike, went to the station where he was greeted with open arms by the harrassed officers.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Man About Town

Interesting about the original Sunday school class in the "Green Pastures" show—all have outgrown their roles . . . A visiting celebrity defends his recent marriage to a much older socialite thusly: "She was the most beautiful woman in New York 20 years ago."

In his next movie Jack Oakie star by any law of screen astronomy, will rate third billing behind J. Penner and his dirk . . . Thai Lesa Rub, a gorgeous Viennese canary at the Chateau Moderne is a cousin of the late Dollfuss . . . Billy Rose's newest song hit: "Have a Little Dream on Me" has more charming futility than a Dorothy Parker poem . . . "You're very welcome, Toots." The coolest spot in town, it seems to me, is the balcony of the Casanova de Paree — the refrigeration up there is like California after sundown—topcoat weather.

Those fancy and costly menus in the Broadway spots are paid for by the wine merchants . . . A Cuban beach house now pays for the table clackers in one of the local asylums . . . A saving to the joint of about $125 per week . . . They say that when Henry Hull, the star of "Tobacco Road," resigned (and was succeeded by James Barton) Hull said to the cast: "I'm sorry, but I guess the show will close in another week" . . . That was about six weeks ago! . . . The Hull you say! . . . Gracie Barry is a dear, dear thing, but she sings: "With My Eyes Wide Open" with her pretty orbs closed!

Many secret police officers are reading a former confrere's book: "The American Black Chamber" by Herbert O. Yardley—a secret story about the Secret Service . . . Amusing about Bing Crosby . . . The Century of Progress offered him $5,000 to sing but two songs one day . . . They offered to bring him there from H'wood in a special plane . . . He reneged on the ground "planes were dangerous, they go too fast" . . . They decided to send the Zephyr to him, the fastest train . . . It does 75 miles per hour . . . Bing refused with the same fear . . . Yet you can't keep him from driving his car at less than 80! . . . Their names escape me, but no matter—it is one of those items . . . They left New York for Rio (in South America) to teach them "The Carioca"—in Rio!

A nut is making the rounds alleging that Lieut. Becker, who fried at Sing Sing with Gyp the Blood, et al., is alive in China . . . You can safely give odds he isn't . . . The cemetery that tenants Mr. Dillinger is "where Gatling, the inventor of the Gatling gat, also dwells" . . . I can listen to "Man On the Flying Trapeze" the way it is done on West Fifty-fourth street—a la travesty, with an acrobat swinging on one—with the enchanting Kay Cameron in a lap chair out front signing at his every stunt . . . Sammy Watkins' simile got a titter. He was describing a certain married couple this way, as they danced to his music: "They danced as if they were specially hired and were doubtful of being paid" . . . Of all things! . . . The way that movie house bills "Manhattan Melodrama" . . . "Now playing: Manhattan Melodrama, the picture for which Dillinger gave his life while you give only 15c!"

Of course it couldn't be done on the streets or in the open spaces, but refrigeration is already in some trains, many movie theaters, night clubs, restaurants and homes . . . Coming over the desert and the other parched areas from California last week was a joy . . . From the Chief's windows you could see the thousands of dead cattle on the plains (that you read about), but the 70 temperature throughout the trip kept you alive and happy . . . If it were compulsory to have 70 degrees in every cab, subway train, office, factory, et cetera — I'll wager there'd rarely be a headache or a temper lost . . . Man would never be irritable, perhaps . . . And never think of starting a war . . . It's merely a theory, of course . . . I mean well, at any rate.

France has a law which removes the children of any executed man or woman to another part of the land—from their former environment . . . All of it is done secretly by the state to avoid knowledge of it or understanding by the children themselves . . . Thus the stigma is erased . . . New York state might follow the example—with the Antonio tots, poor little things . . . And their names should be changed, too . . . I leave it all in Mrs. Roosevelt's lap . . . Damon Runyon is like this. He wrote a piece called "A Million Dollar Ransom" and asked 15 Gs for it from the Universal studios . . . But when he learned that an old friend, Murray Roth, would direct it (and that it would help Roth), Runyon cut his price to $1,000 . . . Such a man! . . . The neatest plug for his new book—"Blue Plate Special" is just your dish.

Add thumbnail descriptions: Stan Laurel: A sign without words . . . Kate Smith: A tent with curves . . . Fannie Brice: "Little Miss Mockey" . . . Oliver Hardy: Kewpie Doll with a mustache . . . Polly Moran: A parrot brought up by a sailor . . . Ned Sparks: Any finance company collector . . . Paul Draper: Fred Astaire with Eleanor Powell feet . . . Peggy Joyce: Brigham Young in skirts . . . John Barrymore: The Man on the Flying Trapeze . . . William Gaxton: A small-town big-shot . . . Milton Berle: A big-town small-shot . . . George Jean Nathan: A hard lead pencil . . . Max Baer: Tarzan showing off . . . Elizabeth Bergner: A snowflake under a microscope . . . Myrna Loy: The lovely who is always somebody else's girl . . . Bill Robinson: A chocolate bar—with a heart.

Home Again

The Ward Sisters, Betty and Helen, Pittsburgh singing and dancing comediennes, are back home again, after a road trip, and they are "flying high" in a local airport night club. These young artists are well known professional entertainers who have just completed a long tour that included stage and cabaret engagements in the East.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

If Al Golden heeds all the comment that is made about his play "The Female of the Species," his head will be swimming. Everybody seeing the supposed drama which is strongly tinctured with comedy, appears to think that it has possibilities of some kind and endorses in the Armeld School Theater are enthusiastic in their response to the performances. Discount this in some degree as local loyalty and still there will be left plenty to indicate that those who see the play are genuinely entertained, and not a little amazed, by the production as a whole. There are at least five parts in which the actors have opportunities to score personal achievement honors and the smoothness of the entire performance ranks it among the best things technically, the Civic Playhouse has done. Among the varied opinions as to what Mr. Golden should do to make his play more perfect is one that, inasmuch as the supposedly central female character now appears to be secondary to prison guard, played so well by Chester Wallace, the work be remolded with that idea wholly in view. Thus it would be a satire to show how "professionally" guards and others inside a prison view the final moments of a condemned person. Mr. Golden, in his play, shows himself to be an adept at dialogue and building up situations, the fault in it seeming to be that the full dramatic tempo is achieved in the first act, and that thereafter the grade is descending instead of ascending. But there is no denying that it does have its moments of heavy drama. They may be misplaced, but there they are.

Tryouts for "Death Takes a Holiday," to be produced October 1, 2, 3 and 4, by the Hill Top Community Playhouse of Knoxville, will be held in the South Hills Y. M. C. A. Friday and Monday, August 17 and 20. There is said to be a possibility of the merging of the Epworthian Players and the Hill Top Community Playhouse.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

Let's get a quick binge at some of the "peculiarities."

Toby Wing is the "kid" of the Paramount lot. She seldom appears in roles, but is always used by the publicity department when the other players are busy.

Miss Wing

Dolores Del Rio, one of the really lovely camera subjects, is difficult to photograph because she insists upon wearing white—and that often conflicts with the proper backgrounds.

A strange thing happened at Paramount—When a writer turned in a story to fit "The Big Broadcast of 1935" title, the studio bosses said:

"This is too good for the radio idea. We'll make it under another title. Now, let's get another story for the broadcast idea!"

Henry Wilcoxon was ordered to take a paramount publicity photographer sailboating (and Henry's quite new at the tricks). The cameraman hasn't been the same since.

Things you probably didn't know—and, no doubt, care less about—

That Joe Penner has gone social in Hollywood.

That if Joe E. Brown doesn't take a bow at the Friday night fights the crowd gets sore and boo-hoos until he gets up.

A couple of cowhands working in the George O'Brien horse opera were discussing the word "Millennium." One of them finally exas octopus only it has more legs!" plained that it meant "The same

An odd mistake at M-G-M the other day may get a swell role for Cecilia Parker. A call was put in for Jean Parker, but the casting office misunderstood and got Cecilia for the set. The error was discovered with her arrival, and that gave Director Charley Brabin the idea of really using her.

Bing Crosby is giving the local newspapers and photographic services the well known run around by refusing pictures of his famous twins.

Pete Smith is a very painstaking golfer. During the recent M-G-M tournament, it long the unseen movie star four hours to get to the ninth hole, where he expertly knocked his ball into the rough.

"This isn't mine," said Pete after examining the ball carefully, "this is an old ball."

"Well," said the caddy, who was nearing the breaking point, "don't forget, sir, it's been a long time since we started out!"

It will probably amaze the ladies, but Jean Parker spends only $500 per year on her clothes. She has a budget and "Bargain Shops Around," claiming that she is one movie star who doesn't want to be the "Best - Dressed" woman on the screen — and that, dear readers, is a novelty.

Miss Parker

Eddie Horsh has a trick for starting dialogue lines. He reads over the script once, then goes to sleep. When he awakens, the lines are thoroughly memorized.

Ted Healy would like to star in a musical show in Hollywood, but so far he hasn't found the show, or the backer.

Your Theater and Mine :-: By KARL KRUG

My Dear Mayor:

I note you like the movies. You laughed right out loud several times during that screening of "The Catspaw," which John M. Harris gave you in the Variety Club the other noon. In the parlance of the day, you got "quite a kick" out of Harold Lloyd portraying a Mayor, whose career, in many respects, is a parallel with your own.

But, that isn't what I want to talk about in this missive. What, your honor, do you think of the stage? And, did you know that only a few short theatrical seasons ago Pittsburgh was regarded as the greatest "dog" town in the country? Don't get me wrong, please. By dog town I mean opening or try-out city for new stage productions.

Did you know, your honor, that those big premieres that used to come here regularly under the banners of Florenz Ziegfeld, Schwab and Mandel, the Theater Guild, Vincent Youmans and others brought Pittsburgh into nation-wide limelight? We need some more of them, Your Honor, and you can help us get them. But, another city is making a play for them, with its Mayor and president of the Chamber of Commerce leading the fight.

Realizing the value of big productions opening in their native habitat, Mayor Harry Bacharach of Atlantic City, and Louis St. John, head of that town's Chamber of Commerce have issued proclamations urging public support in order that Atlantic City may once more become a "proving ground" for famous New York producers.

That, Your Honor, calls for action. It was your own Pittsburgh that took the play away from Atlantic City as a premiere town. And, it was none other than the late Florenz Ziegfeld who led the parade. Remember the night he opened "Whoopee" here, away back in 1928? As his eye roved over that packed Nixon auditorium, his own gray business suit and blue shirt conspicuous in a blaze of evening clothes, he murmured: "I will never open a show anywhere except here." And, the Old Master kept his word.

The Atlantic City campaign has already brought results, Your Honor. The new musical satire, "Saluta," has gone there for its premiere. I thought you ought to know, because stage producers have one thing in common with the movie makers. They like to follow suit if a certain venture proves a success in a certain spot. We still get an opening from the Theater Guild now and then, but we could use a lot more.

The coming season looks like the best in several years, Your Honor. There's going to be considerable production, which means plenty of try-outs. Help us get them, my dear Mayor, before Atlantic City corrals them all. I can tell you this much. All those smart Broadway producers regard Pittsburgh as a "natural" when it comes to try-outs. But, with Atlantic City offering special inducements, we've got to give the boys a break, too. What do you say, Your Honor?

Director Rewards Jackie

"RIGHT ABOUT FACE" IN THE TREATMENT OF

Not Pollen, But Poison Produced by Pollen, Is Prime Cause of Suffering . . . *Says Chicago Doctor

These tablets promise relief for hay fever sufferers of a kind never before possible with salves, sprays, inhalers, or any other form of local application.

Finds Amazing New Direct Relief . . . Single Tablet Acts In Minutes! Thousands Reported Going Through All of Last Season Free From Hay Fever Torture!

THE relief that has now been demonstrated in hay fever cases is astounding — not only prompt, but thorough. So rapid in some cases that relief appeared in the first few minutes; and so thorough that again and again all apparent symptoms like itching membranes, running nose, watery eyes and feverish headache were reported disappeared.

Not a narcotic deadening of the nerves. Not an astringent drying up of the mucous membrane. Not a salve, spray or local application of any kind. Instead a wholly new, direct action in neutralizing the effect of pollen poisoning in the system.

Amazing New Facts

The Chicago doctor who perfected this relief thoroughly believes in the theory newly advanced by medical science that all hay fever results directly from a poisonous substance found in the blood. Regardless of what pollens the patient was sensitive to, his findings indicate this body poison always present.

"It is this body poison caused by pollens — not the pollens themselves — which is the underlying cause of hay fever suffering," reasoned the doctor. A complete right about face.

Histeen Is Found

Then, after 2½ years of research, the doctor developed a compound which acts to combat and neutralize the irritating effect of this poison. Tests were conducted in the laboratories of a famous medical university to verify his discovery.

Then in thousands of actual cases unparalleled relief was reported. In only a matter of minutes, many said, feverish hay fever symptoms fell from them like an unloosened garment. Again and again these overjoyed people reported going through the whole of last season wonderfully free from the ever-present torture of hay fever. At last, for these people, the answer to hay fever suffering had been found in Histeen.

Convenient Tablet Form

Now, after years of testing in laboratory and clinic, Histeen is in your drug store. It is in convenient tablet form, taken internally, and is complete in itself without the use of sprays, gargles, salves or any other assistance.

Histeen cuts right through the long and tedious pollen injection process—acts to neutralize the effects of the poison itself and means relief often in a few minutes after the first dose is taken.

Do not delay. If your hay fever has not attacked you yet, you may go through the year without a sign of it. If it has started, the quick relief Histeen brings you will probably amaze you. Get it today—ask your druggist for Histeen.

All in a Day

Odds and Ends

HERE'S a little drunk yarn that handed me a titter. It deals with a well-tanked individual who entered the Union Station in Chicago the other day and purchased a ticket to New York. He asked the ticket agent to direct him to the train, and the latter man obliged courteously.

The new listened attentively, nodded his thanks, gathered his belongings—and then proceeded to climb into the first coach he came to. He sat alone for five minutes without realizing that something was wrong. Then, as Alvin Hammon can tell you, he began to look away at the window. The nose attracted a switchman, who entered the coach and told the drunk he was on the wrong train.

Our friend cursed volubly, grabbed his baggage, crawled under tracks—and found himself beside another train. Impressed by the number of passengers getting on, the stew did likewise. He made himself comfortable. And when the Western Union boy passed through, the drunk handed him his ticket.

"Sorry, sir," said the boy. "I'm not the conductor. But just the same I can tell you that you're on the wrong train."

"Nutsh," growled the drunk. "Where ish my train?"

"Well," directed the good-natured kid, "you get off this train, turn left, walk north 'til you reach the end of this train, turn right and walk until you get to track 12. Your train will be on that track, but you'd better hurry if you're going to make it."

Once more, the swaying passenger grabbed his belongings and staggered from the train. Miraculously, he made his way to the right one. But by this time the agitated stew was very angry at the inefficiency of the railroad. And as he seated himself in the New York-bound train, he gave out some very choice swear words to indicate his disgust.

In the middle of his impolite mutterings, he was interrupted by a light tap on the shoulder. He turned belligerently to discover a member of the cloth.

"Well," said the drunk. "Wassa matter?"

The minister shook his head gravely.

"Young man," he asserted, "I think I have the right to interfere. As a member of the cloth, it is my sacred duty to tell you that you are travelling the rocky road that leads to perdition."

The stew landed on his feet.

"How do you like that," he harrumphed as he dived for the door. "I'm going on the wrong train again!"

Blonds Wane In Favor

It seems that gentlemen no longer prefer blondes—at least not the gentlemen who pay good money at the theater box offices of the world. Out of 19 lovely women stars at the Warner Studio, only five are blondes. Fourteen are not. The cause of the blondes generally is left in the competent hands of Joan Blondell, Bette Davis, Jean Muir, Glenda Farrell and Verree Teasdale, so far as that studio is concerned. They are outnumbered, almost three to one, by their dark-haired or red-headed sisters.

Leading the brunette list are such glamorous beauties as Kay Francis, Dolores Del Rio, Barbara Stanwyck, Ruby Keeler, Mary Astor and Ann Dvorak. Their cause is still further upheld by Margaret Lindsay, Patricia Ellis, Helen Trenholme (a newcomer), Maxine Doyle, Aline MacMahon and Dorothy Tree. Josephine Hutchinson and Claire Dodd are red-headed and Barbara Stanwyck, listed already as a brunette, has auburn hair.

HIGHBROW SLUR UPSETS INDIANS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Fourteen Indians—and their press agent—who ran all the way from old Fort Niagara, N. Y., to give three grains of corn to the President, were visibly upset today by a Smithsonian scientist's charge their names were not true Tuscarora tribal cognomens.

The three grains of corn were a symbolic invitation to a pageant re-inducting Fort Niagara, that will be held September 3, but the President has said he cannot go.

Seeking visit after 500 mile dash on foot in 74½ hours, Lee Trenholm, the press agent, stoutly defended the good names of his 13 Tuscaroras, and two Senecas, as follows:

"The idea of Dr. J. J. B. Hewitt saying the name Bird Lying Down, is not Tuscarora! He got it from his grandfather. Why there are only five phony names in the whole 14, and the professor didn't pick a single one that I thought up myself in his complaint to us."

Universal Service.

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—Japanese military officials are preparing to declare martial law along the right of way of the Chinese Eastern Railway, according to dispatches reaching here from Khabarovsk today.

This assertion was made in connection with the first reports to reach here of the arrests of 18 Soviet citizens at Impanyo, Madachi, Hailun and Pogranichnaya stations along the railroad.

At the same time it was disclosed that the Soviet acting consul general at Khabarovsk has protested to the Manchukuo government the recent invasion by a drunken policeman of the private car in which Consul General Slavoutsky was traveling with his wife and children.

DEDICATE DAM AT PYMATUNING

GIRARD, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The transformation of thousands of acres of useless marsh land into one of the greatest game preserves in the country will be celebrated tomorrow at formal dedication ceremonies for Pymatuning Dam.

Many towns in the dam's vicinity, most of which will benefit by its reserve water supplies, have declared a holiday for tomorrow, to permit attendance by residents and business persons at the dedication ceremonies.

Committee officials announced that 30,000 guests from Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio are expected.

Fred L. Smith, of New Castle, general chairman of the dedication committee, was assisted in the arrangements by a committee from the Sharon Chamber of Commerce.

Principal speakers will include Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who terms the dam "one of the greatest single projects in the public interest built in Pennsylvania in years," and Gov. George White, of Ohio.

The petition declared that the income from the apartment house was used to pay taxes and keep up the property. Rosetti said he had to make a living from the hotdog stand.

Tracy Denies He's Fast Talker

Lee Tracy denies that he talks fast, despite the fact that the star of "You Belong to Me" has been called the "fastest talking human."

"I don't talk so fast," explained Tracy. "A lot of fellows speak more words per minute than I do. But I have my own system of pacing which makes it seem as if I were talking fast. To give the impression of speed, I always slow up my speech very considerably just before I let go rapidly. Thereby the contrast seems very great."

TOO TIRED TO PLAY . . . . . and then he Smoked a CAMEL!

Here's the rapid way to bring back energy when tired!

Within a few minutes after smoking a Camel, when weary and dispirited, you will find your vim and vigor definitely increased. First you notice the full, rich flavor of Camels. Then comes a delightful "lift" in energy.

Idea Not New! Thousands of Camel smokers have long known and enjoyed this wholesome effect. And now scientists fully confirm their experiences, as you may have read already.

Camels have a positive "energizing effect." Through it your latent, natural energy is made available. The feeling of well-being and vigor, natural to all, is quickly heightened.

So make Camels your cigarette. Be one of the great army of smokers who are delighted to "get a lift with a Camel." With Camels you can smoke just as many as you want. Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand. They will not ruffle your nerves!

"There's nothing that lifts up my energy the way a Camel does. I smoke a lot. Camels never interfere with my nerves!"

Friend Unable to Meet Gaze, Girl Worries

An old friend bothers you, Maud . . . You believe because your boy friend can't meet your gaze that there is something the matter with his ethics.

If he would only look you square in the eye, then everything would be milk and honey. But because his eyelids droop or the pupil isn't steady doubt creeps in, and you are in despair.

Shall you break with him? That is what you, sister, want me to answer.

Have you ever stopped to reason, Maud, that the fellow may have eyes that can't look up into the sun . . . and you may be his SUN, no? now? In other words, he may be bashful . . . Or again, he may be a THINKER . . .

Miss Brunot

"Just because she made them goo-goo eyes" was a popular song at one time . . . It came in with Anna Held, and everyone sang it . . . That was the open season for the direct gaze . . . People who wished to be alluring spent hours practicing all sorts of arts with their orbs . . . And yet did it MEAN anything SPECIAL, so far as CHARACTER came in . . . I say no . . .

People who intend practicing nefarious schemes learn the DIRECT GAZE habit . . . Somehow it gets them over . . . We read in the papers where the two worst men in this country have the names of Baby Face Nelson and Pretty Boy Floyd . . . I'll bet you a dollar to a doughnut, Maud, both these fellows can look you out of countenance . . . Also Lucretia Borgia, with a poisoning or two to her account, was noted for her angelic countenance . . . I'm not afraid to state that her eyes must have been soft and limp-like and that she could look steadily at even the ones she intended murdering . . .

So, Maud, what you feel is all bosh. Trust the young fellow, even if he has a wandering eye. He may need spectacles. That is all. ETHICS LIE DEEPER THAN HUMAN FEATURES, sister.

PURITANICAL CUSTOM

Up here on the Cape no mail goes out on Sundays. It may be a carryover from the Puritan days when people spent their Sabbaths in church pews or behind drawn shades. And in consequence we form all sorts of tricky ways of getting letters to Boston. One of these is to slip over to the end of the wharf and lie in wait for some tender-hearted passenger going out on the Dorothy Bradford, our cape excursion boat.

This I did last Sunday. Buses, peanut venders, taxicab hustlers, water lily salesmen, children vending painted shells lined the wharf, and there was a bustle and a jostle of tars and their girls. I spotted a fat man with a small black mustache and a dimple on his chin. He'll do, I decided.

"You're going to Boston," I inquired in my best Sunday manner.

"Sure thing," he admitted, and showed a set of perfect white teeth.

"Could I impose upon your generosity . . . will you mail these letters for me?" I asked, timidly.

"With pleasure," he grinned. "I'll let you in on a secret. I'm sending a whole stack of postals to my wife. Cleo, she's one grand woman. Would you like to see her?"

PICTURE IN WATCH

And he reached for his vest pocket . . . yes, he was wearing a vest. Even through Old Sol was snoring.

"Yes, I'd like to," I admitted.

And there she was, smiling up at me from his watch. Just one woman in any hundred. Not overly pretty. Not stylish enough to be noticed in Paris. But the woman he loved. ONE GRAND WOMAN.

I raved about her, hoping the good Lord will forgive me. For I'm always easy enough to admire anyone's loved one. He made me wonder if after all these years men, romantic ours are still carrying their best beloved in the rear of their watches. We read where Dillinger did so. Sort of a nice comfy feeling to be put in there with Father Time. And also when a man does this thing, he must intend to be true-blue.

Not so much fun to be out with an affinity, and have her ask the time . . . and for her to spot another lassie.

So you're the One Grand Woman. If he does this thing.

OBJECT TO POOR BOY

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 20 and in love with a fellow of 21. He shows me in every way that he cares for me. I have known him three months. But one thing worries me. My parents object to him because he is poor. Lately he has not shown up so frequently, for he knows their opinion of him. He has landed a job, which he says is steady work.

WORRY.

Stay your worry, sister, for any man who has work which is steady these days is on the crest . . . Your parents should remember that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was a poor man when his wife married him. So was Henry Ford.

The down-and-outer today may be the Croesus of tomorrow. Honest endeavor with a determination to work and succeed, these are the best bets for the 1934 expectant bride.

BOY SNUBS HER

Dear Miss Brunot: I am a lonesome girl. I do not run about much. But I know one good-looking boy and care for him. Every time I see him he snubs me. He now has a car, and I should like to ride in it. How can I draw his attention to me. I will be looking for my answer. LONESOME.

Don't worry about the snub. Maybe he doesn't always see you. Driving a car is enough of a job for any pair of eyes . . . To get more attention from this fellow, manage to be where he is and chat with him, saying nice pleasant things which he will be glad to hear . . . Lonesome girls often are overly sensitive and imagine they are being snubbed when such is not the case.

VAGRANT WHO DIED IN VACANT LOT ONCE IDOL, FAY KING REMARKS

"WHEN YOU'RE ON THE MOUNTAIN TOP, ALL THE WORLD TO SPY YOU!"
SUCCESS
FK KING
"BUT WHEN INTO THE DITCH YOU DROP, THE WHOLE WORLD PASSES BY YOU!"
OBLIVION

By FAY KING.

In a vacant lot in New Jersey they found the body of a vagrant who had died of too much drink and drugs.

No doubt some saw the pitiful figure staggering along to what was to be his last resting place in life.

Little did they dream that they were looking at one whose name once flashed in bright lights in front of all the big-time vaudeville theaters. That it brought full houses, and a $2,000 weekly salary check.

Those shaking fingers had once written songs that were whistled and hummed everywhere, after they were heard sung by his gifted wife and partner.

Alas! This was the end of poor Billy Montgomery, the envied and imitated idol of Broadway—twenty years ago!

AUGUST PREDICTIONS IN FUR

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The light coat on a standing figure is white caracul, a swagger model for the younger woman's formal wardrobe. The darker standing model is summer ermine with a bow scarf neckline and raglan shoulders, truly elegant for afternoon wear.

Center, a regal ermine cape banded with wide silver fox. Note the cowl neckline. Below, the classic Russian broadtail coat with a lavish, intricate trim of silver fox.

SWOOPING up from the cool gloom of darkened city flats and green country places, women are taking a peek at the advance fur styles for dirty weather ahead. For just as brides and beaux always transpire in June, fur fashions invariably happen along in August and the knowing buyer has learned there is no hooey in the magical "August price tag"—which is the minimum one of the year.

Precious furs are always first in the summer fashion shows, and while there may not be a buyer for a certain $30,000 Russian sable coat now being looked at reverently at one Fifth Avenue shop, a lot of merchants are going to be awfully fooled if they don't move a lot of others in the two or three thousand dollar range. They are convinced that women are ready to make some important purchases after the lean years, and they are all set.

ANY fur coat or fur piece is an important purchase; let the woman who plots one first consider (after the sum she has to spend) just which type of coat will do her most good. Shall it be an all day coat of formal tendencies, such as a broadtail, caracul or mink? Shall it be a silver muskrat, a leopard cat or an Alaskan sealskin, something for general wear to ease the wear on the more formal coat already in her wardrobe? Is it a really devastating evening wrap that she has always yearned for—and will a novelty coat, such as the white caracul sketched here, be a better friend to her than a classic ermine which will become an heirloom with any care?

SOME women will lose their minds over the new full length capes. Mink, of course, is lovely enough to break a heart; silver muskrat is just as arresting in its own metier. Other women will take to the coats of Russian line and type—astrakhan, Persian lamb and krimmer—but they should remember that definite styles are dated, and that a fur coat is an investment that should pay dividends for a long time. A new shaped collar or sleeve is a more conventional gesture toward brand new fur fashions.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By Josephine Culbertson

An Unbeatable Contract

"Had you opened your short club suit instead of the four-card heart suit, the contract would have been defeated," remarked a Contract Bridge player to his partner after the Declarer had fulfilled a contract of four spades redoubled. Like many post-mortems at the Bridge table, this was only a superficial statement, as the contract undertaken could not be defeated, regardless of the lead. South's Opening lead of the heart 2 gave the Declarer an opportunity to fulfill his contract by a fairly obvious end-play, but equally gave to the defending side at least a ghost of a chance to defeat him if he slipped in the play. It must be admitted that North's Double apparently was sound. He held a possible trump trick, two well-nigh certain tricks in hearts, and a possible trick both in diamonds and clubs. In addition to his two certain tricks, two of his three problematic tricks must be developed to defeat the contract, and the trump trick might very well be lost by reason of the Double; but in addition he had the resources of his partner's hand to call upon, and his partner had had no opportunity to speak.

Mrs. Culbertson

West, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ J 8 5 4 ♡ A K 7 ◇ Q J 4 ♣ K 10 6
♠ — ♡ 8 5 4 3 ◇ A K 9 7 6 ♣ A Q 5 3	North	♠ A K Q 10 7 6 3 ♡ J 9 ◇ 5 ♣ J 7 2
	South ♠ 9 2 ♡ Q 10 6 2 ◇ 10 8 3 2 ♣ 9 8 4

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	1 N T	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Double	Redouble	Pass
Pass	Pass

North, with stoppers in every suit, was probably justified in his notrump Overcall. The alternative would be a pass with the hope that the opponents would get too high in the bidding. East, on the basis of his partner's Opening bid, contracted at once for game. He might well have doubled instead but his lack of strength in hearts, diamonds and clubs made the game-bid appear to him the better course, as even if his partner's hand were extremely strong and the Slam were makable, the four-spade bid would not deter West from further bidding. North's Double I have already discussed, and East's Redouble came as a matter of course. It did not appear possible to East, on the basis of West's Opening bid, that the contract could be defeated more than one trick, and the chances of fulfilling it appeared very excellent.

South chose as his Opening lead the fourth-best heart, and North cashed the King and Ace and returned the third round of the suit. This was ruffed by East, who then drew three rounds of spades. He then led a diamond to Dummy and discarded one of his losing clubs on the King. He re-entered his own hand by ruffing a third round of diamonds, and now, quite confident that the stage was set for the winning end-play, led a trump and forced North into the lead. North's hand was void of all but clubs, and he was therefore compelled to surrender the hoped-for club trick by leading up to the Dummy's tenace.

The reader will observe that an initial lead of a club would have been equally ineffective, as in that case the club finesse would have been refused, and the two high diamonds cashed, upon the second of which one of the losing hearts would have been discarded. The closed hand would then have been entered with a ruff, three rounds of trumps taken, and a club led. In this way the Declarer would have lost one club, one heart and one trump. The hand was unbeatable.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Katie Marches 'Army' to Kitchen

My father halted in his stride, willy nilly, as Katie's indomitable figure confronted him and her voice asked, or rather demanded, "Plees, may I spik sometings?" His grave, reluctant smile at her was a tribute to his genuine liking for our redoubtable little maid, and his appreciation of her long service in our family.

"What is it, Katie?" he asked gently, but I heard an undercurrent of impatience in his voice.

"Eet shoost dees." Katie's voice was as resolute as her sturdy, erect figure and her arms, held akimbo. "Vot you tink you doin' yourself, rooning around dees vay mitout not even a cup coffee in your insides? My Meesis Graham, too, she no beesness goin' so long mitout her breakfast.

"Me, I no boddering my head about boys und Otto. Breakfast all ready for dem ven dey vant eet, und I gave Junior and Roderick und grandmudder all deir breakfasts already yet. But you und Meesis Graham, you coom now by dining room und eat nice hot breakfast I got all ready."

KATIE GIVES ORDERS

Her voice had lost its belligerency and was distinctly coaxing as she finished, and in the smile my father gave her now there was no hint of impatience.

"That is very thoughtful of you, Katie," he said, "and I'll be with you as soon as I wash up."

Katie followed him to the door and peered after him as he went down the hall.

"He goin' to downstairs lavatry," she said when she came back. "Now, Meesis Graham, you no take time go oopstairs to vash oop. You coom by your Katie over here. I feex you nice sink und towels, und den you get someting to eat into your mouf qveek as little sheep vag tails."

She put her hand upon my arm with the affectionate familiarity born of our long association, and I put my own hand over it for a second.

"Thank you, Katie," I said gratefully, and added the one thing which I knew would please her.

"I really am very hungry," I said? "I hope you have some of my favorite dishes."

She gave a little chortling laugh.

"You shoost vait und see vot I got," she retorted, pulling me toward the sink. "You no need look at stove. My surprise all hid avay, but you see."

Bob suddenly appeared on the other side.

"Katie, have a heart!" he said imploringly with an impudent grin. "What about the hired hands? You don't need to let us come into the dining room; we'll eat in the kitchen, or on the doorstep, just so long as we eat somewhere. My backbone's pushing my ribs up into my collar bone this secsond, I'm so empty."

Katie giggled, but looked disdainfully at Bob's rumpled clothing and distinctly soiled face and hands, souvenirs of his tussle with the Chinese.

"I tell you I got breakfast all ready," she said, "but eef you tink I let you boys coom into my nice clean keetchen looking like dot, you got anudder tink cooming. You und Meester Hank und Meester Bill," she looked from one to another as she enumerated them, "go und get vashed oop, den coom back und I feel you so full oop dot you kin chew but you can't swallow."

She gurgled again at her own ancient witticism, then stopped abruptly and hurled a question at Bob.

RONALD ON GUARD

"Where Meester Ronald? I no see heem come oop mit you. Did you leave heem down dere mit those Chinks?"

"That's what we did, Katie," Bob answered promptly, "or rather he left himself. We're going to take turns watching those chaps, and we tossed a coin to see who got first shift. Ron drew it, but one of us will relieve him as soon as we've had breakfast. And now if you'll fix a tray, I'll carry it down to him."

"No, don't do that!" Lillian adjured him sharply.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Bridal Veil

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married next month and I would be grateful to you if you will tell me how and when are the letters of thanks to be written, and how are they to be signed?

2—Would it be correct for me to wear a veil, as it is to be a church wedding? We will not have a reception, just a family dinner after the ceremony. N.

1—You will be a very wise and polite bride-to-be if you write a note of thanks for a gift just as soon as possible after it has been received. Since all wedding presents are sent to the bride-to-be and belong to her, it is she who writes all the notes of thanks, and to these notes she signs her name. In her notes she, of course, mentions her fiance and tells of his appreciation of the gift and of his enthusiasm for it. . . "Jack and I are delighted with your beautiful thought of us, and we are so happy to have the lovely candlesticks which you so generously sent us."

2—If you wish to stamp your wedding as a formal one, you wear a veil. Then all of the details of the wedding must be carried out in a formal way. The fact that you are not to have a reception does not make any difference. It is the formality of the church wedding that makes the difference.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The complexion is benefited by good nutrition, restful sleep, fresh air, brisk circulation. Whatever makes for vitality and physical well being is bound to be reflected in the good texture and delicate coloring of the skin. Respect laws of health, follow them faithfully.

Fur trims are smart when cleverly handled, for the very lavish fur trimmings are out for street things. A new suit consists of a dress in wine-hued woolen with a matching jacket. The coat has a scarf of black caracul with half of the sleeve also of the fur.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Now and for later are those lovely evening frocks of ice-white or ice-blue satin. These are done on classic lines with looped necklines held with jewelled clips. Dark furs will make the perfect for formal wear.

Be neat when traveling, avoiding all frills and fuss for dressing gown or bathrobe. A useful model is a wrapper of navy blue flannel piped with white, with white fringe to the belt and a white monogram over the breast pocket.

In Mayfair

--With--

Patricia Pitt

A June bride gave a tea in her new home yesterday afternoon for a visitor from Buenos Aires, South America. The guest of honor, Eleanor Billings, daughter of the C. P. Billingses, lived formerly with her family in Ellsworth avenue.

She has been spending several days with Mrs. Charles W. Baldwin, Jr., of Wilson, Pa., who was Cora May Ingham, daughter of the Charles T. Inghams, of Beechnote street, before her marriage June 23 to the son of the Charles W. Baldwins, of White Stone, L. I.

Mrs. Baldwin gave a tea for her South American guest yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Darlington's Son Showing Skill As a Sailor

Her young son, Harry Darlington III, is becoming a sailor of renown. He's a member of the Watch Hill crew, which won the annual race against the Stonington Yacht Club this week.

William S. Moorehead, Jr., son of the William S. Moorheads, of Aylesboro avenue, is also a sailor of note. He came in second and Harry Darlington first in the Alden boat class race this week off Westerly, R. I.

Mrs. Moorhead is entered in the annual tournament, by the way, for the Misquamicut Golf Club championship.

Paper Run By Women Prospers

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGE

A newspaper owned and operated by a women's club has been the means of financing many other projects of the Saturday Women's Club. The paper, The Shadyside Inquirer, has brought in $15 to the club for $1 and a year's printing subscription, with $5000 as an initial investment, according to an article in this month's Pennsylvania Clubwoman.

The paper has grown and prospered and has put more than $4,000 in dividends during the 13 years of the present ownership. Incidentally, the club made its purchase in the first year of its existence and made it not as a commercial investment but as a piece of community work. Several hundred subscriptions were paid for before the first issue was published.

The first issue was done entirely by members, the editor being a member of the club who, before her marriage, had done magazine work. Soon, however, a professional took over the task and for some time was the only paid member of the staff. Volunteers collected the news and others solicited advertising. Prominent men in the community wrote articles and contributed editorials. As time went on the volunteers were replaced by professional women but even yet the policy of the paper is dictated by a board consisting of club members.

The paper has been nonpartisan politically since the beginning. It has won a first prize from the New York State Press Association for make-up, another first prize for the best front page, another for the best advertising display and a third prize in an editorial page contest held by the same association. For two years the paper was awarded the second prize in the newspaper production contest of the National Editorial Association and honorable mention in the editorial page contest.

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPY GLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPY GLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

Considering that everything people are talking about these days has to do with the arrival of Autumn . . . literally dragged in before it has a chance to get its breath . . . we see no reason why the drapery situation shouldn't climb aboard and ride along! For . . .

There are brand new damask drapes in town! Shimmering, richly colored, swank-appearing fellows that would do justice to the snootiest living room. They're all pinch pleated . . . with well made sateen linings mitered at the corners and wide tie backs. And if this isn't a whole lot of drape at $4.95, we don't know what you can expect. (The buyer tells us that they're usually much more.)

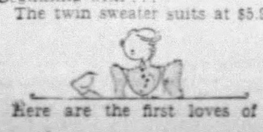
First in! The knits. The knitted suit and frock question is no longer a question. It's a condition! For when you can buy suits like we saw for $5.95 and $10.95 at this time of the season, THEN everything is just hunky-dory . . . ace-high . . . or whathaveyou! Beginning with . . .

The twin sweater suits at $5.95.



Here are the first loves of a loving Fall! Soft, hairy woolen knits with long sleeved sweaters under the outside one . . . and skirts that do you proud with their fit. Some with side closings in both sweater and skirt . . . and a buckle at the waist, and again at the throat where the standup collar comes to a timely end! Some with buttons all up the front (English style) and three at the throat of the sweater underneath . . . and lastly, but not leastly, two grand "sunk-in" pockets one at each side of your rib-places!

And these are in colors to please you. Nice tweedy ones . . . browns, greys, blues. And some with their knit done up with a plain color woven—something you don't find standing 'round on every curb. Sizes 12 to 20.

As for the $10.95ers! Herringbone stripings give them the backbone to stand out in any Fall gathering! These are GRA-A-NND wool knits in typical suit effects. Well-tailored skirts with blouses that tuck into the tops . . . and a matching jacket that buttons about four times, from the bottom up, then lies open. Colors are good for Fall—green, wine, brown—with a beige blouse and a four-in-hand tie (separate) that matches the jacket. Sizes 12 to 20.

In case . . . you've lost the ties for your sport frock . . . or the belt 'round your waist . . . these cotton cord ties will come in handy. We don't know how many times we've looked for such and never found them. Forty inches long . . . with fat ball tassels at the ends . . . in colors and all white. 25c.

Chalk this up on your blackboard! We have run down the rumors about there being but ONE place in town to buy an Alaskan Seal coat for $295 . . . and we've found TWO! (We mean, where there are already coats for sale . . . NOT where they'll make them.)

Take your choice . . . full length coats in black or brown . . . of the popular, long-lived Alaskan Seal that is usually referred to as the "lifetime" fur! They're smart . . . they're brand new . . . they're beautiful qualities . . . with shawl or johnny collars (including the new rippled type) and lined with black satin or silk crepe!

What coats! For what a price! Heavy, sleek shining as only a fine sealskin can! You've got the buy of the season right there when you get one of these. Like a fur coat, little one?

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Hoyt Season's Surprise Leads Staff in Victories
Bucs Upset Giant Stars
Tigers Don't Want Foxx.
Turi Starter's Troubles.
Spears Has Huge Eleven.

When Waite Hoyt started his second season with the Pirates last spring the general dope was that he might do some fair relief pitching occasionally, but could hardly be counted among the main props of the staff. Larry French and Red Lucas would attend to the heavy work and together would deliver from 30 to 35 victories. Ralph Birkhofer, Bill Swift, Hal Smith and Heinie Meine would do the remainder of the winning. But take a squint at the records now. The dopesters appear to have underestimated the value of the almost 35-year-old Hoyt to some slight extent.

Waite Hoyt

Having taken two decisions over the world champion Giants in the last two days, one in relieving Burleigh Grimes and the other in a full contest, Waite has won more ball games than any other pitcher on Pie Traynor's corps. He has 11 victories to his credit against only four defeats, and is the only hurler on the club whose triumphs run into double figures. French and Lucas together have won only 17. French has won nine and lost 13; Lucas has won eight and lost the same number; Birkhofer has a similar record; Swift has won seven and lost 10; Meine has won five and lost five; Chagnon has won four and lost one; Smith has won two and lost three, and Holley has won none and lost three.

EQUAL TO BEST IN HIS PRESENT FORM

Moreover, Hoyt, who has beaten every club except Brooklyn, is so willing and durable that he has worked three times in the last four days and four times in the last six days. For a man who was viewed as just a filler-in, he is a pretty useful citizen. If there is a better pitcher in the league than Waite in his present form, local fans would like to get a look at him.

Speaking of pitching records, it is the proud boast of the Giants that at no time in two years have their four mound stars—Hubbell, Schumacher, Fitzsimmons and Parmelee—been defeated in succession. The Pirates, before reckoning with Parmelee, made a close approach to three-fourths of the job in the present series by beating Hubbell, knocking out Fitzsimmons though he got credit for a victory, and forcing the withdrawal of Schumacher for a pinch-hitter, with the Giant defeat being charged against a relief hurler.

DETROIT NOT BUYER IF MACK SELLS FOXX

Baseball's rumor mongers continue to sell Jimmy Foxx, as they have been doing all season on every rainy day or when they had nothing else to talk or write about. The latest edition of the oft-told tale, which had everything all set for the transfer of the Mackian slugger to the Tigers for next year, brings a denial from Detroit. Those in the know out there say the Detroit club would not consider buying Foxx, even if he were offered, because it has no room for him. Hank Greenberg is a fixture at first base, and it is argued that Foxx could not displace Charley Gehringer, Bill Rogell or Marvin Owen at any of the other infield posts, while Manager Mickey Cochrane still is pretty serviceable behind the bat. They don't think of Jimmy as an outfielder.

Jimmy Foxx

Actually there was no call for the Detroit denial, as Connie Mack himself has stated very emphatically that no further players on his roster will become Tiger property under any conditions. Mack still refuses to admit that Foxx will be sold anywhere if the treasury of the A's has to be replenished next winter. There is no doubt that Foxx would like to get away, not that he dislikes Mack or Philadelphia, but because he feels that he could get a lot more money elsewhere than Connie is able to pay him. Boston continues to be the most popular guess as to the slugger's destination if he leaves the A's. But Red Sox officials cannot be induced to admit that a deal is in the wind. The boys thought Eddie Collins was on the point of making such an admission when he remarked, "It's altogether possible that Foxx will not play first base for the Athletics next season," but Eddie fooled them by adding, "It would not surprise me a bit if he caught for the A's in 1935."

SMART RIDERS DO NOT TROUBLE STARTER

It's not the smart jockey, but the stupid one having an idea he is smart, who gives a racing starter trouble, according to Harry Morrisey, veteran at sending the horses away. A starter has to be on the lookout for riders who think they are smart. There are certain tricks in the trade, and the starter must watch for them. A boy may try a walk-through, that is, be walking up for a flying start. He may be only half way into his stall, waiting for the break. He may try to beat the start in several ways. It's up to the official to see those things and nip them in the bud.

Really smart riders, on the other hand, give no trouble. They are the ones who behave themselves. They know they have nothing to gain by fooling around at the starting gate. Their race begins when they are sent away. They try to break fast, and then to ride a winning race.

FEW GRID TEAMS BIGGER THAN BADGERS

Other football coaches who like to have plenty of beef on their squads will be casting envious eyes at the material reporting to Dr. Clarence W. (Fat) Spears this fall at the University of Wisconsin. There will be few, if any, bigger teams than the Badgers in any part of the pigskin map this year. Wisconsin is certain to be the heaviest aggregation in the Big Ten, at least. Always partial to big players when he coached at West Virginia, Oregon and Minnesota, Spears should be well satisfied with his timber for 1934, for the Wisconsin line will average the unusual figures of 224 pounds from end to end.

Fat Spears

That's the report that comes from Frank Murray, coach at Marquette, who has been looking into the Badger situation. One of the reasons why Murray has gone to the trouble of learning so much about the Wisconsin weights is that his team will meet the Badgers in the second game of the Marquette season. Incidentally, no coach in the country has a tougher start mapped out for him than has Murray. As an opening breather for the early meeting wi Wisconsin, Marquette has a game a week earlier with Nor stern.

FIELD ATTENDANTS BURNING GASOLINE TO DRY DRENCHED BASEPATHS AFTER STORM

SECTION OF 18,000 CROWD THAT BRAVED DOWNPOUR TO SEE BUCS, GIANTS DIVIDE

Ample proof that the interest in major league baseball still is very much alive was provided yesterday when, braving a thunderstorm that broke shortly after the start of the first game and made the possibilities of play problematical, 18,000 fans appeared at Forbes Field to see the Pirates break even in a doubleheader with the league-leading Giants. Although play was delayed for about two hours the fans were not without entertainment, for they were treated to the rare spectacle of attendants burning gasoline on the baspaths and the peeled portions of the infield to assist Old Sol in erasing traces of the storm. The majority of the fans remained until the last out of the second game, too, which did not take place until 7:30 o'clock. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

BROIDA, MADDEN VICTORS; FAY ADVANCES

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Fast matches, played in a race against storm clouds, have narrowed the field to the semi-finals of the single matches of the annual Western Maryland tennis tournament.

James E. Allen, of Charleston, W. Va., continued his stellar play by defeating Alex Keils, of Baltimore, seeded No. 3, 6-3, 6-4. Allen will meet Bob Madden, youthful Pittsburgh star, in the semi-finals tomorrow.

Frank Broida, Pittsburgh's defending champion, also advanced to the semi-finals where he will meet Elmer Rudy, of Baltimore.

Broida put out another Pittsburgher, William Clardy, 6-1, 6-1, and Madden defeated John Brown, also of Pittsburgh, 6-1, 12-10. In the doubles, Clardy and Don Snyder, of Greensburg, eliminated Howard Moore and Ralph Weber, 6-2, 6-4.

FAY WINS PAIR

ERIE, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Slender Joe Turski, 18-year-old Buffalo star, yesterday registered a smashing upset in the Northwestern Pennsylvania tennis tourney, defeating Egbert Miles, Yale star and seeded No. 1 in straight sets, 6-4, 9-7. Turski, unseeded, then moved into the quarter finals by downing William Harter, of Greenville.

Another surprise triumph was staged by Edward Stafford, of Niagara Falls, in winning 4-6, 6-1, 6-3 over Paul Barber, of Sewickley, who won the championship two years ago.

In the junior singles, William Fay, of Pittsburgh, won two matches, beating R. Mayer, of Erie, 6-3, 6-2 and P. Stevens, of Youngstown, 6-2, 6-4.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE BLIND AUTO MECHANIC—The story of Fred A. Wilcox, Ripley (N. Y.) garage owner, provides a paradox unequaled in the automobile industry, for in the last 12 years he has serviced thousands of automobiles—supplied them with gas and oil—repaired thousands of tires—adjusted carbureters—and every other automotive job from cleaning spark plugs to overhauling entire motors. Yet he has never seen an automobile. When Wilcox was a small boy, more than 50 years ago, he suffered the loss of his eyesight. With the advent of the automobile, he became interested in them and since has mastered the art of repairing the delicate motor parts purely by his sense of touch and memory of where parts belong. All of his tools are carefully pigeon-holed where he can pick them up immediately, and his finished jobs are excellently done. His simple philosophy accounts for his unequaled success in life—"Stick to it or starve." LAFITTE THE PIRATE—On November 24, 1813, William C. Claiborne, Governor of Louisiana, issued a proclamation offering $500 for the arrest of Jean Lafitte, the pirate, who, with his brother and a gang of 100 men, ran a freebooter and smuggling settlement on a group of secluded islands in Barataria Bay about 40 miles south of New Orleans. Two days later, Lafitte's proclamation appeared beside that of the Governor, offering $1,500 for the arrest of Gov. Claiborne. While the Governor had to remain indoors busy with the problems of the war with England, Lafitte and his companions continued to swagger through the streets unmolested. Only a short time later, however, law and order prevailed again, when Gov. Claiborne obtained an indictment, with which a Federal Navy and Army force raided the Barataria settlement and arrested the privateers, who were brought to trial.

TOMORROW: CAN HAIR GROW IN THE PALM OF A HAND?

HOYT'S HURLING EXCITES FANS, WINS AGAIN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Rain and wet grounds prevented the fourth clash of the five-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants at Forbes Field this afternoon. As a result of the postponement, the two clubs will wind up their engagement tomorrow afternoon with a doubleheader, the first contest to get under way at 1:45.

In announcing the postponement, the Pirate management stated that ladies' day, usually held on Thursday, will be staged on Saturday, when the Brooklyn Dodgers open their last series of the season at Forbes Field. Last week's ladies' day also was washed out by rain.

The boys, however, will be the guests of the management at tomorrow's doubleheader.

Maybe its the New Deal and perhaps it would require the services of a Dr. Watson or one of Uncle Sam's braintrusters to dope them out, but those Buccos, for whom the pennant race is all over, are right in the middle of their most interesting series of the season.

RIVALS SPLIT EVEN

Pirate officials today stated they were quite sure they would have established a new attendance record in the past three or four years had there been sunshine yesterday afternoon. Despite the noonday clouds which poured forth their load of water in the first inning of the dual bill between the Buccos and Giants, there were 18,000 on hand for the dual fight.

The gripping dual scrap ended in a deadlock, the Pirates losing the opener, 5 to 4, but winning the second, 4 to 3. An [illegible] hours were necessary [illegible] the bargain attractio[illegible] halt of nearly two [illegible]e first inning of the e[illegible]

So the series [illegible] to 1 today, in the Pi[illegible]or.

Out of the [illegible]ble thrills attached to th[illegible]ll, the 18,000 fans prob[illegible]ould nominate Waite Hoy[illegible] first honors for supplying them. Here are a few of the reasons.

Waite reeled off nine great innings in the second game to record his third victory in four days and his second triumph in two days over the world champions! It was his eleventh victory of the season.

HOYT STEALS SHOW

The former Yankee star, who seems to be one of the biggest comebacks in the history of baseball, went [illegible] the slab to relieve Meine in th[illegible]ixth inning of Sunday's clash [illegible]th the Reds. BROACA, YOUNG YANKEE HURLER, CHECKS TIGERS' FLAG RUSH

KID PITCHER ASSISTED BY BABE RUTH

Associated Press

All good things according to time-honored tradition, must eventually come to an end, including the remarkable winning streak which carried the Detroit Tigers prominent for more than two weeks.

After 14 successive triumphs, the Tigers struck trouble yesterday when the Yankees and Yanks Johnny Broaca subdued them 5 to 2 in the final game of their highly important set of five. As a result the Detroit lead has been reduced to 5½ games today.

BROACA IS FOUND

Broaca didn't have a pleasant afternoon. He was routed for the 10 hits over six separate innings and got some great support from Babe Ruth on the one occasion when he got into serious trouble. With the Tigers threatening to stage one of their typical comeback rallies in the sixth, the Babe fielded Charley Gehringer's drive fast to delay one run and made a great running catch of Billy Rogell's fly to help shut off the uprising with only two runs.

Adverse weather forced the National League leaders, the Giants, to spend six hours in dividing a double bill with Pittsburgh. The first game had hardly started when a thunderstorm struck the field and delayed progress for nearly two hours. The Giants went on from there to score four runs in the first inning when Travis Jackson smashed a home run with two aboard and won, 5 to 4. Pittsburgh replied with a 4-to-3 triumph when Waite Hoyt collaborated with Lindstrom and Suhr to beat the league leaders.

DODGERS, REDS SPLIT

Another National league doubleheader resulted in an even break when the last-place Reds belted Van Mungo, Brooklyn's star pitcher, for a 7 to 5 decision in the opener and the Dodgers retaliated by winning, 7 to 4.

The Athletics downed the White Sox twice with the aid of timely home runs to make it five in a row. Jimmy Foxx clouted his thirty-seventh homer with two aboard in the eighth to give Merrit Cain a 7-to- 4 victory in the opener, while Dib Williams' circuit blow was a big factor in the 2-to- second victory in a mound clash between Bill Dietrich and Lee Tietje.

The only other game saw South-paw George (Rube) Walberg surpass the previous day's effort of Lefty Grove when he pitched the Red Sox to a 6-to-2 triumph over the Browns.

In the playoff series Sharpsburg was eliminated by Adams Bottling, 4 to 3. Eddie played a nice game against the Bottlers. He connected for a home run in that game and his team almost tied the score in the ninth inning by rallying to score two runs.

The Dayton Ducks, in advancing from fifth place to third place in the Mid-Atlantic League standings within slightly more than a week, are beginning to show some of the form which led them to the championship of the first half of the season.

With a 10-9 victory last night over Johnstown, the Ducks jumped ahead of Huntington, and now rest a game behind the second-Pennsylvanians, whom they meet at Dayton again today.

The Beckley Black Knights helped the Ducks dislodge Huntington from third place by taking both ends of a double-header with the Red Birds, the first by a 6-0 score and the second, 6-3.

Meanwhile the Zanesville Greys, leading the league by eight games, turned in a dual victory over Charleston, copping the first, 2-0, and the second, 16-3. The Wheeling-Springfield game was postponed because of rain.

HAMBLETONIAN TAKEN BY LORD JIM

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—His fellows did not want him to follow the seven-year-old Hugh Peasley, the most prosperous thoughbred he ever owned. And because he ignored his dad's advice the Urbana, O., veterinarian, owner and leading driver of eight harness horse racers for seven years had to his credit today the winning of the Hambletonian, richest of the sport purses, with E. L. McBride's Lord Jim, of Columbus, O.

If young Hugh had not taken $500 given to him by his father to get an education and purchased a horse instead, he probably would be just another little known veterinarian.

And as if just to make sure of his victory, he saved his Mapletone from C. B. Shaffer's cold stream stud, of Lexington, to take second money, under the guidance of his 21-year-old brother, Darrel. Third share of the $25,000 purse went to Princess Peg, owned by the Lyle Brothers of Plainfield, N. J.

Not only did Lord Jim win the race but he trotted the fastest mile, 2:02¼, in winning the second heat. He was clocked in 2:04¼ in the final test while Princess Peg was caught in 2:03½ in winning the first heat and Mapletone was clocked in 2:04½, when he spread eagled the field in the third.

YAROSZ, DUNDEE EARLY DUCAT SALE BRISK

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

By JAMES MILLER

Depressions block wagers, want of the out routine and looking for a suppression for a short spotlight act today are being referred to Bud Vogel, president of the Teddy Yarosz-Vince Dundee bout for the world middleweight boxing championship to be staged at Forbes Field on September 11.

After spending a great deal of last evening in the counting house counting up his assets, Vogel came up with the announcement that the first day's ticket sale for the gigantic go had netted the rather tidy sum of $4,000. The details, placed on sale yesterday at the Pittsburgher Hotel and the Investment Building, were regarded as rewards of no little worth by members of the fistic colony, and latest reports today were to the effect that the brokerage of the business had shown little abatement.

CHAMP GOES TONIGHT

While Yarosz is continuing his training at Cogswell Lake, Dundee tonight will engage in a tune-up bout at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., where he is to meet Tony Brescia, of New York, in a 10-round go.

Lou Brouillard, the former ruler of the welterweights and middleweights, is expected to arrive here late tonight or early tomorrow to complete training for his bout (and some bout it should be) with Anson Green, the hell-punching Negro of Homestead, at Hickey Park, Millvale, Monday night.

The site of the bout, originally Greenlee Field, was changed yesterday after Jules Bock, matchmaker of the show, was informed that the finals of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania softball tournament eliminations were to be played at the Center avenue park Monday and Wednesday evenings. Bock is trying to line up an opponent for Al Quaill, hard-hitting middleweight of Brookline. Canny Rhodes, Negro of the South Side, meets Billy Flanagan, of Clearfield, in the opener.

PITTSBURGH BREWING COMPANY

SHANNOPIN ACE DEFEATED BY MILLER

By TOM BIRKS

Knox M. Young, Jr., of the Shannopin Country Club, was dethroned as Western Pennsylvania amateur golf champion at the Pittsburgh Field Club today when he was defeated, 1 up, by Herbert Miller, Jr., of the Aliquippa Country Club, in the first round of match play in the annual title tournament. Young shot a 77 to share medalist honors with W. C. Farquhar, Jr., of the Field Club, in yesterday's qualifying round.

By winning, Miller qualified to meet Dr. Tom Canon, of the St. Clair Country Club, in the second round. Dr. Canon, who won the Cleveland district amateur crown a couple of seasons ago, turned in another first round upset by eliminating Joe Reyston, Jr., of Highland, 1 up.

Reyston, by virtue of his recent brilliant showing in the Pennsylvania state amateur championships, in which he gained the final round only to lose to Lloyd Beyer, was one of the favorites to win the West Penn title.

FAVORITES BEATEN

Other afternoon second round matches bring together George Trainor and Robert Thompson, of New Castle, and Dr. Ralston, of Oakmont, and Jerry Wayman, of the St. Clair Country Club.

Trainor provided another surprise by eliminating Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin, 4 and 3. Dr. Ralston stopped Dick Boucek, of Highland, 1 up.

Jack Benson, hard-hitting youngster from South Hills, defeated Robert Haas, of St. Clair, 5 and 4. Bob Thompson, husky boy from New Castle, defeated Farquhar, yesterday's co-medalist, 2 up. Jerry Wayman, of St. Clair, eliminated the only other Field Club player in the titular flight, Jack Kraft, 2 and 1.

COURSE WATERLOGGED

As a result of the waterlogged condition of the course, soggy yesterday and flooded by the heavy downpour of this morning, special rules governing play were made. Flooded greens caused the abolition of the stymie, around which match play golf is built. The players also were permitted to lift balls that were buried on the fairway, and to lift the ball on the greens when it was in casual water.

The usual withdrawals by stars who failed to make the championship flight were made. Fred Weppner, the home club star, Billy Markus and Tom Jamison, Jr., of Oakmont, and Mike Evans, of Shannopin, failed to enter the second division for match play.

The results of first round matches:

CHAMPIONSHIP DIVISION

Herbert F. Miller, Jr., Aliquippa, defeated Knox M. Young, Shannopin, 1 up.
Dr. R. C. Ralston, Oakmont, defeated Richard Bourcek, Highland, 1 up.
Jack Benson, South Hills, defeated Robert Haas, St. Clair, 5 and 4.
George Trainor, New Castle, defeated Fred Brand, Jr., Shannopin, 4 and 3.
Dr. Tom Canon, St. Clair, defeated Joe Reyston, Jr., Highland, 1 up.

Second Division

R. D. Bell defeated Ned Caughey, 1 up, 19 holes; R. A. McLaughlin defeated J. D. Sawicki, 2 and 1; E. Brubaker won from J. A. Beattie by default; Howard Harsteter defeated C. A. Stoner, 3 and 2; H. Kleiss defeated R. H. Friday, 2 and 1; Percy Wolff defeated Foster Meyer, 3 and 2; Dr. W. Pumphrey defeated W. B. Nicklin, 2 and 1; Bill Mercer defeated J. A. Rutherford, 3 and 1.

WOMEN'S TOURNEY OFF

The women's invitation tournament scheduled today at the St. Clair Country Club was postponed until Thursday of next week because of the inclement weather and the soggy condition of the course. The 216 entrants in the event on Thursday will retain the same starting times which they had assigned for the play today.

PIRATE-GIANT GAME OFF

eight innings of Tuesday's game is very fresh with the fans, who also are well aware that Hoyt pitched the ninth inning and received credit for another success.

Walle limited the Giants to eight hits as he slapped down the league leaders. He had a stiff fight with Hal Schumacher on his hands, but in the end age triumphed over youth.

Fred Lindstrom, whose double led to the Pirate victory of the previous day, had another two-sacker in his bat for the grand splash of yesterday. Lindy came up in the eighth with the battle deadlocked and one out. His drive smacked against the left field boards and Landy awaited further developments at second.

ARKY HITS HOMER

Arky Vaughan, whose cleancut homer into the right field stands in the sixth put the Pirates in front, waited for a pass. Suhr slapped a single to center to score Lindstrom with the winning counter.

The Buccos were careless and a bit stupid in the first game else Larry French might have gone through to a victory. French gave Jackson a home run ball with two on the sacks, after the long wait in the first inning, and the three tallies ruined the lefthander for this game.

Sports Shorts

Albert (Scotty) Campbell, Jesse Guilford, Jack Munger, Henery Paine and Wilfred Crossley, all of the United States, and 11 Canadians remained in the Canadian amateur golf tournament at Laval-Sur-Le-Lac, Quebec, today. Campbell yesterday eliminated G. H. Flinn, of Pittsburgh, 4 and 3.

The Western Pennsylvania Football Association will hold a stag party at 8 o'clock tonight at Spartan Hall, Wilkinsburg. The senior and junior champions of last season are to be presented trophies and medals.

The Cardinals' management and Dizzy and Paul Dean, rebellious pitchers, were playing a waiting game today in St. Louis, each apparently expecting the other to make a move toward reconciliation.

With competition light amid the track heavy, American track amid field stars won eight of 11 events against a French team in a meet yesterday at Marseilles, France.

Because he continued to grasp worthless checks after he had been placed on probation for similar offenses, Arthur Summers, 49, former pitcher for the Detroit Tigers, was ordered to serve two years in prison at Philadelphia today.

HUNT DISQUALIFIED

EMPORIA, Kan., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Babe Hunt, Oklahoma City heavyweight, was disqualified on a foul in the seventh round of a 10-round fight here last night and the bout awarded to Baxter Calmes, Wichita. Hunt weighed 192, Calmes 185.

WOMEN'S PLAY POSTPONED

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(INS.)—Rain caused postponement of all quarter-final matches scheduled for today in the women's National tennis championship.

Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, Mass., and Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, are to meet the British stars, Freda James and Katherine Stammers, respectively, in the feature matches tomorrow.

The other two quarter-final round matches will find Helen Jacobs, who is bidding for her third straight National title, paired against Elizabeth Ryan, California veteran, who lives in England, and Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., matching strokes with Baroness Maude Levi, of Minden, Nev.

SCRIBE GETS NEW POST

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 16.—Quarter-final competition comprises today's card of activity in the twelfth annual United States Public Parks tennis championships, in progress here since Monday. The entire bracket-of-eight in men's doubles is listed for clean-up, with two remaining women's singles frays and one feminine dual performance likewise definitely scheduled.

Pittsburgh's bid for the 1935 tournament failed yesterday as the executive committee of the municipal body voted to recommend to the U. S. L. T. A. that the classic be awarded to New Orleans. The writer, however, was honored by election to the national executive group, the first time Pittsburgh has been accorded such representation. The action indicates strong likelihood of favorable consideration of a Pittsburgh invitation in the near future.

Ralph McElvenny, former Stanford University ace and once coholder with Alan Herrington of the National intercollegiate doubles title, yesterday scored the initial major fatality among the seeded favorites by dusting off the redoubtable Scott Rexinger, Chicago ace farmer and Big Ten premier, in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, in round three of the men's singles.

Bill Lurie, slim New Yorker, who on Tuesday eliminated Pittsburgh's Harold Wald, had former champion Ted Drewes, of St. Louis, just about on the ropes, but failed to keep him there, as the Missourian staged a valiant rally for a 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 victory. Champion Simons likewise barged into a bit of a scare as Ernie Koslan, of New York, gleaned the inaugural set in short order, but the titleholder carved out an artistic 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 triumph.

Elizabeth Kesting, conqueror of Mrs. Jean Artzberger, of Pittsburgh, tossed a fright into Helen Germain, hard-walloping New York star, by grabbing off the first set at 7-5, but Miss Germain skimmed through the next two frames, 6-2, 6-1.

GOLF PARTY OFF

The Altoona Country Club has called off its stag party and guest day program carded this afternoon because of inclement weather. A new date will be selected by the board at a meeting tomorrow.

WEST NEWTON, SHAMROCKS VICTORS

By PHIL GRADOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

Chesley Langford played the hero role as the Campbell Shamrocks gained the senior competition final round by eliminating the Weise Newsies, 4 to 2, in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament playoff at Washington Park yesterday.

Langford batted the ball hard, collecting three hits, two singles and a triple.

In another game played yesterday, the West Newton Scholastics had to ward off a last-inning rally to defeat the Cecil Red Y's, 10 to 9, in an interesting girls' division game on the Schenley High School Field. Outfielder Miss Belle Bout was injured in a collision with Mary Beleno and taken to the Homeopathic Hospital. She and Miss Beleno were running after a fly ball when they collided. An X-ray picture is to be taken today to determine the extent of Miss Bout's injuries. It is feared that her collarbone is fractured.

MISS DAVIS STARS

Shortstop Davis' play featured the Scholastics' win over Cecil. She hit a home run, triple and two singles to lead the batters. Alma (Lefty) Lheureau pitched for the Reds, and Miss Nuttall for the winners. Miss Nuttall also hit a home run. Grace Hart played a wonderful game at shortstop for the losers.

The Newsies gained the lead in the fifth inning of their game with the Shamrocks when Hillen singled, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Miskosky's tap to the Third Baseman Yellen. Yellen's throw home probably would have nipped Hillen had not the catcher dropped the ball.

Buck Friemann opened the last half of the fifth for the Shamrocks with a walk, and Landau was safe on an error. Chester Langford singled to right to drive in Friemann, and Landau also scored on a bad throw to the plate. After Atkinson and Massinino flied out, Oskin singled to score Langford. In the seventh inning Weise and Campbells each scored a run.

The Shamrocks will meet the winner of the S. A. O'Toole Club-Commercial Garage game in the final round next week. The O'Tooles meet the Commercials tomorrow evening on the Schenley High School Field.

TICKET SALE BRISK

The brisk advance sale of tickets for the final elimination games, which are to be played at Greenlee Field next Monday and Wednesday evenings, indicates that a capacity crowd will witness the crowning of the champions. The tickets, offered for the nominal sum of 25 cents each, are on sale in the lobby of the Sun-Telegraph Building and at the Sun-Telegraph's downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street. Registered players may purchase 10-cent tickets at this office.

The games are to bring together finalists in the senior, intermediate, junior and girls' divisions, and a doubleheader is billed for each day. The senior division winner is to represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament in Chicago next month. Winners in the other divisions are to receive silver trophies.

Manager Johnny Goodry's Snubs A. C. team, of the South Side, will meet the Unknowns in a first round game in the Inter-State Softball Association tournament tonight at East Liverpool, O., where tourney games are to be played at night under floodlights.

TUBERS GAIN ON LEADERS

Three-hit pitching by Dye has placed the McKeesport Little Pirates close on the heels of the leading Greensburg Redwings in the Penn State Association. Dye beating Washington last evening, 4 to 1.

Meanwhile, Greensburg was held to a 2-2 tie by Jeannette, the Wings scoring in the eighth inning to knot the count. Both teams collected five hits.

Charleroi outhit Monessen but lost out, 11 to 4, errors contributing to the downfall.

GAMBI BEATS YOUNG

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Gianni Gambi, of Italy, last night defeated George Young, of Toronto and Philadelphia, by 18 yards in a three-mile challenge swimming race. Gambi was clocked in 1 hour 15 minutes 25 seconds.

CHILLYSAUCE

The big storm at Forbes Field blew in a lot of things, including the picturesque Earl Smith from the foothills of the Ozarks. Earl is spending a few days in the Pittsburgh vicinity as he does the backstop trick for the House of David team. He has caught more than 100 games and says he is ready to catch big league ball again.

In view of what Burleigh Grimes and Waite Hoyt have accomplished in Pittsburgh it might be a good idea for some local owners to nab Earl. Smith revealed yesterday that he gave up pitching owing to a slight insertion of one of his legs sustained in an exhibition game. He appears to be in the pink of condition again.

Little birdies hovering around the Giant camp whisper that the remarkable effectiveness of the Nev York pitchers is partly due to the tips furnished by one Frank Snyder, longtime New York receiving star and known Bill Terry's assistant, who always does the thirdbase coaching. Snyder is said to be a master at handling young hurlers. Tom Clark, another ace catcher of ollne old days, picks up anything that Snyder might miss.

Here's another for those book: Larry French, who doubles on fungo-hitting, has improved his stick work at the plate through the acquisition of a bat built along the lines of a fungo willow. Now that in itself may not be remarkable, but when a slugger like Fred Lindstrom picks up the queer stick and tries for a homer, then that's something.

Lindy was all hot and bothered in his eagerness to drown his former buddies when he walked to the barrier in the ninth inning of Tuesday's game with Hubbell doing a sweet job of pitching. One was out at the time when Lindstrom remarked:

"Larry, I'm going to take out your fungo stick and see what I can do with it."

Fred cut down on one in the general direction of the centerfield wall, the rocket splashing against the numbered boards as it brought sweet music to the Pirates. A moment later he scored those winning run on Suhr's hit.

French waited for almost two hours to resume pitching following the storm of yesterday. Then in less than two minutes his ball game was gone on the power of Stonewall Jackson's three-run homer.—CHILLY DOYLE.

WOOD BEATEN AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The last member of the American Davis Cup entry in the competition was wiped out today when Sidney Wood, of New York, second seeded, was beaten in straight sets by the amazingly improved Berkley Bell, the former tumbling Texan, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, in a quarter-finals match.

Frankie Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., qualified for a semi-finals match against Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, by eliminating the last of the unseeded players, J. Gilbert Hall, of New York, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

MRS. GOULD WINS

Mrs. Gould

With a score of 87, Mrs. Pearl Gould, of St. Clair, led the field in the 18-hole tourney at Shannopin yesterday, with St. Clair and South Hills women golfers the guests.

Traders Buying Stocks In Hope of Trade Revival Soon

In hope that a material upturn in business would become visible by Labor Day, traders were [illegible] during [illegible] while no definite indications of a turn in the intermediate trend have been forthcoming. Speculation has been small and range of fluctuations has been narrowing, pointing to the possibility of an early movement of some importance. Speculative leadership, however, was still lacking. Another jump of 3 points in the weekly food index compiled by Dun & Bradstreet gave point to the operations by the government to prevent an exorbitant rise in the cost of living. The rise, one of the largest of the year, took the Dun & Bradstreet index up to $2.28, the highest since April, 1931. The increase in two weeks has been 10 points, or 4.6 per cent, compared with a year ago, the index has been 19.3 per cent. The present figure compares with a depression low of $1.49 at the end of February, 1933. Setbacks in grains and other staples this week doubtless tended to check the advance but pork, butter and several other foods have gone up further.

A rapid rise in the prices of farm products which moves the government to threaten profiteers and speculators in an effort to avoid a runaway advance borders on the ironic for some Wall street observers. Last year, it was pointed out, the administration set out to restore 1926 price levels in order to improve most purchasing power, stimulate the exchange of goods between town and country and to ease the burden of the farmers and other debt-ridden classes. Until June, the progress in that direction, aside from the initial advance in commodity prices following gold abandonment last year, was slow. Then nature intervened with drought and heat. Wheat, corn, hogs, cotton, butter and other products of the farm began a headlong rush for 1926 price levels, outdistancing gains in purchasing power of the consumer.

Although farm products have made long strides the last few weeks in strengthening the purchase power of the farmer's dollar in relation to manufactured goods, they have some way to go to restore the pre-depression relationship between farm and manufactured goods prices. Latest indices showing the relation between what the farmer gets for his products and what it will buy revealed the farmer was still at disadvantage compared with the prosperous years. However, at the rate the prices of hogs, butter, vegetables and other farm products have been going up lately, the discrepancy will not be long in disappearing. Elsewhere in the economic structure, prices have been more or less stationary.

Business observers have watched the relationship between farm and manufactured goods prices closely as a key to the movement of trade. With a readjustment to improve the purchasing status of the farmer, it has been assumed all along by many that business would begin to revive. That trade has not followed the rise in commodity prices the last few weeks has not invalidated the theory, it was argued in one quarter. Commodity prices began to rise before the banking holiday in 1933, but it was six weeks or more before business followed. It was considered inevitable by some business students that the current upward trend in commodity prices would serve as a stimulous to autumn trade by encouraging forward buying and improving the status of the farmer's dollar, even though the rise in the cost of living does make inroads into the buying power of the urban population.

Figuring out the probable 1934 income of the country has become a popular sport among statisticians in view of the drought devastation and rise of farm prices. The Standard Statistics Company estimates that aggregate farm income for the United States this year will be $8,250,000,000, a gain of 29.3 per cent compared with 1933, 61 per cent compared with 1932 and 20 per cent compared with 1931. The figure is a little more than a billion dollars under the 1930 income. The estimate was based on government crop forecasts, plus the millions the government has been pouring out and plans to pour out to the farmer in relief, bonuses and benefits.

Taking the market value of wheat, corn, rye, oats and barley as of Tuesday, statisticians figured this year's estimated yield of grains bids fair to bring the farmer as large a dollar return as did the 1933 crops, despite the drought losses. The total value of the five cereal crops, on basis of Tuesday's prices, was figured as $2,229,805,000 compared with $2,160,186,000 a year ago. Last year, in contrast with current trends, prices were slipping away from the July peaks. Moreover, with the surplus of wheat, corn, cotton and other farm products either eliminated or cut down sharply, prospects of sustained improvement in the position of the farmer were considered bright.

SPECULATION DANGERS STRESSED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16. — One basic control of the new regulatory stock exchange setup which goes into effect next month is the effort to curb activity through making short-selling operations unprofitable. But the Securities Exchange Act will not be a panacea, and its framers, did not go whole hog and outlaw margin speculation, those activities including the Federal Judge William L. Clark of the United States District Court of New Jersey, would have used more drastic reform, including the right to lend against securities to the chartered banks.

Mr. Rukeyser

Irrespective of the status of the law, many seasoned observers warn against marginal speculation as an unbeatable game. Edwin Lefevre has repeatedly sounded this warning theme.

PITFALLS EXPERIENCED

Two able investment analysts, Benjamin Graham and David L. Dodd, in their new tome entitled "Security Analysis," explain the special pitfalls of trading in stocks on borrowed funds.

In setting forth the economic reasons which make successful marginal trading unusual, these authors point out:

"The outright owner can afford to buy too soon and to sell too soon. In fact he must expect to do both, and to see the market decline farther after he buys and advance farther after he sells out. But the margin trader is necessarily concerned with immediate results; he swims with the tide, hoping to gauge the exact moment when the tide will turn and to reverse his stroke the moment before.

"In this he rarely succeeds, so that his typical experience is temporary success ending in complete disaster. It is the essential character of the speculator that he buys because he thinks stocks are going up, not because they are cheap; and conversely when he sells. Hence there is a fundamental cleavage of viewpoint between the speculator and the securities analyst, which militates strongly against any enduringly satisfactory association between them."

CLASSIC DEFINITIONS

Dr. Arthur T. Hadley includes among the important elements in speculation the factors of large risk and large expected gain, and fixes the source of profits as "fluctuating values."

Henry C. Emery says "speculation does not deal with permanent differences of price which exist between different markets, but deals with the fluctuations from time to time which take place in the same market."

The summer shakeout has brought prices to a level where stocks can be more seriously considered as a hedge against inflation or against the revival of confidence and business profits.

The abundance of credit and the price policy of the administration constantly make a sharp reversal of trend a possibility. In fact, sitting on the bulge of a too rapid credit expansion may be definitely necessary.

SENATOR URGES COTTON PEG

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16— Senator Bankhead of Alabama, urged President Roosevelt yesterday to peg the price of cotton at 13 cents a pound through governmental loans.

Sen. Bankhead

The Senator also recommended to the President that a temporary suspension of all processing taxes be effected during the marketing season.

Commenting on the proposal to peg cotton prices at 13 cents a pound, submitted to President Roosevelt by Senator Bankhead, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace indicated the administration is not giving serious consideration to this plan. He also discounted the possibility of suspending the processing tax on cotton until the current crop has been marketed, as was suggested by the Senator from Alabama.

Retirement Board Orders Payments

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—In its first order issued, the railroad retirement board has ordered all class-one railroads to pay to the United States Treasury an advance on their contributions to the retirement fund equal to one-tenth of one per cent on the compensation paid by such carriers to employes for service in July, 1934. Payments are to be made on or before August 25.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

SLUMP HURTS BUILDING MOST

By CHAS. P. STAFFORD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16— (AP)—A review of the depression years indicates the severe change from the 1929 boom year to the end of 1932 was a shrinkage in total income produced of approximately 53 percent from $83,331,000,000 to $39,265,000,000.

On the basis of these figures used in Senate testimony, the construction industry suffered most. A breakdown by industrial divisions shows this group's income produced amounted to only $414,000,000 at the end of 1932 in contrast with produced income of $3,007,000,000 at the end of 1929. The decrease was approximately 85 per cent.

FARMS SUFFER

Agriculture suffered a reduction of about 70 per cent in income produced during the four years, its return of $7,358,000,000 having fallen off to $2,232,000,000 at the end of 1932. Mining dropped some 72 per cent in the same time, from $1,478,000,000 to $527,000,000. Similarly the manufacturing industry declined from $19,104,000,000 in 1929 to $5,073,000,000 in 1932, a drop of nearly 70 per cent.

In agriculture, actual physical production increased, but the decline in prices brought the income produced to its low level. In other industries, the decline in price levels augmented a slump in the physical volume.

INCOME DROPS

Total income produced in trade, transportation, finance and service amounted to about 50 per cent during the four-year period, while electric light, power and communications total was off approximately 29 per cent.

The only industrial division not showing a decline during the period was "government," which rose about 5 per cent, and is explained by the fact that the government "produces" its income by taxation and borrowing.

RAILS TO ASK INCREASES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Basing their plea on wage increases and the increasing cost of materials, the railroads soon will ask for an increase in freight rates on many classes of commodities. A petition is to be presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Farm products, the subject of special treatment for several years, probably will not be affected by the petition.

Railroad attorneys declined today to discuss the plea, although acknowledging it soon will be filed.

In 1931, although denied a general increase, the railroads were permitted to place surcharges on certain commodities. These were in effect until last September.

The new appeal will include a long line of commodities. It may follow in the main the list on which surcharges were allowed two years ago. This list includes bituminous and anthracite coal, coke, iron ore, copper and concentrates except a few exemptions for local situations, lead ore and concentrates, zinc ore and concentrates, sand and gravel, stone, forest products of all kinds, pig iron, scrap iron, phosphate rock, crude petroleum, cottonseed meal and cake, citrus fruits, vegetables, rosin, turpentine, gasoline and other fuel oils, brick, fertilizers and many other products.

SELLING FADES TO VANISHING POINT

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.— (AP)—A quiet buying movement today gave the stock market the best advance so far this week.

The market was not entirely free selling pressure vanished, and traders found it was necessary to mark the stocks they wanted to buy. Commodities broke with them, and bids appeared indicating the market the belief that the recession of last week was over. The rapid rally was not without setbacks, and certain issues were [illegible] by the end of the session.

The buying drive was not followed up today, but the bulls retained control. Transactions totaled 1,110,000 shares, against 1,000,000 yesterday. American Telephone & Telegraph, Consolidated Gas, and Pacific Telephone gained one point or more, and Radio Corporation and International Telephone advanced fractionally. Utilities as a group showed the best advance of the week, and many of this appeared to Republican victories. Chrysler, Du Pont, Kresge, U. S. Steel, United Gas Improvement, American Can, Case, Westinghouse, New York Central, Union Pacific, M-M-T, Commercial Investment Trust, Wilson & Co. preferred, U. S. Rubber preferred and Montreal American Agricultural Chemical and Radio preferred B put on as much as 3 points.

Traders were concentrating their attention on prospects for autumn business recovery, and the fact that the dreaded slump appeared to have been broken. Although too late to have much effect upon crops, seemed to lift sentiment. Yesterday's move in the bonding issues was not followed up today, but the bonds retained quite as a measure of stimulating action, however, continued to receive much attention.

The rise in American Agricultural Chemical was coincident with publication of the earnings statement for the fiscal year ended June 30, showing net equivalent to $4.19 a share compared with a net loss in the preceding year. American Locomotive, for the six months ended June 30, showed a net loss of $1,-283,000, which was not a little smaller than the deficit for the same period last year. Aviation Corporation and United Aircraft, reflected the cancellation of air mail contracts early this year, showing a loss of $1,114,634 in the first half, against a profit of $331,-057 in the same months of last year. United Carbon ordered a quarterly dividend of 60 cents, compared with the last dividend of 14 cents.

Bank clearings are running somewhat under a year ago, like railroadings and some other business barometers. Dun and Bradstreet's clearings report for the week ended August 15 showed a reduction of 3.9 per cent from the like week of 1933.

NATION HOLDS BIG BLOCKS OF BONDS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(INS)—Uncle Sam has invested or acquired $2,115,000,000 in his own securities, it was disclosed today.

In addition the federal reserve banks, the government's fiscal agency, hold $2,432,000,000 in United States obligations which were purchased in the open market for the purpose of placing additional money at the disposal of the member banks that they might make additional loans to commerce and industry.

The government's purchases, according to officials, were not designed to support the bond market but rather for investment purposes on the various trust funds.

HOLDINGS LISTED

Holdings for investment purposes were given as follows:

Postal Savings System, $415,000,000; Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, $226,000,000; Farm Credit Agencies, $133,000,000; Civil Service and other retirement funds, $286,000,000; Adjusted Service Certificate Fund, $166,000,000; Government Life Insurance Fund, $47,000,000, all other funds, $70,000,000.

There has been no important change in the government security holdings of the Federal Reserve banks in many months.

TO AID CREDIT

Open market purchases were conducted over a long period in the hope that the additional funds thus made available to the member banks would stimulate a campaign of more liberal extension of credit. However, there was no expansion of credit. Some authorities insisted that there was no real demand for loans, while others asserted that the banks refused to make loans on the available collateral.

GRAINS SCORE BRISK RALLY

Reports of a threatened railroad strike in Argentina were construed as bullish regarding wheat.

Opening 1¼@2⅜c up, December new, $1.05@1.05⅛, Chicago wheat afterward reacted somewhat. Corn started ¼@1¼c up, December 79⅜@80c, and subsequently held near the initial range.

GASOLINE PRICE DIPS AGAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The gasoline market continues to show further easiness. While the ruling market continues to be quoted at 3¾ to 4 cents a gallon or low octane basoline. Some spot business is reported being done at prices as low as 3¼ cents a gallon in East Texas, while in North Texas 3½ cents a gallon is being paid.

Failure of the market to firm up is giving hise to increased apprehension about the crude price structure. At present levels gasoline is selling ⅜ to 1 cent under the level warranted by current crude postings.

Iron Ore Demand Shows Decrease

CLEVELAND, Aug. 16.—Lake Superior iron ore consumed by furnaces during July totaled 1,599,865 tons against 2,721,449 tons in June and 2,626,293 tons in July a year ago. There was a total of 29,961,071 tons of ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie docks on August 1 compared with 27,771,735 tons on the same date last year. At the end of July, 67 furnaces were in blast, a decrease of 13 for the month.

Memory Test

Answers to yesterday's Sports Memory Test questions follow:

1—Pitcher Burleigh Grimes became a major league regular in 1916 when he was sold by Birmingham to the Pirates.

2—James J. Corbett, former heavyweight boxing champion, was knocked out three times—by Bob Fitzsimmons in 1897 and twice by Jim Jeffries, in 1900 and in 1903.

5—Fred Haseman Jim Bottomley of the Cincinnati Reds, played 11 seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals.

PRIVATE SALE OF REAL ESTATE FOR PAYMENT OF DEBTS

In the Orphans Court of Allegheny County, Pa. In the matter of the estate of Ella Jane Heckert, deceased. No. 302 July term, 1934, to all heirs, devisees, legatees, creditors and others interested in said estate: Notice is hereby given that the petition of the Monongahela Trust Company, administrator c. t. a., is filed in the office of the Clerk of Court, praying for an order of sale of the following described real estate of the decedent:

All that certain lot or piece of ground situate in the Twenty-sixth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh (formerly the Tenth Ward, City of Allegheny), being Lot No. 4 in the Miller and McCain's Plan of Lots, as recorded in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book Vol. 11, page 5, said Lot No. 3 being bounded and described as follows to wit:

Beginning on the easterly side of Maple st. at the corner of Lot No. Two (2) in the plan of lots hereinafter mentioned, thence northerly along the line of said Maple st. 35 feet to the corner of Lot No. Four (4) in said plan; thence eastwardly along the line of said Lot No. Four (4) and preserving the width of thirty-five (35) feet a distance of one hundred (100) feet, being marked and numbered as Lot No. 3 in Miller and McCain's Plan of Lots, recorded in Plan Book Vol. 11, page 5.

The said real estate has erected thereon a two-story frame dwelling, consisting of six rooms.

At private sale to Chauncey L. Berry and Helen P. Berry for the sum of Two Thousand Dollars for the payment of the decedent's debts.

The terms of sale to be cash upon delivery to them of a good and marketable title to the said piece of ground together with the improvements thereon free and clear of all encumbrances.

The court will be asked to make a decree of sale on the 21st day of August, A. D. 1934, at 9 o'clock a. m. eastern standard time, when higher offers will be considered and exceptions or objections to the proposed sale will be heard.

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER XXIV.

The captain alone hung on to his courage and to his carbine. He threw the weapon to his shoulder. Before he could fire Jerome dived at him from behind, football fashion. As they went down together the carbine was sent spinning aside. Jerome grabbed at the butt of the revolver slung in its holster and wrenched it out. Something warned him that if Papa Gorilla were to be wounded all of them would be torn to fragments.

Maddened by this sudden violence, Papa Gorilla was seized by a sudden frenzy. He waddled forward clumsily on his short, thick bowed legs, not very fast, but still roaring.

He came to where Linda lay, too terror paralyzed to scramble up. His enormous hands fastened on her knee and shoulder. With no perceptible effort he tossed her about 20 feet up on to the sloping thatched roof of the verandah.

Still advancing, he came to where the captain and Jerome lay on the ground. They had separated. Neither of them moved. They lay breathless, watching the monster. Jerome had secured the captain's revolver but he did not attempt to shoot.

Something in the ponderous deliberation of the enormous brute seemed to indicate a dazed uncertainty as to its next act. Jerome was hoping that it might stop, stare and growl, then turn and make off into the jungle with the same curious sheepishness that it had shown the day when it had come upon them close to the Tree of the Forbidden Fruit.

Hurled Into Pool

Instead, the gorilla reached down and took the captain by an ankle. Still the man did not stir nor make a sound. The gorilla took the other ankle. He appeared then to pause as if to reflect. Odd little rumbles came from his profundity of chest. It struck Jerome ridiculously, considering the terror of the situation, that Papa Gorilla was grumbling at some distasteful duty he felt called on to perform, and much inclined to shirk.

Suddenly, and with the same co-ordinated lightness with which he had tossed Linda to a point of comparative safety, Papa Gorilla heaved back and swung the captain round his head. Jerome expected to see the man shattered on the earth. Instead, Papa Gorilla loosed his hold in full swing. The captain splashed out into the pool.

Jerome sat up and began to recite The Rhyme of the Nancy Bell. The big animal turned and stared at him thoughtfully. Jerome started on the second verse, using care about his diction. Papa Gorilla's close set eyes rolled about, then roved along the edge of the jungle.

The Deb, flanking him as usual, crouched and begun to scratch her bosom. He paid no attention to her. His alert eyes had picked out the opaque form of the Racketeer, crouching in the thicket. Papa Gorilla gave a roar and started for him. It was as if he had sought and found a pretext. There was a sudden rush and scurry, a prodigious crashing of stiff foliage, and the perfunctory chase took itself off.

The captain had clambered on his feet and was standing in water chest deep. He was swearing softly to himself. Jerome called to him in a low voice: "Run for the beach before he comes back! Hurry, or you are lost!"

Captain Flees

The captain came wading toward him. "I hear some others over there. Repeat your charm, senor, for the love of heaven . . ."

"It was not a charm but the story of a shipwrecked sailor who devoured a boat's crew of survivors. It appears to calm them."

Linda called from her thatched perch: "Tell that picture pirate I am going to scream. He saw what happened when I screamed before."

Jerome translated, then added: "These giants believe that she is Senora Eve." He was not quite sure about the correctness of this title but it seemed better than "Madonna."

"Santa Maria, but they are right. She is beautiful as the dawn. Tell her not to scream, senor. I go."

He waded out and went down the stream before the darkness should be complete in the heavy shade. Jerome got up.

"Hurt?" he asked Linda.

"No. Papa tossed me up here as gently as dad's farmer used to toss me on to the hay cart when I was a little girl."

"He wanted to protect you."

"Yes. The old boy's fond of me. He did precisely what Mama Gorilla did the other day when the Racketeer got temperamental with her. She tossed the baby into a high fork, then took after him."

"Well, Papa's fits of temper are brief. Because he can't remember what it's all about, perhaps. We are probably rid of those hombres. It doesn't matter, as they have left their guns."

He walked to the edge of the roof and lifted Linda down. "Fancy tossing a rugged gal like you up on to a roof."

Don't Want to Be Rescued

He told her then what he had learned from the reward seekers. "We don't want Tommy to pay any reward for us, Linda. The sooner we get to San Cristobal the better."

"Who owns this place?"

"They didn't say. Only that it had an evil reputation."

"Well, it will have a worse one now." She laughed. "And I'd rather not think what ours is apt to be."

"That's the least of our cares right now. This skipper is going to San Cristobal and report that he has located us here, held captive by a regiment of wild giant apes, and claim the reward. The quarantine ought to be lifted by this time, and Tommy will mobilize a relief expedition."

"We don't want that," she said decidedly. "It would make us look like a pair of dubs."

"Yes," Jerome agreed, "and the Sunday supplements would have full-page illustrations of you as The Gorilla's Bride."

"Rather less of a social asset than a writeup in the role of Eve," she admitted. "We had better be on our way."

"No question. As soon as it gets light enough we'll drag the dory down, put some stores in her, and shove off. I'll get the mat and rig the sail. When the breeze comes it will be fair and we ought to make San Cristobal in 24 hours."

"Let's see what's in the chests. Clothes are important since we don't want the sort of publicity we've mentioned."

"Time enough in the morning. We had better get some sleep."

"Safe?"

"Safer than ever. You couldn't drive those spigs back here with the shambok, and the gorillas keep away for hours after a flare-up."

Admires Gorillas

"The more I see of gorillas," Linda said, "the more I'm convinced that man never had such worthy ancestry."

"In the body of a Titan, Papa Gorilla has the soul of a poet. He would rather listen to verse than destroy a Pan-American."

"Yes. All he did was to 'pan' him. After putting me out of harm's way. Let's hope the Racketeer may get like that when he grows up."

She said presently when they were both on their beds of fern: "I'm not so frantic to get back to all the rotten worries, Jerry . . ."

"No more am I. Only for being rescued like a Sunday picnicker I'd rather stick on indefinitely."

"So would I. No telephone, no radio, no silly parties . . . not even bills."

"You never had to worry about them."

"Starting about six months ago, I've had enough worry about bills to last me for the rest of my life."

"Until you marry," he interrupted.

"And take on a large new set of tiresome futilities. Tedious guests and callers lacking in the tact of the Gorilla family . . . long stuffy dinners after the way we go out and gather a basketful of eggs and another of fruit . . . hours at the dressmakers after skipping around next to naked."

He interrupted: "And tangoing with a diplomatic attache after being tossed lightly on to a roof by a Central African emigre . . ."

Synopsis

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a beautiful society girl, named Linda, land on a strange island in the Caribbean after having fled from a quarantined yacht. Their skiff is set adrift and their clothes stolen. Intermittently blood-curdling cries come from the jungle. They find a well-kept though deserted plantation and take refuge in a small house there. That night, Linda's slip is torn off by some unseen creature and again the eerie scream is heard. The mystery of the prowlers clears with the appearance of a mother and father gorilla, their cub and another hairy monster. Jerome recites poetry and feeds the animals sugar water to keep them from getting vicious. The dislike which Linda and Jerome had for one another changes to admiration. They discover a strange tree full of luscious fruit. A sign promises dire punishment to any who touch it. The gorilla chases them from the tree. Jerome and Linda confess their love for each other. Jerome finds tools and builds boat. Linda, Eve-like, gives Jerome juice of forbidden fruit. They hear a commotion in the jungle. A band of rough looking sailors arrive and the captain demands Jerome and Linda accompany them.

Now Go On

Junior Patrol Mail Box

You remember we printed the names of the winners of last week's contest yesterday. Now today we have their winning letters. We hope every Junior Patrol member reads the winning letters printed here in the Mail Box. They may give you a good idea how to write your own original letters.

Josephine Soto, of 198 Beaver street, Leetsdale, wrote this first prize letter:

"I would like to be a teacher and earn enough money. The reason is to buy a large farm for the children that live in a city to have a chance to be able to get out on a vacation during the summers and grow up to be husky and healthy boys and girls, a place where they would have a lot of fresh air and sunshine and plenty of fruit and vegetables."

And we think that's a mighty fine thought, too, fellows, but it would be pretty hard for a teacher to earn enough money to do all that perhaps.

He writes:

"I am 10 years old and sometimes I think I will be President of the United States when I grow up and sometimes I think I don't want to be President because President Roosevelt has had a tough time on this New Deal. I guess I will be a farmer, some of us fellows had a garden this summer. We sold the vegetables and started a bank account. So when I grow up I am going to try to be a prosperous farmer."

They tell us, Eddie, that it takes a smart man and a hard working man to make a farm pay well these days, but you sound as though you had the courage and the ambition to do it. We hope you succeed.

The Tunnel -:- Daily Short Short-Story

By J. M. MCLANAHAN

It had been years since Mr. Mott had thought of the tunnel as anything other than an engineering achievement—and a nuisance. Twenty years ago he might have thought it an evil, one of those fortuitous circumstances which make possible the kissing of one's girl in public.

Therefore, Mr. Mott did not at first attach any significance to the fact that the young couple who sat in the seat ahead sat farther apart after they had passed through the tunnel than they had before entering it. When he did finally become aware of it it became something of a game for him. After that when Mr. Mott boarded the 5:15 he found a seat behind the couple, or as near them as possible.

A calloused second finger of the right hand told Mr. Mott that the girl was a stenographer. He thought she must be about 20. Her hair was dark and curled into ringlets behind the ears. Best of all, Mr. Mott liked her eyes. They were of a hue so on the borderline that some would have called them green, others, blue. Mr. Mott simply thought them "expressive."

The boy was, perhaps, 25, tall, serious-faced, not handsome, yet not unhandsome, with sandy hair and decidedly blue eyes.

Mr. Mott was middle-aged, married, but childless. Perhaps that is why he became so interested in them.

Mrs. Mott looked up from her breakfast grapefruit. Her husband's head was hidden on the other side of the parapet which was his morning paper.

"Joseph," Mrs. Mott began.

No answer.

"Joseph!"

"Eh?"

"Do you realize, Joseph, that you haven't spoken to me this morning?"

Mr. Mott's head came up over the edge of his paper.

"What did you say?"

"Nothing—nothing, at all. I merely asked our maid to pour more coffee."

"Maid. What maid? We haven't any maid . . . Oh," he smiled caustically . . . "you're being funny."

"Not half as funny as you."

But Mr. Mott was deeply interested in the stock market page at the moment.

As usual Mr. Mott had to hurry to catch his train. As usual Mrs. Mott had to find his muffler and gloves, help him into his coat and start him on his morning sprint for the station.

After he had gone she stood for a long while looking into the hall mirror. The reflection there was a bit toward the plump side, a bit saggy at the jowls. She addressed herself in the glass.

"Do you know, my dear," she asked, "he hasn't kissed you more than twice in a month?"

She peered at the glass more closely, as though she was something she hadn't seen before.

"Why," she said . . . "you're crying!"

Mr. Mott sensed something wrong the moment he boarded the 5:15 train that evening. "The kids" (he'd begun to think of them as that in his mind) were sitting far apart. They were silent, cold, stiff.

Mr. Mott wanted to crack their heads together, to say:

"Young fools, you love each other. I know it. Whatever it is it can't matter. Kiss and make up."

The girl showed signs of breaking the silence. Mr. Mott leaned forward. He couldn't help it. He had to hear.

"Terry," pleaded the girl, "please listen. I had to go on that party. It was the 'Sun'."

"Your job! Your job! Don't you think about me?"

"Of course, I was thinking of you. That's why I had to think of my job. So we can save enough to get married. And now that you've been fir—laid off. I've got to even more."

There was stubbornness in the boy. "I can take care of myself, and you." It was a flat, cold statement.

The girl had reached her limit.

"You can? That's a laugh! Out of a job right now . . . couldn't hold onto the cutie you had . . . making the rounds every day. You can support me! That's a laugh!" There was a pause. Then: "Oh, darling I'm so sorry."

But the damage was done. The boy sat, hurt and silent, biting his lip. The girl looked out the window, seeing nothing. Mr. Mott wanted to shake them.

They entered the tunnel. Mr Mott moved swiftly.

The light came again and they emerged into the open. Mr Mott strained his ears. Her voice came, low, vibrant, almost unbelieving:

"My dear—you do love me."

"Scout Mott," he grinned to himself, "you've done your good deed for today."

Mrs. Mott received the surprise of her life when Mr. Mott caught her up and kissed her at the door.

Before he had finished his supper Mrs. Mott excused herself and hurried to her room. There she unpacked the suitcases she had packed that afternoon.

Back at the table Mr. Mott sat finishing his dessert. His eyes had a faraway look as he thought of the tunnel. He thought he would like to tell his wife about it. But he rejected the idea. She might not understand.

Absolutely no Obligations

We sort of liked the way a certain letter ended. The note read: "Answering this involves no obligation on your part and no obligation on ours."

When you think that over it is pretty nice. The fellow had an oil well out in Arkansas, but you could see he was interested on the level.

There are double things we figure that his very first letter was solicitation. He wrote to tell us about his oil well was out in Arkansas and how it gushes a thousand barrels a minute. We take it he was trying to make us a sucker deal.

Well, there's a nice way to write about a thing. We don't believe in all above they found the clothes in Tregor Under. The man described his oil well as having modern plumbing. It had two taps for hot and cold running oil.

In the winter it was hot. In the summer it was cold to cool off from winter. He just sort of suggests it was a new idea to oil wells. Most of the others didn't work it just that way. But they did have two kinds of stock.

However, there was no solicitation. He was very frank about the whole thing and how he was digging his well. He said he hadn't scratched the surface yet.

Most people wouldn't be so honest about their operations. So if he ain't scratched the surface, we ain't scratching the pen.

We didn't answer the letter. But there was a stringent temptation to use his enclosed three-cent stamp. Thanks to Postmaster Farley's erratic rulebooks, it just completed our perfect gallery of famous people.

Now, where is there any businessman who neither solicits nor obligates? We figure we could work up a fine correspondence with that oil man and probably turn his object into matrimony.

We have an urge to read his follow-up letter. That should be a pip. By that time the oil well should have a needle-shower attached.

All businessmen are getting more friendly these days. They figure a satisfied customer is a quashed indictment. A little polite prose and a change of venue on the side makes it nice.

The man asked for a list of our friends. That shows how anxious he is to be pals with our pals. We will send that for we know they will not be obligated. You can imagine what a friendly, home folks, ingratiating and soothing style he had. Before getting half-way through his letter we felt we had known him too long.

State Liquor Stores

Young Republicans Try to Make Them a Political Issue, But Offer Nothing Better

Through action by representatives of the Pennsylvania Young Republicans, the State Committee at its meeting next month in Pittsburgh will be asked to recognize the state liquor stores as an issue in the November campaign.

Generally the younger members of the party oppose the present system, though the law was written by their gubernatorial candidate, Attorney General William A. Schnader, at the instance of Gov. Pinchot, and the Attorney General also negotiated the agreement with the distillers which avoided a court battle over the floor tax.

There are some features of the state's handling of the liquor problem which deserve criticism. It appears that an effort was made to derive too much revenue from liquor, resulting in high prices. The outcome has been a woeful failure to acquire the expected income from the stores, one of the reasons a special session for unemployment relief now confronts the Legislature.

While no definite alternative to the stores is advanced by the Young Republicans, the majority appear to favor a return to the old Brooks high license system, under which liquor selling was in the hands of private industry and licensing was done by the courts. That was a system which led to all manner of abuse, as those familiar with the liquor traffic in pre-prohibition days know.

Admittedly there will be dissatisfaction from some quarters at any program for handling liquor. There never has been found a system to meet with unanimous approval.

But, so far as the experience of Allegheny County is concerned, the state store system has been an excellent method of dealing with liquor in the initial stages of its return to legal dispensing. There may be improved ways to deal with the problem of taxation of liquor, to rectify the effort to make it bear too much of the tax burden, but those are matters which have little to do with the store system. The stores are not now a political issue in Allegheny County, and will not be unless politicians make them so.

McNair Needs a Vacation

City Would Also Benefit if Given Respite from His Honor's Frolics

There is considerable ruckus about City Hall over the matter of vacations for employes who have been in service less than a year. The charter appears to prohibit them from absence with pay.

One of those most seriously disturbed is Mayor William N. McNair, but disturbance is a natural condition of His Honor. He is annoyed because some of his appointees cannot rest at city expense while members of City Council go jaunting to the mountains, the seashore and foreign parts—perhaps landing at free ports.

We have great respect for the charter. It should be observed. Yet it might be just as well, and cause the city no great depression, if the Mayor himself would set a precedent by taking a vacation. He has been working hard, at any number of tasks, calling special Council sessions, debating anyone who will stand still long enough to exchange words, acting as program manager for the Henry George Club hiring and firing high officials and employes—some of whom actually get the jobs to which he appoints them—and managing the Congressional campaign of his secretary, Theodore L. (call me Ted) Moritz.

Perhaps the City Controller, as a patriotic gesture, might be induced to approve pay for the Mayor while on vacation.

Mr. McNair is entitled to a rest.

So is the city.

More Schools, Fewer Prisons

Direct Connection Shown Between Lack of Education and Crime

Facts about criminals not generally known are revealed by Dr. Walter N. Thayer, Jr., Commissioner of the State Department of Correction, in a conference of penologists at Columbia University.

They go to prove that there is a direct connection between lack of education and crime, and carry the inescapable inference that the farther a child progresses in school the less likely he is to "go wrong."

About one-third, he believes, are mentally defective, ranging from insanity to slightly subnormal intelligence.

The remainder, however, he finds are not far from normal, and at least a sixth are completely so.

Yet the average EDUCATION among prisoners is only four or five years, and only one convict out of two has ever learned a profession or trade.

It is not a very difficult deduction to make from these statistics, therefore, that had the "normal" prisoners completed the grammar and high school grades or received vocational training, they would have kept out of crime—or, in other words, that their troubles with the law were due more to ignorance than to any inherent differences in mind or character between them and ordinary citizens.

It must be admitted, of course, that there are plenty of congenital criminals whom no training could have kept straight and who never can be reformed.

But, without taking an unduly sentimental view of the others, it seems obvious that the greatest crime-prevention agency in existence is the school, and that a sound education for every American child would do more for law and order than a hundred prisons.

They Improve With Age

They Have To.

Rails and wires refuse to be thrown into the discard by means of communication which scorn fixed tracks. Both are putting up brave fights and eloquently demonstrating their ability to compete with late-comers in the field of fast communication.

The Burlington Zephyr, new crack stream-lined train, has shown its ability to travel comfortably and safely at a speed of 104 miles an hour.

Motor buses, forced to travel on roads often cluttered by traffic, will not have an easy task of meeting the new competition from an older means of locomotion.

A 24-word message sent exclusively by telegraph and cable wires the full 25,000 miles around the earth came back to New York in three minutes and forty-six seconds.

Radio communication, it appears, does not yet have the field of fast communication entirely to itself. Its enemy-static, as yet unconquered, leaves the field open for wire communication.

New things force old things to improve.

Ill-Fitted For Work

By Winifred Black

KATE—DEAR me! I mean Katherine—is going in for social work.

Nice, serious girl, Katherine; nothing brilliant about her, to be sure; nothing in the least startling. If you met Katherine walking along a winding road just at sunset, you'd never think about moonlight and roses and soft dance music. You wouldn't even think about roly-poly babies, and flowered curtains at the window, and something good simmering on the stove in a neat little kitchen.

You'd just think, "Why, there's a young woman out for a constitutional"—and that would be all, unless you wondered idly from what college she had just been graduated.

No, Katherine is not especially quick-witted, or particularly kind-hearted.

There's nothing mean or unkind or disagreeable about Katherine. She's just sort of cold and uninteresting. And when it comes right down to it, Katherine is uninterested in anything except her work.

And her work is going to be social work. Hasn't she learned all about it in her books?

She knows just exactly what makes girls go wrong, and why husbands leave wives, and what's the matter with the half-grown boy that makes him run away and live in the jungles with a lot of tramps, rather than to stay at home and be clean and decent with his own clean and decent father and mother and brothers and sisters—and maybe a stray cousin or a bewildered aunt thrown in for good measure.

Katherine has heard all about love at first sight—and she has her opinion of it, has Katherine.

She knows why blondes marry brunettes, and why little women always prefer tall men and little men are so very apt to adore great, tall women.

Oh, yes, Katherine has studied hard, and she stood a number one in her sociology class—so, of course, she must be a social worker.

And the plain truth is that Katherine doesn't know any more about human nature—really to know about it or sympathize with it—than the average plumber knows about managing a mothers' meeting.

Katherine is conscientious, she's industrious, and she means well; but if I had a drunken husband—save the mark!—and a house full of ailing children, and the oldest boy arrested for breaking a window with a baseball, and the oldest girl—well, the neighbors beginning to talk about her—and the landlord giving me a nasty look when I met him in the hall, and the grocer saying he was sorry, but he had his own bills to meet—

Well, if Katherine came to give me a social worker's visit, I'd throw a pail of cold water, or suds, or anything else I had handy, right straight at Katherine. And that would be just exactly right.

I do wonder how she ever got it into her head that she'd be a good social worker—don't you?

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'She Was Enlarging Her Horizon'

On the day this little girl was burried, William Allen White wrote the life of her for his paper. Simple, quiet lines—it is hardly possible to follow them through, for pity of the pain that lies between them. Yet there is such tender wisdom in them that they must make every person who reads grateful to this child who passed away.

She wasn't quite 17—this little Mary White—Just a school girl. She lived a life of surprising simplicity. She had never had a party, nor a "date," or even gone to a dance except with her brother. Her hair still hung in a long pig-tail, tied with a red ribbon. Yet her short days were crammed with adventure.

In a stupid world which judges people by the money in their pockets or the color of their skins, she saw only the quality of the soul. All her class mates, rich or poor, white or black, were given a place in the rickety rumble of her little flivver— and gave her something of themselves in return. Life was like that for her—a perpetual eager giving and joyous getting.

There was the matter of the rest room for girls in the high school. Not white girls—they had their choice of pleasant places to rest or play. But about those places there ran an invisible color barrier against those of darker skin.

"She found," writes her father, "one girl reading in the toilet, because there was no better place for a colored girl to loaf, and it inflamed her sense of injustice and she became a nagging harpy to those who, she thought, could remedy the evil."

There was, however, nothing prim or precocious about her. "As full of faults as an old shoe," says the man who loved her most of all. Nor was there any deliberate clutch at dramatic experience. Life was full because she lived it fully. She didn't wait to "go places and do things" to live a full life. She lived it with the material at hand. She found crusades in common happenings, drama in hum-drum humans, happiness in everything.

"She was the happiest thing in the world. And she was happy because she was enlarging her horizon."

HAPPY BECAUSE SHE WAS ENLARGING HER HORIZON . . . thousands of people will read those seven words. They will be people of every age and circumstance—but, in certain particulars they will all be alike. They will all be a little bored and embittered, disappointed with life, rebellious at its limitations.

They will all be thinking back to the days when they were 17 and remembering, wistfully, the bright young dreams that then possessed them, the splendid, reckless things they planned to do.

And they will all be wondering what happened to that fine fury. And why has life turned out to be such a drab and limited affair. Yet, there before them, in seven words, will lie the answer, and the cure—if they but knew it.

"Happy because she was enlarging her horizon"—

Happiness is not a matter of TAKING IN, but of GOING OUT. Healthy lives, successful lives, are growing and going lives. Sickly, unsuccessful lives are stagnant lives.

IF YOU WANT TO LIVE YOU MUST GIVE — YOURSELF.

Young Mary was happy because she had discovered the trick of living outside herself. She had no ambitious dreams. She went to no far places.

But we can't forget ourselves. Least of all can we forget our fears. Little by little, out of those fears and out of our grudging selfishness, our suspicion, intolerance and hate, we build walls about ourselves.

For Mary there were no walls. With every brave and friendly and generous act, she shared her life—and received life more abundant in return. Until, at last, she passed the last horizon of all and—laughing and free—she stepped into the morning.

TOKYO, Aug. 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I thought during my long lifetime I had been awakened just at daylight by every known thing. But right under the Imperial Hotel window, exactly at daylight, five separate baseball games start. That goes on all day. Harvard arrives tomorrow to play the Japanese colleges. But about all they will win will be in English pronunciation. Yours,

Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

Pressed Petals

There is not even any fragrance left;
These sere, pressed petals have so long lain here
Between the pages, they are quite bereft
Of flowery kinship; nor does there appear
In this brown hue a hint to tell today
If they were white or crimson, chaste or gay.
Though once of sunset gold or winter snows,
Only the pattern whispers now: "A rose!"

Why, then, do these dry fragments bring again
Cicadas' chorus while the long day ends,
The scent of summer and the August rain,
A song blown backward as the lark ascends?
What strange enchantment in this dust remains
To show bright gardens where no flower wanes?

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Often when you attend meetings you have a desire to take part in the discussions or to present motions, but fear of not being able to proceed in the proper way prohibits you from doing so.

It would not take you very long to perfect yourself sufficiently in parliamentary law to be able to feel sure of yourself on the floor at any sort of meeting.

You may be unfortunate in that words "go to your feet" when you attempt to talk before crowds.

To practice talking before audiences will overcome such embarrassment.

You can gain experience by joining debating clubs, preferably those having instructors.

In most places there are classes in public speaking where beginners are taught the fundamentals and given opportunities to talk.

The first requisite of a speaker is to be thoroughly familiar with his subject.

Without this you cannot be successful in any speech, no matter how much training you may have had in public speaking.

Human Side of the News

Viscount Snowden, Fearing Revolution, Returns to Active Political Life at the Age of 70

By Edwin C. Hill

FROM THE wilderness cries a voice in England:

"I fear there is not merely the possibility but the probability that we will have changes of a revolutionary character before long."

It is the voice of Viscount Snowden, of Ickornshaw. The message of his seventieth birthday and the announcement of his return to active political life. He leaves his gardens and his books behind and hobbles back into the lists on his crutches to do battle with the MacDonalds, the Baldwins and the Chamberlains.

"My fear of revolution," he says, "is based on the failure of Parliament to function properly and, secondly, on the fact that the class war and expropriation of the propertied classes is now being preached everywhere, and is arousing the fears of everybody who has anything to lose."

An indomitable will and a fine mind in a frail and hopelessly crippled body—such is Philip Snowden, teacher, insurance clerk, civil servant, Socialist, Chancellor of the Exchequer and peer of the realm. When he was 21 a bicycle accident made him a cripple for life and seared his face into a gnome-like mask. It robbed him of a livelihood and left him helpless for several years. He could do nothing for his body but did much for his mind, devoting his time to a study of government in the Socialistic vein, which was attracting many others in those days, including George Bernard Shaw.

Was Champion Of Temperance Forces

HE TOOK to writing and to politics. Long before Pussyfoot Johnson and Lady Astor, he was the champion of the temperance forces in England. He was a marked man from that day, but his enemies learned to fear and to respect the sting of his tongue, the cold logic of his arguments, and they came to know that he was both dauntless and incorruptible. He got to Parliament and, shoulder to shoulder with Ramsay MacDonald, fought the cause of the Labor Party until the day that saw the fate of the Empire in their hands, with MacDonald as Prime Minister and Snowden as Chancellor of the Exchequer.

For all his socialistic leanings it is "England first and always" with Philip Snowden. Two years ago he led the Socialist revolt out of the Nationalist Government, branding MacDonald as a traitor who had gone over to the Conservatives. The break came over the agreements reached at the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference.

"The dominions," said Snowden, "looked only to what they could get from the mother country."

He asked for a delay or a modification of the program, and when it was not forthcoming, out he stalked with a sarcastic and bitter attack on Ramsay MacDonald, his personal and political associate for 40 years.

It is MacDonald whom Snowden is running for now. To him the Prime Minister is a "cad," the Tories, a clan whose vagaries, weakness and unsteadiness will be the nation's undoing if he continues in office."

John M. Casey, Movie Censor

THE MOVIES are having their troubles. The brow of Will Hays, who was a useful servant of the industry, and never its czar, is furrowed with care. The edict has gone forth that nudity must go and sex be chucked into the ashcan. All of which must cause a smile to flit across the clean countenance of about the only successful censor the movies ever had.

It is true that he operated in a local and restricted territory, but his word was law. John Michael Casey, once omnipotent ruler of the galloping tintypes in the city of culture, where Cabots speak only to Lowells and Lowells speak only to God, is retired, for age on a pension; but there was a day when he stirred heartfelt cuss words from the boiling emotions of Hollywood motion picture magnates and theatrical producers.

For to John Michael Casey, in his omnipotent post as purifier of the stage and screen, sin was sin and legs were legs, no two ways about it— no lights and shadows, no getting away from it by calling 'em limbs. At 70, he tells us that "nothing shall be placed upon the stage or screen to which you could not take your wife, mother or sweetheart."

With that as his guiding rule, John Michael Casey calmly deleted scripts and captains, decreed stockings for bare legs and union suits for step-ins. Like Horatius at the bridge, he barred the way to Boston for "Sappho," "Salome," "The Easiest Way," "The Girl from Rector's," and Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude."

In his younger days he was an orchestra trap-drummer, a vocation which seemed eminently to qualify him for dictatorship of the theater. For years he manipulated his drums, his cymbals, his triangles and xylophones, and imitated the birds and the beasts with his whistles, his conch shells and his bazoos. Then he lost an arm in a railroad wreck and his days as a trick trap-drummer were over.

Boston adopted an ordinance strictly regulating public amusements. John Michael Casey, then a messenger in the Mayor's office, promptly asserted his competency for the post of chief of the licensing division. That was 26 years ago and ever since then, Casey went to bat whenever a show or a picture turned up in Boston that offended his sense of propriety. His dictum was law. Nobody in the country had such local power over stage or screen. And Boston is still wondering: "After Casey, mighty Casey, who?"

Roosevelt Trip to Manila Possible Next Year

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S six weeks' cruise in the Atlantic and Pacific has been completed with such success that he may be able next year to visit the Philippine Islands.

In a sense the cruise just completed may be considered a pathfinder for the trans-Pacific cruise next year. The President could go to the Philippines, make a trip around the archipelago and return in less time than he has taken to visit the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, the Panama Canal and Hawaii.

Going to or coming from the Philippines, the President would have an opportunity to touch at Guam, Midway Island, the island of Yap, American Samoa and Alaska. This would complete his swing around the overseas possessions of the United States.

Throughout the six weeks during which the President has been absent from the federal city he has been in daily communication with the White House by radio and airplanes have taken official papers to and from the U. S. S. Houston, on which he made his cruise, several times a week. The cruise has served to demonstrate the ease with which modern methods of communication have made it possible for the President to visit all parts of American territory, continental and overseas, without embarrassment to the administration of public business.

Might Review Fleet at Manila

THE PRESIDENT'S extended cruise has also helped to divert attention from the centralization of power at Washington. Had the President been in the White House it might have been difficult for him to leave the settlement of the San Francisco strike to the people of San Francisco. They acted under the leadership of a strong Mayor, supported by a strong Governor, and they broke the back of the general strike against their public safety. As a result of what they did and the way they did it the United States will probably be spared the humiliation and inconvenience of another general strike for many a year to come.

Should the President go to the Philippines next year a review of the United States fleet in Manila Bay might well be the high point of his cruise. Not since the first President Roosevelt sent the fleet around the world has it been in Philippine waters. A cruise to the Philippines next summer would afford a timely and beneficial maneuver for the fleet. It would be heartily welcomed by the Philippine people.

Saw Pacific Effect In World Cruise

IN JOSEPH B. BISHOP'S interesting book on "Theodore Roosevelt and His Time" is given a letter written by the President to Elihu Root, his Secretary of State, under date of Oyster Bay, July 13, 1907, in which Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I am more concerned over the Japanese situation than almost any other. Thank heaven we have the Navy in good shape. It is high time, however, that it should go on a cruise around the world. In the first place I think it will have a pacific effect to show that it can be done; and in the next place, after talking thoroughly over the situation with the Naval Board, I became convinced that it was absolutely necessary for us to try in time of peace to see just what we could do in the way of putting a big battle fleet in the Pacific and not make the experiment in time of war."

The fleet went from Norfolk through the Panama Canal to San Francisco and thence to New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, China and Japan and home by way of the Suez Canal. It was gone 16 months and was reviewed by President Roosevelt on its return to Hampton Roads, Virginia, on February 22, 1908.

The fleet will be in "good shape" next summer and a cruise to the Philippines, its review by the President in Manila Bay and its return perhaps via Alaska, would encourage peace loving people the world over.

Whether the President, the fleet and the inhabitants of the Philippines and Alaska and of our insular possessions in between can look forward to such a cruise next summer it is too soon yet to say. But some day a President will make that cruise. Why not the second president to bear the name of Roosevelt?
